Aorangi	4163	4000	March 8

The above are all new steamers, built of steel, expressly for the colonial trade and owned in the colony.

The passenger accommodation is replete with every modern convenience, and the dietary arrangement unsurpassed, all fresh provisions being carried in a frozen state. The homeward passages have hitherto been the quickest on record, and are not expected to exceed 36 to 40 days. By this route the intense heat of the Red Sea is avoided, and the magnificent scenery enjoyed of New Zealand, Straits of Magellan, Rio, and Madeira.

UNFORTUNATELY BORN WITH NERVES.—The "busy hum of labour" is a poetical idea enough, but unfortunately some of us are born with nerves; and I confess that the monotonous whir, whir, whir, of a sewing-machine in the house has sometimes sent me out of it. I have often wondered if this could not be remedied without impairing its usefulness. This, I find, you have succeeded in doing in the NEW AUTOMATIC FAMILY SEWING-MACHINE. I find that one can easily listen to reading while operating on it.

JOHN CHRISTIE.

RATEPAYERS OF PHILLIP WARD, SYDNEY.
Gentlemen,—Seeing in the newspapers that my name is mentioned as a Candidate for municipal honours in your ward, I beg leave to state that, notwithstanding the wish of many warm-hearted friends and supporters and the generous support promised me from all parts of the ward, for which I am very thankful, and feel greatly honoured, I must decline, as I have decided to again seek the suffrages of the ratepayers of Darlington at the expiration of my term in February next; but should I at some future time become a candidate for Phillip Ward, I will feel proud indeed of such support as that proffered to me on the present occasion.
Yours faithfully,
J. H. BEALE.
Town Hall, Darlington.

MR. GEORGE CHRISTIE FOR CITY AUDITOR.
THE CITIZENS OF SYDNEY.
Gentlemen,—In view of the ELECTION ON 1st DECEMBER NEXT, and at the end of my first year of office, I beg to announce myself a candidate for re-election as one of the City Auditors.
During the year, and just as I had returned from England, announcement was made of the discovery of frauds which had been perpetrated prior to my term of office, but by general mistake of Council and Press the deficiencies were stated at more than four times the actual amount. I had, immediately after entering on my duties, drawn the Council's attention to the system which gave the opportunity of committing such frauds, and advocated a remedy, which was adopted, and will prevent any such recurrence. It is with regret I have to state that I found the books and system so incomplete that I had to refuse to sign certain statements. This was duly reported to the Council, but no action has been taken, pending the final report of the Committee of Inquiry.
By request, I have made an offer to inaugurate a complete system of accounts, and superintend its working for two years, which offer is now before the Council. I should bring to bear upon this work my varied experience as an accountant, my acquaintance with the present system and requirements, and the experience gained and the information obtained from the chief municipal institutions in the United Kingdom during my recent visit. Soliciting your kind influence and support,
I remain, yours truly,
GEO. CHRISTIE, Accountant.

ABRAHAM'S PILLS, The GREAT REMEDY of the NINETEENTH CENTURY for LIVER and KIDNEYS.
Prepared from Dandelion, and not a trace of mercury or minerals, simply culled from Dame Nature's garden, have now been taken successfully in the Colonies and India for the last 20 years, and are admitted by thousands to be the safest and only genuine pills for all that may be wrong with the Liver and Kidneys, with its inevitable consequences—Biliousness, Indigestion, Headache, Sickness, Shoulder Pains, Heartburn, Dizziness, Constipation, and Flatulence. Of all forms of medicine an aperient requires the greatest care, and the public should be satisfied that what they take is bona fide—not simply a pill of indefinite composition; and, with our changeable climate, Abraham's Pills will at once suggest to patrons that they possess advantages over all the Pills and Potions that are constantly before them. For those suffering from Dyspepsia and the thousand tortures of a stomach out of order, whether the cause be cold, excess of eating or drinking, fatigue of body or mind, too active or sedentary life, Abraham's Pills, aperient and tonic, do not weaken, a result not hitherto obtained, of great importance in tropical climates. Increase in sale of Abraham's Pills has caused dangerous imitations. Be sure and ask for Abraham's Pills. Prepared at the Laboratory, 434, George-street, Sydney. Sold everywhere at 1s, 2s, and 5s.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—
1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE'S.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.
Sold in packets by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sold in Sydney by ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

This Company is formed to acquire and work the following Gold-mining Leases, Mount Leyshon, Charter Towers Goldfield:—

No. 955	10 acres
" 1002	7 "
" 1026	5 "

containing an aggregate area of 29½ acres. The leaseholds are part of Mount Leyshon proper. Mount Leyshon is situated about 16 miles from Charters Towers in a south-easterly direction, and is within easy reach of the railway.

It will be seen from the subjoined exhaustive reports that the Mount Leyshon United Gold-mining Co., Limited, is in no way a prospecting association formed for the purpose of seeking gold in untried ground. Energetic prospecting has been proceeding for the last two years, with the fully demonstrated result that this property is a mountain of auriferous stuff of a soft and yielding nature, averaging from 10dwts. to 3oz. to the ton.

The directors do not for the present intend to deal with this mountain in the face, but propose the erection of a 20-head stamper, the formation of an extensive dam, and the building of a light tramway with a view to minimising manual labour. Such a battery would be capable of dealing with a quantity of about 400 tons per week, and, pending its increase to 100 head of stamper, the richer portions only of the property would be developed, with an assured satisfactory profit.

In the able report by Mr. David Missingham, 8dwts. to the ton has been taken as a basis for calculation, and he further points out that each dwt. extra would mean an enhanced profit of £13,662 (thirteen thousand six hundred and sixty-two pounds) per annum, or at the low average of 10dwts. to the ton, over £136,000 per annum.

Dealing, however, with the richer portion of the stone which is contained in fibriated ironstone veins, varying from one foot to four feet in thickness, and traversing the mountain from north to south, would give a different result. These veins are increasing rapidly with depth, and by last advices one had opened out to a width of eight feet. The stone prospects up to 3oz. per ton, but the bulk crushing from the adjoining property of 254 tons gave a return of 324oz., or a little over 1oz. 5dwt. to the ton. The ore is of a soft friable nature, easily crushed, and with a twenty-head stamper four hundred tons per week could readily be dealt with. Estimating this quantity at the low average of 1oz. per ton, we have

400oz. gold at £3 5s per oz. £1300

while the expenses would probably be—

Raising, 5s per ton; trammage, 1s per ton; and crushing, 6s; and allowing incidental expenses at 3s, the cost would be 400 tons at 15s 300 per week, or, in round figures, £50,000 per annum, which is equal to the total subscribed capital of the company. The figures are given merely with the view of showing what the property should be capable of, and not as an exaggerated estimate. In portions of the stone fine gold is freely visible, but in view of the immense success that has attended the treatment of this class of ferruginous ores by the chlorination process, the company will probably, directly operations are commenced, forward a parcel of stone to Melbourne for reduction as an experiment.

Leaving a profit of £1000

Dividends will be paid on all shares in the company alike, irrespective of the amount for the time being paid up on such shares.

Twelve men are working on the ground, who, it is understood, will remain at the expense of the company so soon as it shall be registered. If necessary, under the mining laws of the colony, partial exemption may be obtained to allow of the erection of machinery and other improvements.

The price to be paid to the vendors in payment for the property, the title to which they guarantee, is 100,000 shares paid up to 10s per share. No cash or promotion money whatever is being paid to any person.

In inviting subscriptions for shares, the vendors desire to endorse the opinion of Mr. David Missingham, that they are offering a property worthy of entire confidence; a property which has, so far as possible, been thoroughly tested and proved to be highly auriferous. The stone is in veins of that peculiar ironstone formation now regarded as so valuable. The veins are opening out wonderfully with depth, and the whole property is an auriferous mountain, requiring only a small outlay to become at an early date a highly remunerative investment.

The expenses connected with the formation of the company will form a first charge on the company's assets.

Samples of the stone may be seen, and prospectuses and forms of application for shares obtained, at the office of the Brokers,

REPORT of DAVID MISSINGHAM, Esq., Mining Surveyor, Charters Towers, North Queensland.

Charters Towers,
6th October, 1887.

To T. B. Searup, Esq.

Sir,—

In compliance with instructions received from you, I visited Mount Leyshon, and made a careful inspection and survey of the various gold-mining leases applied for by you, and find:

That G. M. Lease 955 contains a horizontal area of 10 acres; it is situated on the western slope of Mount Leyshon, west of and adjoining the North Kennedy's G. M. lease 953.

G. M. lease 1002 contains an area of seven acres, and is situated south and west of G. M. lease 955, on a continuation of the western slope of the mountain.

G. M. lease 1026 contains an area of five acres, situated on a spur from the western slope, and being south of and adjoining 1002.

Another lease of seven and a-half acres has been taken up to the north-west of and adjoining G. M. lease 955. (Note.—This is lease on the plan 1030.)

The total area of the four leases is 29½ acres.

Taking measurements from the lowest point on the western boundary of the whole area to the culminating point on the eastern boundary, I find a perpendicular height of 500 feet running off to a feather edge all round, and forming approximately the segment of a pyramid, whose whole base area would equal 2,178,000 square feet.

In this segment you have, therefore, 181,500,000 cubic feet of ore, which, at say 30 cubic feet to the ton, will give 6,050,000 tons of ore, that will yield at the lowest possible estimate 3dwts. to the ton, or 907,500ozs. of gold, worth, at £3 5s per oz., £2,949,375.

The cost of obtaining the crushing stuff, if worked on a large and systematic scale, would be from 2s 6d to 3s for raising and trucking to the mill, and 5s per ton for mill expenses, or a total of 8s per ton, making a total cost of £2,420,000, thus leaving a credit balance of £529,375.

The system of working it most profitably appears to me to be—

1st. The erection of a crushing plant capable of reducing from 2000 to 3000 tons per week.

2nd. The conservation of sufficient water to enable the mill to be kept in continuous work, and

3rd. The connection of the mill with the mine.

Whilst writing about the connection of the mill with the mine, I may mention that two and a half miles in a northerly direction from the Leases a machine area and water right have been secured.

The machine area of five acres is one of the best natural sights I have seen, and is so situated that from the time the ore is tipped from the trucks, until by gravitation it passes through the stamper boxes, it will merely require to be regulated and not man-handled in any way.

By erecting a dam across Clarke's Branch of the Broughton River (upon which the machine area and water right are secured), a large and practically inexhaustible supply of water can be obtained. The river at the proposed site of the dam is crossed by a succession of granite bars, which prevent the underground supply from escaping, and cause a continuous flow of water on the surface, except during the severest droughts.

The two and a-half miles of tramway from the mine, following a regular and leading spur, can be erected at a cost of from £1500 to £2000—timber for sleepers, &c., being plentiful, and there are no engineering difficulties to be encountered.

This estimate of the amount of gold in sight (I think it can safely be called in sight) is only taken from the existing surface to a horizontal plane, passing through the before-mentioned lowest point on the western boundary of the leases. The stuff left below this plane ought to be as auriferous as that taken from above it, in fact much more so, as the leading feature of Charters Towers goldfield is that the richest deposits are found at the greatest depths.

Every additional foot in depth excavated will give another 36,300 tons for treatment.

Apart from this, three distinct ironstone veins run in a northerly and southerly direction, parallel with each other, through the property, and are indicated on the plan as Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

No. 1 vein has been proved by shaft marked A to a depth of 40 feet, and has increased in thickness from 12 inches to about 4 feet, carrying gold the whole depth.

The ore taken from this vein prospects splendidly, and gold is visible in many parts of it. About 15 tons of 3oz. stone is at grass from this shaft.

The shaft marked B has tested the same vein for 25 feet, with similar results.

No. 2 vein has a shaft down a depth of 30 feet, and it has increased from 12 to 30 inches in thickness.

No. 3 vein has only been tried along the surface by trenching.

The three veins are nearly vertical, with a slight tendency towards each other, and will most probably form into one large lode at a depth.

G. M. Lease 1026 of 5 acres has not been tried yet, but the Nos. 1, 2, and 3 veins are traceable along the surface, from shafts marked A and B to Jack Towers' prospecting area. Towers and party have sunk on a quartz reef about 4 feet. Alongside of and going down vertically with this reef is a vein composed chiefly of ironstone, clay, and gold, from which the prospectors have dollied 30 to 40 ounces of gold from not more than a cwt. of ore.

Mount Leyshon and Mount Mawe are traversed in all directions by small seams filled with iron glance. These seams or bands are so numerous, and form such a regular network, that I could not pick a stone in which they were not visible.

Every one of these ferruginous bands or veins contains an amount of gold varying in proportion to the thickness, the richest following the largest veins.

The whole of the external part of the mountain, as tried by assaying small quantities of stone taken from different parts, has yielded 6dwt. The whole of the drillings from a tunnel driven a distance of 200 feet into the North Kennedy Company's ground, on the western slope of Mount Leyshon, assayed 10dwt. to the ton; and 254 tons of ore taken from the main tunnel, and treated in Charters Towers with the ordinary appliances, gave a return of 324oz., or an average of nearly 1oz. 6dwt. to the ton. Vide certified return from the warden's office, herewith.

The leases acquired by you have exactly similar characteristics to that part of Mount Leyshon held by the North Kennedy Gold-mining Company, and from which the above returns have been taken.

Crushing the ore at the rate of 2000 tons per week, would occupy, in round numbers, 58 years, and would give a profit of £10,000 per annum, equal to 10 per cent on a called-up capital of £100,000.

I have taken 8dwt. to the ton as a basis for calculation, and every additional dwt. to the ton will mean an extra £983,125 profit on the whole, or £13,662 per annum.

I wish you to clearly understand that these calculations are for the whole mountain, and do not include any of the more highly auriferous veins or reefs running through it, which reefs will yield nearer 3oz. than 8dwt to the ton.

Timber suitable for mining purposes is plentiful in the immediate vicinity.

I am, Sir,
Yours obediently,
DAV. MISSINGHAM,
Mining Surveyor, Charters Towers,
North Queensland.

Return of crushings from
THE MOUNT LEYSHON, Charters Towers Goldfield
(The stone taken from a portion of the same Mountain as this Company's property):—

Name of Reef.	Stone Crushed.	Yield of Gold.	Date.
Mount Leyshon	66 tons	100oz.	April, 1887
Ditto	93 tons	109oz.	May, 1887
Ditto	95 tons	115oz.	Sept., 1887
	254 tons	324oz.

I hereby certify the above crushing returns to be correct as taken from the Record of Crushings in the Warden's Office at Charters Towers.

LIONEL LUKIN,
Assistant Mining Registrar.

NOTE.—In connection with these crushings it must be explained the North Kennedy Co.'s plant is not yet complete, and the ore has consequently had to be carted to Charters Towers, a distance of sixteen miles. Otherwise the crushings would be for thousands, not hundreds of tons.

The following is the REPORT on MOUNT LEYSHON of Mr. ROBERT L. JACK, the Queensland Government Geologist, made for the Queensland Government, in February, 1885:—

The Pyramid or Seventy-mile mountains are situated about sixteen miles to the south of Charters Towers, and rise abruptly out of a plateau of grey granite.

The granite is seen as far as the northern flank of the Pyramid range, where it is replaced by a porphyry, consisting mainly of straw-coloured silicated felspar, with crystals of orthoclase felspar and quartz, the latter occurring, however, most frequently in rounded blebs. A very few crystals of hornblende and mica occur, but they are so rare that neither mineral can be reckoned an essential constituent of the rock. South and west of the range greywackes and slates are seen in the various creeks and gullies. There is nothing to show the age of the stratified formation, but the porphyry is newer than the latter, and is also newer than the grey granite, as it sends out veins or dykes into both. It is intrusive in its origin, i.e., it was not "upheaved" into its present position, but was, while in a molten or viscous condition, forced by its own expansion and the pressure of superincumbent rocks into lines or rather planes of weakness, one of which was found at the junction of the granite and slate.

This weak part of the earth's crust was afterwards the scene of violent volcanic action on a large scale. What now remains to us is not, indeed, the crater or lava of a superficial volcanic outburst, but the once deep-seated pipe or neck or core, filled up with the fragmental material which supplied the only outburst. It is entirely without stratification, or even the rude bedding characteristic of materials deposited in the open air, where the winds can winnow and separate the coarser and finer dust. Denudation has now removed, at least from the immediate neighbourhood, all trace of the ash and lava beds, which, without doubt, once surrounded the orifice, and has laid bare the nuclei of the eruption, which stand up as hills in consequence of their superior toughness and superior power of resisting denudation.

The culminating point of the range is named Mount Leyshon. It stands 1900ft. above the sea-level (aneroid measurement), and 550ft. above the level of the camp at the foot of the hill.

The material of which the mountain is composed bears a resemblance in parts to porphyry from which, however, it is distinguishable by the different manner in which it weathers. It varies considerably in texture, some portions being merely aggregations of fine gray or buff-coloured felspathic dust, while other parts are agglomerates of coarse angular debris of broken porphyry, cemented together by a sparse matrix of dust felted with iron oxide. Broken crystals and rounded blebs of quartz are scattered throughout the matrix. In fact, the material is exactly such as could be manufactured from the waste of the porphyry. The quartz crystals of the porphyry have suffered little change by attrition or fracture. Crystals of felspar in some cases appear to have been developed in the ash, so that, but for the granular and elastic appearance of the matrix, the resemblance of the adjacent porphyry rocks would be complete. Occasionally, nests of small plates of talc are met with.

It would appear that the materials filling up the volcanic "neck" were sufficiently loose and incoherent to admit of the passage of water and acids coming up from below, and bearing with it much iron in solution. The weathering of the rock, in various hues of red and yellow, proves the matrix to be saturated with iron oxide, while the joints of the rock are filled with veins of iron glance or brown hæmatite. In places where the rock is made up of large angular fragments, the faces of the latter are covered with a coating of yellow iron ochre. Such coatings are occasionally encrusted with a film of microscopic quartz crystals. On weathered surfaces the holes from which quartz crystals have weathered out have frequently a coating of minute crystals of iron glance, or are simply filled with spots of earthy hæmatite. That the veins of red or brown hæmatite were originally pyrites, and have only lost their sulphur and become oxidised as the result of weathering, is evident from the frequent occurrence of the hæmatite in cubical hollows. In the finer portions of the rock veins of quartz are not uncommon. On the summit of the eastern hill larger bodies of quartz are met with, the quartz being of a pale bluish tint and associated with lumps of hæmatite iron ore and manganese oxide. The bluish tint is apparently due to the presence of numerous minute crystals of pyrites magnetic iron ore, and possibly manganic oxide in a state of fine division.

Gold follows the ores of iron in whatever form the latter may occur. In the hæmatite viens, which form a network at and above Cornish Tim's Tunnel, gold may easily be seen, and where it is not visible to the naked eye, a crushed sample seldom fails to yield a "prospect." In such places gold is not absolutely wanting, even in the body of the rock, where the iron oxide is very sparingly present, but the quantity in the rock elsewhere than among the veins is trifling. Weathered surfaces covered with a black glazed coating of brown hæmatite not unfrequently exhibit handsome specimens of gold, as I have seen at the mouth of the Extended Company's tunnel, and on the hilltop near the western boundary of the prospectors' tunnelling area. The films of yellow ochre which cover the angular blocks of a coarser agglomerate also contain gold. One block blown from the Extended Company's tunnel had a yellow ochreous surface of about two feet square, and was glittering with golden specks.

The surface has been stripped from a considerable space on the north side of the hill, and in spite of the difficulty in obtaining water has paid well for washing.

A tunnel was driven by Cornish Jim about 30 feet into the foot of the hill on the north side about 12 years ago. It is said that the material extracted yielded two ounces of gold to the ton. Ferruginous veins appear to have been followed. A small prospect of gold can be obtained from the debris in the tunnel. The walls and ends of the tunnel show a mass of alluminous and magnesian silicates in a weathered condition, with sparse brown hæmatite and ochreous veins. The rock is full of roundish blebs of quartz and is slightly copper-stained in places.

Two tunnelling areas are held at present by the Mount Leyshon and Mount Leyshon Extended Companies. The former occupies the ground to the east of a line running south-south-west, and nearly parallel with the head of Cornish Jim's Gully, and the latter an area to the west of the same line. The Mount Leyshon Company was first in the field, and is carrying on exploratory work with vigour. It commenced work in a quarry at the top of the skids. Here the rock, while similar on the whole to that of Jim's tunnel, is characterised by the occasional presence of magnesian silicates in "oolitic" concretions. I saw a little gold in some thready ironstone veins at this place, and could obtain a fair "prospect" from a crushed handful of stone, including a good deal of vein stuff. The stone away from the vein yielded a very small "prospect," but enough to prove that it was not destitute of gold. A trial crushing of 20 tons, taken partly from the top of the skids and partly from Cornish Jim's tunnel, yielded gold at the rate of 5dwt. per ton.

A tunnel has recently been commenced by the same Company, at a somewhat higher level, beneath a bluff near the head of Cornish Jim's Gully. The material at the mouth of the tunnel is, or was originally, a rather fine-grained ash, but it is now traversed by numerous ironstone and quartz veins, and is permeated and coated (owing to weathering) with red and yellow iron oxides. The tunnel is designed to cut the vertical extension of a mass of quartz seen on the hilltop, full of pyrites, and so studded with fine gold that hardly a chip of the stone does not show a little. This quartz is not a reef in the ordinary sense of the word, but there is no reason why it should not go down as a "pipe vein" at least to the level of the tunnel.

Another tunnel has been commenced by the Extended Company in a brecciated rock, made up of angular fragments of porphyry, felted together with finer debris of the same rock, the whole being cemented with yellow and red iron oxides, and traversed by quartz veins. Fine specimens of gold have already been obtained (as abovementioned) from this tunnel on faces covered with yellow iron ochre and brown hæmatite. I also saw gold in the bluff above the Extended Company's tunnel, in the knob at the head of Cornish Jim's Gully (1880 feet on the map), and on the spur leading from this knob towards Mount Mawe.

The agglomerate of Mount Leyshon does not appear to be intersected by well-defined quartz reefs, as is the case with the adjacent porphyry. The Mount Leyshon volcano was of later date than the porphyry (of which its ejectamenta were mainly composed), and in all probability is also newer than the reefs in the porphyry country. These reefs probably supplied the gold now distributed among the ironstone veins of Mount Leyshon.

One of these reefs crosses Cornish Jim's Gully to the north of the camp. It runs E. 10deg. N., and underlies to S. 10deg. E. at 40deg. It was worked at the west end by Cornish Jim, and at the east by Greasy Bill, both of whom are said to have done well out of it. Other reefs occur near the camp, and several are known in the porphyry country to the east.

Alluvial gold has been obtained in Cornish Jim's and Greasy Bill's Gullies, and, indeed, in the heads of all the streams which take their rise in Mount Leyshon. The amount is not ascertainable, as the gullies appear to have been worked chiefly by Chinese, who are, as a rule, reticent and unreliable as to their earnings; but judging from the extent of the workings, and considering that these only can be carried on during a small portion of the year, owing to the scarcity of water, the yield must have been very considerable. Some of the gold no doubt came from the reefs in the porphyry country, but the bulk of it must have been derived from the Mount Leyshon agglomerate.

The Mount Leyshon "neck," besides the mount itself, includes a boomerang-shaped tail, which extends southward and westward till it terminates in what I have called for convenience sake "Wallaby Point."

To the east of Mount Leyshon is an isolated "neck," the highest point of which (1780ft.), I have named Mount Mawe. I obtained gold from a red ironstone vein, containing some quartz and a good deal of pyrites, on the north-west flank of Mount Mawe, and from a mass of frothy red ironstone on the spur of Mount Mawe leading towards Mount Leyshon. On the eastern side of the "neck," where it comes in contact with the slate country, blocks of slate and greywacke are of frequent occurrence in the agglomerate. Considering that this "neck" is unquestionably the source of the gold which has been so extensively worked at the Seventy-mile alluvial diggings, I cannot help thinking that it is worthy of serious prospecting.

It may be mentioned that a gully (distinguished as Southern Gully) draining the eastern side of Mount Leyshon and the western side of Mount Mawe, offers, in my opinion, as fair a prospect of successful alluvial digging as the Seventy-mile itself, and yet it has never been touched. The drift is certainly deeper than that of the Seventy-mile, but the area of alluvium is more extensive.

As Mount Leyshon has been lately referred to as another "Mount Morgan," it may be as well to point out that the latter is a geyser or hot spring deposit, pure and simple, while the former is a deep-seated core of an ash-discharging volcano. Its resemblance to Mount Morgan consists in the fact that the (once) loose and incoherent materials in the core admitted of the upward passage of water and acids carrying the iron, gold, manganese, and silicia in solution, till the rocks were saturated, and the fissures and joints filled up with veins.

From the fact that the red and brown hæmatite of the veins frequently fills cubical hollows it may be inferred that as soon as the mining is carried in (either vertically or horizontally) beyond the reach of the influence of weathering, the veins will be found to be composed mainly of (auriferous) pyrites.

In arriving at the conclusion that the systematic exploration of Mount Leyshon (and I may add, Mount Mawe) is justified by the apparent prospect of success, I have been influenced even more by the consideration that the gold obtained in the alluvium must have had its source in the mountains, than by the amount of gold actually visible in the mountains themselves.

ROBERT L. JACK.

Geological Survey Office,
Townsville, 6th February, 1885.

EXCERPT from the "MINING JOURNAL" (London) of the FIRST STATUTORY GENERAL MEETING of the MOUNT LEYSHON GOLD-MINING COMPANY, Limited.

In opening the meeting the Chairman stated:—

The property which this Company holds was originally known to be gold-bearing in the year 1871 or 1872. Mr. Mosman and other gentlemen in Queensland were prospecting for gold on this property in the year 1871, and it was from this property that Charters Towers was discovered. The gullies around the two mountains which this company now hold were

RICH IN ALLUVIAL GOLD,

and Mr. Mosman, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Fraser were three of a party who were making a living at that time by washing alluvial gold in the gullies around these two mountains. Charters Towers was discovered, and the population, as it often happens in these cases, shifted from what was then there called the Seventy Mile, which is Mount Leyshon, to Charters Towers, and the population has never, to any large extent, gone back again. There was always, during this time, more or less of a population obtaining a living by washing the gold in and around these two mountains, sometimes more and sometimes less. In the year 1884, Mr. Mosman went on an expedition to Mount Morgan, and going back to Charters Towers met several of his friends there and told them that, in his opinion, he knew something near Charters Towers

VERY LIKE MOUNT MORGAN.

Thereupon he went out with other gentlemen, and they explored these two hills, and found there was gold undoubtedly in the hills and in the body of the hills. A few people thereupon started to see what the hills were made of. I am not sure whether Mr. Mosman was of the party, but a party was then formed in Charters Towers for the purpose of seeing what the interior of these hills was good for. Tunnels were driven into both of the hills, one about 60 feet and the other about 120 all through. Stone was brought into Charters Towers from the tunnels and crushed, and the result of that crushing is detailed in the report which appears at the end of the short prospectus which this company put forth the other day, by Mr. S. Vale, and gave on an average from 6dwt. to 10dwt. of gold per ton. At that time the mining industry in Queensland was in a very depressed state, and it was perfectly clear that the only way to make the property pay was to raise considerable capital for the purpose of WORKING IT ON A LARGE SCALE.

That was found to be impossible at that time. First the extended part of the property was given up, and the other part was kept on with the necessary number of men. This went on for some time, and efforts were made to obtain the necessary capital over and over again, and they failed; and it came to my knowledge, and to the knowledge of gentlemen here, that the property could be obtained. We obtained the property and transferred it to the North Kennedy, who had a small capital, for the purpose of holding it and further developing and testing the ground. As soon as the North Kennedy Company came into possession of the property, they sent out orders that the tunnels were to be pushed out vigorously into the hill. Within three feet of where the old miners left off in the tunnel they struck very fair gold, which yielded

AN AVERAGE OF 1½ OZ. PER TON.

From that time to this that tunnel has been driven in gold-bearing rock, so much so that for the last 60 feet or so of the tunnel the assay of the borings from every drill hole, which is a very fair test of the general state of the ground, gives an average of ½oz. of gold for the whole of 60 feet. The North Kennedy Company, as far as capital was concerned, were not in that favourable position to work the property upon the large scale which we thought it necessary, and the Prime Minister of Queensland having put an end to all chance of obtaining capital from the public for the formation of a company for the moment, we determined to form the Mount Leyshon Company, and we formed that company, and the North Kennedy Company accepted in full payment of the property the total shares of this company, entering into an undertaking to find the necessary capital for the Mount Leyshon Company, when and as the Mount Leyshon Company required it up to £25,000, and, if necessary, more. Before we were, we thought, justified in appealing to the public at large to support us in this undertaking, we thought it would be best not only to have the assay values of the various ores which the tunnels passed through certified to, but we thought it better to have

A PRACTICAL TEST OF THE GENERAL VALUE OF THE HILL,

and we sent instructions out by cable to our agent in Charters Towers to take 50 tons of ore from the hill as it came, and to crush it at an ordinary battery, and send us a telegram as to the result. That telegram we received only the other day, and we have also received a letter from our agent, in which he acknowledges the receipt of our orders, and says that he expects the stuff which he is carting away from the face of the hill will give ½oz. to the ton. To his astonishment, and to our astonishment, he found the result was very much better than that, and if what he has taken is a fair sample, we have in our possession two mountains which WILL CRUSH 1½ OUNCE TO THE TON ALL THROUGH.

Our distinct orders to our agent were not to select the stone. His letter to us intimates that he is following our orders, and he only expects a small return; but as far as it is possible humanly to judge, we should be perfectly justified, I think, in assuming that the hills, when crushed, will give us the same return as this 66 tons has given to our agent. To make matters still surer, he is now putting through another crushing of 100 tons, taken from the face of the hills—taken as it comes—and the result of this we are now awaiting. Should that amount to an average of 1oz. or 1½oz. per ton you will see, as well as I can, that we have one of the most enormous and VALUABLE DEPOSITS OF GOLD IN THE WORLD.

The hills themselves are about 500 feet high. There are two. I never went into an estimate of their cubic contents, but it must be enormous. There is no mining work to be carried on. We have in the same way that you quarry building stone at Portland or elsewhere, and when it comes it tumbles down the mountain side into the battery which we are erecting at the bottom. The expenses, as far as it is possible to judge—and I know what wages are and what fuel costs, as I have been a director of mining companies on the spot—as far as I can judge, the expense of GETTING STONE SHOULD NOT EXCEED TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE PER TON.

The expenses of crushing the stone certainly should not exceed 7s or 8s per ton, and I think it may be taken as a fair estimate that it will cost 10s per ton at the outside to put through the total mass of those two hills as it comes. I am afraid, lest you might think I am romancing, to work out what the profit would be if the hills give us—not what our last crushing gave us—but if they give half that, it will work out as the total value of the hills at half what that last crushing gave us.

PROSPECTUS.

As the general public of New South Wales are probably unaware of the benefits to be derived from joining Mutual Terminating Building Societies, a short statement of their leading features is now given in starting this new Society.

(a) To enable the members to become possessed of freehold Properties by moderate fortnightly contributions.
(b) To enable persons possessed of Land in or about Sydney to erect Buildings on the same.
(c) To enable persons possessed of Freeholds to obtain Loans for any purpose, repayable by fortnightly instalments.
(d) To afford a safe and profitable investment for regular fortnightly savings.
(e) To advance, on the security of past savings, money that may at any time be needed without depriving the Shareholders of prospective advantages.

In Melbourne, more than 35 years ago, the Union Terminating Building Society was started by the Hon. Henry Miller, M.L.C. (chairman of the Bank of Victoria), who is admitted to be one of the greatest financiers of Victoria.

That Union, as well as the Second, the Third, the Fourth, and Fifth Union Terminating Building Societies have fulfilled all their obligations without any failure.

The Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Unions are still in progress, promoted by many of the original shareholders, and are enjoying as prosperous and successful careers as their predecessors.

The Eighth Union Terminating Building Society, which was only inaugurated in March, 1885, started with 5534 Subscribed Shares, and two years later, March 31, 1887, the balance-sheet produced the following satisfactory results:—

LIABILITIES.

March 31, 1887.
To Amount due 787 Shareholders on 5409¾ Shares at £12 per share	£64,917 0 0
Amount due sundry Shareholders for payments in advance	260 0 0
Deposits and accrued interest	14,905 0 0
Bank of Victoria	38,208 0 0
Credit balance	9,550 0 0
	£127,840 0 0

ASSETS.

March 31, 1887.
By Advances to Shareholders on 1267½ Shares at £100 per share	£126,750 0 0
Sundry items	1,090 0 0
	£127,840 0 0

The revenue for the two years from premiums, redemptions, &c., after deducting the cost of management, interest paid and accrued, &c., showed a net profit of £9550, which, divided amongst 5409¾ shares, showed a profit of £1 15s 4d per share, making, with two years' subscription, £13 15s 4d. Thus, the value of a £100 share, upon which £12 had been paid up during the two years, was £13 15s 4d.

These figures speak for themselves, and need no further comment.

The same results must be achieved by this Society, the only thing necessary to make its success certain being that all, or at least the major portion, of its shares must be applied for.

PARTICULAR ATTENTION IS CALLED TO THE FOLLOWING POINTS:

(a) That this Society is established on a basis calculated to last 10½ years from its commencement.
(b) That the shares are of a nominal value of £100, payable by subscription at the rate of 5s per fortnight until the subscriptions and profits together amount to £100, which will most probably result in 10½ years, and may be attained within that time.
(c) That Investing Shareholders pay 5s per fortnight on every £100 share, and if the Society exists for the full term of 10½ years would have paid in the aggregate £68 10s, receiving in return £100.
(d) That Borrowing Shareholders, in addition to fortnightly subscription of 5s, pay 5s 6d per fortnight as redemption, consequently would have paid in the aggregate, during the 10½ years, the sum of £143 17s for each £100 borrowed, which is tantamount to borrowing the money at 6¾ per cent. interest per annum, and being allowed the privilege of reducing the principal each year, only paying interest on unpaid balance for succeeding year.
(e) That all or any part of the loans of the Society can be redeemed, at the option of the borrower, in one payment, as provided for in the rules. Each 5s paid as subscription is placed to the credit of the borrower, the profit shown in the last balance-sheet is added thereto, and the borrower redeems by paying the difference between the added sums and £100 in cash.
(f) That after the first twelve months, on notice not exceeding one calendar month, every investing shareholder, desirous of withdrawing, receives in cash all his subscriptions paid, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, or such bonus as the Board of Management from time to time may fix.
(g) That Investing and Borrowing Shareholders share equally in the profits.
(h) That this Society does not traffic in land, nor is it the intention at present to solicit deposits from the public, but to make advances on mortgage to members as often as there shall be sufficient funds in hand from subscriptions received, the Society thus being "purely and simply" a Building Society.
(i) That this being a purely mutual Society, NO PREFERENTIAL SHARES will be issued.

TO COUNTRY RESIDENTS.

Special arrangements will be made so that residents in the country may share in the benefits to be derived by joining this Society, inasmuch as valuators in the several country towns will be appointed to act on the Society's behalf when country members are applicants for advances.

TO THOSE HAVING THEIR MONEY INVESTED IN SAVINGS BANKS.

In taking out shares in this Society you can, at the expiration of one year, if so desirous, draw out your money and will be allowed interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. If you do not wish to withdraw, the profits are equally divided, or you can become a borrower on most easy terms by taking as many shares as you require.

Early application is necessary, as priority of application will determine the allotment.

Rule books, application forms, prospectuses, showing practical examples of the benefits to be derived, and all other information can be obtained at the offices of the Society, 83, Pitt-street, either personally or by letter.

Office Hours:
10 to 4 daily, excepting on Saturdays, when the office will be open from 10 till 1.

PRINCESS ALEXANDRA GOLD-MINING COMPANY, Limited, IRONBARKS.

Registered under the Companies Act.

CAPITAL, £36,000, in 36,000 SHARES of £1 EACH.

18,000 A Shares issued as paid up to 15s are retained by the present proprietors.

18,000 B Shares issued as paid up to 10s are offered to the public at 1s per share on application, and liable to calls not exceeding 1s per share at intervals of not less than one month.

After 5s has been paid on the B Shares both A and B shares will rank alike as to calls.

The present proprietors have applied for 5000 B Shares, and the Company is floated and registered.

Proprietors:

W. M'Millan, Esq., M.L.A.	S. B. Baly, Esq.
George Munro, Esq. (A. M'Arthur and Co.)	Thos. Poile, Esq., Ironbarks
Messrs. Starkey and Taylor	James Liddell, Esq., miner, Ironbarks
Robert Precious, Esq.	Joseph Nicholson, Esq., miner, Ironbarks.
John Plumb, Esq.

Solicitors:
Laurence and Rich.

Secretary:
S. B. Baly, Vaughan's-chambers, 142, King-street.

The property consists of three leases under the Goldfields Act, having an area of 20 acres in all. The mine is about half a mile from the railway station at Ironbarks—227 miles from Sydney on the Western line.

There are four known and proved sources of Gold on the ground:—

1. The Princess Alexandra vein, or reef, which varies from 2 to 18 inches in width. This has been tested by a Mint crushing of 11cwt. 3qr. of stone, which yielded 1oz. 5½dwt. of gold per ton.
2. The Poor Man's Reef, underlying the former about 12ft., and having a width of 3 to 4 feet. This stone has also been tested at the Mint by a crushing of over 12cwt. of stone, and the yield was 1oz. 14dwt. per ton.
3. A body or series of thick droppers running between and connecting the two reefs. This stone was subjected to trial at the Mint by a crushing of 11cwt. of stone, which yielded gold at the rate of 15dwt. per ton. These "droppers" of quartz are impregnated with mineral known as mispickle, holding from 3 to 5 oz. gold to the ton as per assays. This mineral will require special treatment to recover the gold.
4. A vein of quartz, 8 to 10 inches thick, supposed to underlie the Poor Man's Reef, and known on the spot as bluestone. This was tested in Melbourne at the Metallurgical Works, Footscray, in a parcel of 33cwt., and yielded from the battery 2oz. 14dwt. per ton, besides 143lb. of pyrites, which gave per assay 4oz. 13dwt. of gold per ton. A further parcel of 11cwt. of this stone was sent to the Sydney Mint, and the crushing yielded 2oz. 1dwt. gold per ton.

The reefs described as 1, 2, and 3 have been proved by shafts sunk 25, 40, and 60 feet, as shown on the plan, and No. 4 by a shaft sunk 100 feet.

Dr. Robertson estimates the quantity of stone proved in Nos. 1 to 3 at 150,000 tons, and the cost of landing at grass at 5s per ton.

5. There is another reef on the land, known as Trickett's Reef. Four shafts were sunk on this line some years ago, but they are now filled with water, so that nothing can be said about this stone, except that local repute gives the reef a width of 4 to 5 feet, and reports that 500 tons yielded the former owners 2000oz. of gold, without counting a quantity of mis-pickle, which yielded by assay 5oz. gold per ton. The former owners were drowned out and abandoned the property. Dr. Robertson recommends that this reef be prospected along its outcrop before a new shaft be sunk to work it from below.

Dr Robertson's report in full on the mine may be seen at the office of the Secretary, 142, King-street. The proprietors have been at work for six years opening out the mine, erecting pumping and winding gear, timbering shaft, &c., and for this they ask no cash consideration, being satisfied to show their bona fides by receiving 18,000 shares paid up only to 15s. The gold got by them in these workings passed through the Commercial Bank, Orange. The average is very nearly 1oz. 6dwt. per ton, as per statement attached. The only charges upon the contributing capital will be an item not exceeding £200 for commission, arrears of wages, and sundry other small accounts.

The Directors—viz., Messrs. W. A. M'Millan, M.L.A., John Plumb, and Robert Precious—have consented to act without remuneration until after the payment of a dividend.

NEW ISSUE OF SHARES.
AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL INVESTMENT AND BUILDING COMPANY, Limited.

The rapid growth of the Company's Business has induced the Directors to issue 20,000 NEW SHARES at 70s per share, and as only 10,000 of these are reserved for the Sydney market, it is necessary that speedy application be made by those intending to take up shares.
The New Issue will increase the Paid-up Capital from £20,000 to £40,000, and the reserve from £40,000 to £80,000.
This Reserve will be larger than that of any other Building Company in the colony, and as a consequence of the large Reserve, the cost of money to this Company will be less than to any other Building Company.
The total Receipts during the year ending December 31, 1886, amounted to £427,420 13s 10d, and the sum of £321,713 11s 9d was received on deposit; larger than the amount received by any other Building Company in the Colony, and this in the face of the widespread depression in trade.
The fact that this Company has always paid the highest rate of Dividend, and at the same time carried substantial sums to reserve every year, is a guarantee that in the future the same good results may be anticipated.
The Directors have every confidence in recommending these Shares as the soundest investment in the market.
For Forms of Application, Balance-sheet, Prospectuses, and all information, apply to HUMAN RECKLESSNESS.

A singular feature in the make-up of mankind is the recklessness of life, which at times becomes epidemic. Some foolhardy man sets the example, as did Webb in his attempt to swim the rapids of Niagara Falls, and immediately he has followers the world over who attempt dangerous feats from which no benefit, pecuniary or otherwise, can ensue. But recklessness of life is not confined alone to this class of people. We are all of us daily encountering a danger of far greater magnitude, which concealment for a time robs of its terrors. It is so insidious in its approach, fastening itself with a deadly grip on the body before any palpable evidence is exhibited that the vitality is sapped, our constitutions undermined, and we are made wrecks physically and mentally, before we have been alarmed. We refer to diseases of the kidneys, those subtle organs placed in our body to purify our blood, and in connection with our bowels to eliminate all the waste material which the system is daily throwing off. Dr. Dawson Williams says urinary diseases are becoming year by year more common, and another eminent authority says that deranged kidney action is the cause of 93 per cent. of all the diseases which afflict mankind. Dr. Ralfe makes a still more astonishing statement, to the effect that if the water of people who suffer from general disease was examined, 27 per cent. would be found to contain albumen. This is a startling statement, and confirms the fact that nearly every disease takes its origin from derangement of the kidneys. That the disease is, and has been, on the increase since the time of Bright cannot be doubted, but that it has become as prevalent as these statements lead us to believe seems almost impossible, and the assertions might well be doubted did they not come from such high authority. The moral is a plain one, and is simply this: To have uninterrupted health and long life we must keep the kidneys in such a condition that they can perform the laborious function nature designed for them. How to do this is a question which for years we have looked in vain for physicians to answer. Their endeavours to discover a medicine which should have a controlling influence to prevent these disastrous results have been fruitless. But there is a remedy, purely vegetable, which is almost specific in its power over the kidneys, liver, and urinary organs. This remedy is Warner's Safe Cure. It has a record with which no other medicine can compare, and its marvellous power over disease is confirmed by a mass of evidence given daily by the colonial press.

LIFE OF LEO XIII.*

In a bulky volume of 600 pages Dr. O'Reilly tells the life story of the present Roman Pontiff. The book is a remarkable one in many ways. In it men and events are viewed from a standpoint or judged by a standard entirely sacerdotal. This method of examining men and gauging the results of their actions may have its advantages, but to the purely lay mind such advantages are not always apparent. It would be unsafe, for instance, to accept unreservedly the author's opinions concerning the man whose efforts resulted in a united Italy, or his views regarding the baleful effects on modern progress of the destruction of the temporal power of the Popes. So far as means are available for obtaining trustworthy information there can be little doubt that Victor Emanuel, Cavour, Garibaldi, Mazzini, and many others were true patriots who, whatever their faults, had the good of Italy at heart, and devoted their lives to its attainment. It is certain, too, that a popular vote taken to-day would result in an overwhelming majority in favour of the retention of Rome as the national capital, and the limiting of the Papacy to duties purely spiritual. We are not unaware of the reasons that have been advanced in favour of the supreme Pontiff's claim to the position of a temporal prince; but when the great bulk of Italians, those of the late Papal states among them, reject this claim and demand the right of throwing in their lot with their fellow-countrymen, it is scarcely an answer to this demand to say that the Papal right to govern comes from God, and should not therefore be rejected by men. If the question of Republicanism versus Monarchy arose in the United Kingdom to-morrow, and 600 members pledged to the former system were sent to Westminster to give effect to the popular view, the reliance of the minority on the doctrine of "divine right" would be found of little service. When the time comes—it appears to be on the way—for the masses of the Russian people to demand the substitution of representative for personal rule, Autocracy will have to give way, though its ascription to celestial ordination were never so convincing. Dr. O'Reilly dwells with praiseworthy admiration on the enthusiasm evinced by all the occupants of St. Peter's chair in the cause of the education and the material progress of the masses. Lest we should be misunderstood, we say at once that there is absolutely no reason why nations should not advance as rapidly under the banner of Catholicism as under the ensign of any other faith. Indeed of the six great European powers there are three professedly Catholic. If there are not wanting people to coincide with Mr. Gladstone, in the belief that it would be difficult to point to a spot in Europe where Austrian influence has been for good, such cannot be said regarding the two other great Catholic powers—France and Italy. The former has been in the van of civilisation almost since the Franks swarmed over the Rhine. In fact, a history of Europe without mention of France, would be somewhat like a record of British statesmen during Victoria's reign, with Mr. Gladstone's name omitted. What the world owes to Italy and to Rome it is scarcely necessary at this time of day to dwell upon. But when a writer steps confidently to the front and demands a re-hearing of the "temporal power" case on the plea, among others, that the rule which went under in 1870 had for ages done its best to promote the comfort and enlightenment of its subjects, we are justified in asking "what are the results?" Were the Southern Italians of 1860-70,—the people who received with boundless enthusiasm the advances of Garibaldi and Caveur the people who for ages had been either directly or indirectly under the Papal sway—were they in a position of mental and material advancement when the Piedmontese troops marched into their towns with the news that thenceforth Italy was one and indivisible? Is it not an historical fact established on evidence it would be impertinent to gainsay that they were a backward people and an ignorant—a people a long way behind in all the attributes that the word civilisation conveys to French, German, British, and American ears? The evidence that such was the case is accessible in half-a-dozen European languages. It is evidence not of schismatics alone, but of unprejudiced men who recognised the Pope as their spiritual guide. When Dr. O'Reilly, then, deplores the destruction of the temporal power because of the drawbacks such destruction entails on the people, he should be prepared to show that the long reign of the Pontiffs resulted in the production of an advanced and progressive state. Connected with Rome and her Pontiffs there are two histories that stand out from all others unapproached and, it might almost be said, unapproachable. They are those of the Englishman Gibbons and of the German Von Ranke. It is a novel sensation, that of rising from the book before us and opening the calm, unimpassioned pages of either of the great writers named. It resembles in a measure the sensation experienced on hearing the unbiassed summing-up of an impartial judge after having heard the ex parte address of an acute advocate. With these preliminary remarks we venture to enter on a detailed examination of the book itself.

In the preface will be found the following suggestive statements:—"The life of Leo XIII. has been devoted, next to the divine interests of souls, to the culture and advancement of letters and science. . . . Even those who most differ from Leo XIII. are fain to acknowledge that no other teacher in modern centuries has given utterance to such pregnant, needful, and far-reaching words of inspired wisdom. There are mighty questions threatening the internal peace of the Three Kingdoms, which the far-reaching wisdom of the Head of Christendom and the inviolable sense of justice of the common Parent of Christians can alone solve satisfactorily and once for all." These are comprehensive assertions, and the author need not feel surprised if a certain reluctance should be shown in accepting them. Without desiring to detract from the undoubtedly great merits of the Pontiff's teaching it would be ungrateful to forget the work that has been done and the words of wisdom that have been spoken by European lay thinkers within the last few centuries in the domains of philosophy and science. During the latter years of Pius IX.'s pontificate, the Quirinal, we are told, was occupied by a power "whose policy and principles are more irreconcilable with Catholicism than the policy and principles of Cromwell and his Parliament." For over two centuries the Protector, his Council, and his Ironsides have held their own as the typical enemies of Rome; but it would seem as if the Italians of to-day are bent on disputing with them such an unenviable antagonism. It is to Voltaire and his school that Dr. O'Reilly attributes much of the aggressive latitudinarianism so common among the modern Latin races. "His (Voltaire's) works, in the native French, in excellent translations, and in popular editions, had been sedulously circulated from one end of the Peninsula to the other." Indeed, on M. Aronet Dr. O'Reilly is extremely severe, returning to the subject ever and anon as opportunity offers. His estimate of the brilliant Frenchman, the promulgator of the famous or infamous "Ecrasez l'Infâme," is widely different from that left on record by the English Buckle. This is not a matter for surprise. Have we not Macaulay's testimony that, for terrible destructiveness, nothing ever equalled the mockery of Voltaire? And when it is remembered how persistently the shafts of that blighting irony were hurled in one direction, why wonder that the Vatican should continue to regard the hermit of Ferney as its Anti-Christ? It was on March 2, 1810, that Joachim Vincent Raphael Lodovico Pecci (Leo XIII.) was born in the small town of Carpineto, near Velletri, in the province of Rome. His parents were noble. His education commenced at the age of eight at the recently-opened Jesuit college in Viterbo. By 12 he appears to have acquired a highly-cultivated taste in Latin prose and verse, and so was chosen to compose in that tongue a short metrical welcome to a distinguished visitor. So closely allied are the Latin and Italian languages that the person who has learnt one has half learnt the other. The years of dreary drudgery to which English and German lads have to submit before they can hope for a fair acquaintance with the tongue of Horace and Cicero will be remembered by many. It is when dealing with the early years of Joachim Pecci that Dr. O'Reilly occasionally pauses to reflect as follows:—"God . . caused the Napoleonic Empire suddenly to fall and vanish like a splendid dream, and Pius VII. returned to his people. . . . So must it befall sooner or later any earthly power which attempts to incorporate with its dominions the Principality created by Providence and the accord of Christian nations to secure to the Papacy not only perfect freedom in the discharge of its divinely-appointed office, but the indispensable means for fulfilling it. . . Amid the chant of penitential psalms and prayers, the Common Father of Christendom (Leo XII.) taught his people how to turn away the Divine anger from the earth." But there are those who aver that the collapse of the First French Empire was largely owing to the winter of 1812, supplemented by Russian, German, Austrian, and British bayonets.

Having chosen the Church for his vocation, it is interesting to glance at the training to which the promising young novice was subjected, particularly with regard to the most efficient weapons to use against error. For instance: "Four of the cleverest academicians prepared, each on a given line of argument, the most knotty difficulties found against the supernatural order by science, rationalism, materialism; against the Catholic Church by Lutherans, Jansenists, Rationalists, or Cæsarists. The person chosen on both occasions to expose the doctrines of Revelation, and to detect and refute all possible objections, was Pecci." The details of the controversy are not given, but the assumption is permissible that the errors espoused by the disciples of the foregoing schisms were skilfully exposed. The future Pontiff was but 28 when he was appointed Governor of the Province of Benevento by Gregory XVI. He had scarcely arrived at his charge when he was prostrated by an attack of typhoid fever. It was then that, according to the author, "he seemed to them (the people of Benevento) an angel sent to heal all their public ills, and about to be suddenly taken from them in punishment of their own evil doings." Again:—"The plague has committed fearful ravages in Naples and its environs, but spared Benevento."

At page 109 occurs a sentence which deserves to be rescued from its rather prosaic surroundings, partly by reason of its intrinsic verity and partly because it is so frequently overlooked:—"The political quacks who think that the constitutional forms which suit the English race at home or in the United States ought also to suit Belgium, or France, or Spain, or Italy, forget that the institutions of a country are the natural growth and outcome of a people's habits and social life." This is intrinsically and eternally true. The form of government admirably adapted for the people among whom it took its rise may work the greatest mischief when transplanted. Thus, when Dr. O'Reilly escapes from his rather sombre speculations on the probable result of the Piedmontese raid on Rome, he becomes an acute observer and a trustworthy guide. To foreigners the unwritten and cumbrous British Constitution appears a marvel of contrarieties, while to the Briton it seems the true standard of national freedom. At page 113 the author speaks of Rome as the "historic centre of art, culture, science, and letters." It is doubtful, however, whether the literary and scientific centres of gravity have not long since travelled far from the Eternal City. Certain it is that few if any of the great modern theories which have changed the currents of men's thoughts and lives took their rise by the Tiber. At page 116 we get:—"In 1789, just as the Estates-General of France were doing their work of social destruction in liberalising the kingdom of St. Louis, &c., &c." It may be that the sans culottes of a hundred years ago were not studiously gentle; but the reader acquainted with the abject condition to which the mad ambition of the Bourbons had reduced the French lower classes—acquainted with the terrible pictures of squalor and suffering to be found in dozens of 17th and 18th century French memoirs—such a reader will be apt to admit that the France of 1789 was in sore need of a change. That change came with a vengeance; but those who deprecate its nature should at least remember the violence of the disease.

In 1843 Joachim Pecci became titular Archbishop of Damietta, and was sent as Papal Nuncio to Brussels. Three years he remained at the Belgian capital, where he won golden opinions for his great tact and clear judgment in State affairs. "At the joint solicitation of the King (Leopold) and his confidential adviser, Baron Stockmar, the Roman prelate consented to visit London." He remained a month in England, where he was received at the Court of St. James as the Belgian king's friend. In London he renewed his acquaintance with Cardinal Wiseman, whom he had previously met in Rome. Dr. Wiseman, according to the author, was "foremost in all learning, secular and divine." If we might venture to point out shortcoming in the work before us, it is this tendency to hyperbole which peeps from so many pages. It was said of the Duke of Wellington that, whenever he rose in the House of Lords to propose a vote of thanks to the army for some successful operations in India, he invariably described the officer in command of the victorious force as a strategist of the first order. A somewhat similar characteristic is observable in Dr. O'Reilly's valuable book. On his return from London and Paris Archbishop Pecci entered on the duties of his office as Bishop of Perugia and for the long period of 32 years laboured with exemplary zeal to educate his flock and shield them from the subversive doctrines of the building up of Italian unity and the breaking down of the Papal temporal rule. But the doctrines were too firmly rooted, too alluring to be easily eradicated. His first care was to provide for the education of the clergy, then for that of the upper classes, "knowing as he did that education, like all mighty influences for good or evil, spreads from above downward, from the leading classes to the masses of the people." A note at page 152 throws some light, all unknown to the author, on the failure of many ecclesiastics to grasp the situation. Thus "Cardinal Pecci's purpose was to demonstrate that all the discoveries and investigations of the ripest and most careful modern science could and should be examined and judged in the light of the sound Christian philosophy of Thomas Aquinas." It is not too much to say that modern science has long escaped from such leading-strings, and that nineteenth-century scientists would be apt to treat such a claim with derision. Again and again this peculiarity strikes the reader, i.e., that cultivated, zealous, and far-seeing as author and subject appear to be, they fail to see how far and fast society is travelling, whether for good or evil—how idle the attempt to say "thus far and no further." To British, Australian, and American citizens the desire of Italy for unity appears a very natural and commendable one. To Dr. O'Reilly it is "the long and relentless warfare begun against the Church, religion, and society." And what are the means of combating these revolutionary desires? Inter alia to have "catechism classes in the afternoons for adults." This, while the Piedmontese were thundering at the gates of Rome and Europe looking unconcernedly on.

The author speaks of "Victor Emanuel, or rather the man who ruled and used him." Cavour is of course meant, but some lately-published German memoirs, by one who had both the opportunity and the ability to judge, say prettily plainly that whichever was the tool it was not the king. Regarding a great dearth in Perugia we find,—"To this were added earthquakes . . . as if the divine anger were about to let loose all its plagues against an ungrateful and guilty country." Long before he reached the Papal chair Cardinal Pecci distinguished himself by his fine remonstrances against the doings of the wicked Italian monarch. When spiritualism and table-turning were leading many astray, he issued a pastoral on "The Abuses of Magnetism." At the Cardinal's silver jubilee some quaint prayers for his welfare were offered up in Perugia. There is one in particular to St. Lawrence. A footnote at page 268 says that the saint was treasurer of a church, and met martyrdom by being roasted on a gridiron. The supplication says "Grant him that strength with which thou didst appal thy executioners whilst consumed by the slow tortures of thy red-hot gridiron, &c." At last the time came when the patient and heroic Pius IX. obtained the peace so long denied him in distracted Italy, and Cardinal Pecci was called to the Papal chair. There is a long, minute, and most interesting account of his election, and the precautions taken to ensure secrecy. Some of the methods employed by the Italian Government to discourage the visits of pilgrims to Rome at this period were ingenious. Fifteen hundred Spaniards set out from Barcelona to spend the feast of St. Teresa (October 15) in Rome, but the wily Italians kept them four days in quarantine in the bay of Civita Vecchia, so that the poor devotees only reached the Eternal City on the 17th, two days after the conclusion of the feast. The remainder of Dr. O'Reilly's book is devoted to the actions of Leo XIII. since he became supreme Pontiff. That he has conducted the affairs of the Holy See with consummate skill is the opinion of all who have had the time and have taken the trouble to follow the fortunes of the Vatican since the death of Pio Nono.

MAGAZINES AND REVIEWS FOR OCTOBER.

SECOND NOTICE.

The Contemporary Review, which, as usual, comes late to hand, is a solid, and on the whole satisfactory, number. It contains an admirable paper on the late Michael Katkoff, editor of the Moscow Gazette, written by "An English Resident in Russia." Unfortunately a great deal of what appears as news and comment in British journals and reviews on the subject of the empire of the Czar is a mixture of libel and prejudice; but the English resident is manifestly master of his facts, and is entirely right in averring that the first or studious and scholarly part of Katkoff's life was spent in the cause of political, social, and religious liberty, and in not unsuccessful efforts to better the lot of his fellow countrymen; whereas, the second and more active part, during which he enjoyed vast powers, both for good and evil, was misused in undoing and in attempting to obliterate the more praiseworthy efforts of his youth and early manhood. By those who know Russia, and the workings of Russian domestic policy, that verdict will be assented to without demur. Dr. W. Robertson Smith's contentious essay on the "Archæology and Date of the Pentateuch" endeavours, of course, to throw discredit on the historical veracity of the Bible narrative. There can be no great harm in Dr. Robertson Smith, in his capacity of Biblical critic, running a tilt at Mr Poole, in that gentleman's role of Egyptiologist. Yet, after all is said, but little is disproved, and the story of Joseph and the narrative of the Exodus remain impregnable, if not impugnable. Mr. H. D. Traill contributes a paper called "In Praise of the Country," chiefly remarkable for ignoring its subject, otherwise than of reference to the valuable life-work of the lately-deceased Mr. Richard Jefferies. Mr. Traill contends that if an author cannot live by his books he must eke out a livelihood by writing for the newspapers. Now, that is exactly what poor Jefferies attempted, and what Mr. Traill himself succeeds in doing. The author of "The New Lucian" makes the pot boil with regularly supplied, well-paid "leaders" in the Daily Telegraph, whereas Richard Jefferies was always a free lance, and really never buckled to the more onerous work of the daily newspaper press. Professor Freeman gossips on "Literature and Language," and Professor Goldwin Smith settles in his own mind "The Railway Question in Manitoba," much as the learned gentleman would settle, if necessary, whatsoever question might arise on the earth or under it, or in the heavens above. Nor must omission be made of the heavy artillery of the Honorable David A. Wells's jeremiad on "The Fall of Prices."

In the Fortnightly Review—assumed to be the great rival of the Contemporary—the owners of several well-known names appeal for a hearing, and, presumably, for our admiration. Professor Dowden, an admitted authority on Shelley and Shelleyans, defends himself against the critics and censors of his life of the poet; who complain that he has nowhere attempted to give a general view or estimate of the character of the author of "The Skylark." Mr. Dowden now says, once for all, that his reserve in that respect was intentional, "right and wise." Having declared so much, it should not be a matter of surprise to find that the professor proceeds to rectify his omission in about a score of pages of interesting matter. We have likewise a paper from Mrs. Lynn E. Linton, on "The Women of Chivalry," only less like a historical catalogue resumé than that lady's Roman matron of the previous month. Mr. Charles Roberts has his say on the physical condition of the masses; and Mr. W. H. Mallock treats a cognate subject, "The Wealth of the Working Classes." Mr. Charles Roberts frankly confesses that it is very difficult to say whether the health and physique of the common people is improving or the reverse; at the same time, he insists on the necessity of giving more time and attention to teaching calisthenics in schools. And Mr. Mallock in this, but one of a series of articles on kindred subjects, tries to prove that the future wealth of the "horney-handed sons of toil" will depend on better technical teaching and a more generous diet than are at present within their reach. Mr. Andrew Lang, always elegant and erudite, chats pleasantly on "Byways of Greek Song." And "Pascal the Sceptic," by Mr. W. L. Courtney, and "The Story of Tonga," by Mr. Coutts Trotter, help to swell Mr. Frank Harris's budget of popular reading, issued monthly, at what should be the fairly remunerative price of half-a-crown. Mr. Coutts Trotter points out that the claims of the Western Pacific islands on public attention at home are very large, first, by increased facilities of communication, and secondly, by "the great and natural interest felt in their future by our Australian kinsmen." Moreover, he suggests that we, in the mother country, should accept the position which circumstances have appointed for us, and send out a capable man as "Resident." That, he says, would be of all plans the most likely to ensure "the welfare of an interesting and much-tried people, who have long put their trust in us."

Of the collective contributors to the October number of the Westminster Review it may be fairly said that all of them write wisely, but none of them write well. "How the Union of Ireland and Great Britain was Effected" is full of facts, but unpleasantly resembles those historical epitomes which are served up in "series" form, for the use of schools. "The Changing Status of Women" discusses the proud position of the ladies in days when polygandy was ye. an institution, their snubbed insignificence when absorbed into the bosom of the Hegan family, and their present high hopes and masculine aspirations. The article ought to be readable, but it is not. "An American Freetrader" writes exhaustively of "The Freetrade Struggle in America;" and an enthusiast loudly blows the trumpet of Mr. T. Hall Caine, the accomplished author of "A Son of Hagar" and "The Shadow of a Crime." "A Decade of American Journalism" chronicles the rize of the New York World after its purchase from Jay Gould by Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, and the effect of the success of this "new journalism" on the methods of its old-established rivals. The question, "Are we educating our children?" is debated drily, and decided in the negative. The naive unconventionality of American women is dealt with under the heading of "The Queen's Rebel Subjects," and Mr. Edmund R. Clay laboriously fights the battle of the soul against the psychologists.

To Australian readers the article of the month is indubitably "Our First Amphictyonic Council," in the National Review. Under this fanciful title Mr. William Greswell writes of the Colonial Conference held in London, in the month of April of this year, at the initiative of Lord Salisbury, and under the presidency of Sir Henry Holland, the present Secretary of State for the Colonies. The article is throughout business-like and to the point. Mr. Greswell allows himself no rhetorical liberties in praise of Imperial federations, and indulges in no wild speculations as to the future possibilities of the Empire. His method is historical rather than critical, and the object he sets before him is to show in the first place how the Colonial Conference came to be held, and secondly, what was said and done by the assembled delegates. Imperial federation, Mr. Greswell insists, was a topic studiously omitted—as at present unripe for profitable discussion, and the points on which colonial suggestion and advice were sought were mainly Imperial defence and Imperial inter-communication. On the subject of Imperial defence Mr. Greville writes at some considerable length, estimating the defensive force, more particularly of Canada and the Cape Colonies, pointing out the immediate necessity of fortifying Table Bay, Simon's Bay, King George's Sound, and Thursday Island, and drawing attention to the strategical significance of the railway connecting Halifax and Vancouver, in the deplorable event of a Russian war. As might have been expected, Mr. Greswell cannot resist congratulating both the country and the colonies on the fact that the first of our "Amphictyonic Councils" should have been held under the auspices of the Conservative party. Alike in South Africa and Australia, he urges, the keenest dissatisfaction had been felt with the policy of Lords Granville, Kimberley, and Derby, and colonists were for the most part ill-disposed to meet the Liberal party in amicable conference. On the matter of the fiscal regulations, which may, perhaps, be the ultimate outcome of such councils, Mr. Greswell does not express himself altogether with precision. Probably he would give his adherence to the sentiment which he quotes at the end of his paper, from the speech of Sir Charles Tupper on the Canadian Budget. "The commercial policy which gives perfect freedom of action to every quarter of the Empire in its own internal arrangement, and which at the same time offers a united front against the commercial invasion of foreign countries, is a policy which will have to be considered one day very carefully in this country." None of the other papers are particularly interesting. Mr. C. A. Whitmore, M.P., pleads that the session of 1887 has not been unfruitful, and Dr. T. M. Fothergill discourses, in an alarming strain, on the effect of town life and habits on the human body. Lord Penzance once more argues eagerly, if not eloquently, for a return to protective tariffs, and Mr. F. T. Palgrave, professor of poetry in the University of Oxford, reproduces a lecture on "Poetry and the other fine arts," originally delivered in the theatre of the University Museum. There are also some graceful verses contributed by Mr. Leonard Huxley—the accomplished son of the distinguished professor, who once confided to the assembled British Association that he would rather be descended from an ape than from a bishop.

"Murray's Magazine" still maintains a high standard of excellence, and combines the instructive with the amusing in suitable proportions. The serial story—"Major Lawrence, F.L.S." by the Hon. Emily Lawless—draws near an end. Mr. Stephen Thompson, writing of "A Hot-Wind Day in Australia," chats cheerily and with familiar intimacy sprung from painful experience of the "brickfielders," and their effect on the physiognomy of unfortunate wayfarers and the temper of irascible editors. He refuses, however, his adherence to the theory that they have a tendency to asphyxiate fever germs. "A Royal and Ancient Game," by Mr. Horace G. Hutchinson, is a sympathetic exposition of that popular amusement, golf. Lady Macdonald contributes the first of two articles descriptive of salmon-fishing on the Canadian river Restigouche. "My Advertisement," by Mr. Paul Cushing—a short story—is perhaps the most amusing feuilleton that has appeared this month. The author of "John Halifax Gentleman" tells the story of the Crystal Palace, at Sydenham, and pleads hard for some capitalist or philanthropist to save the company from imminent bankruptcy. "Some Odd Numbers," an anonymous article, is concerned with Leigh Hunt's London Journal, a short-lived periodical, to which Keats contributed his exquisite "Eve of St. Agnes." "Scarlet Fever in the Metropolis" is the subject of a business-like paper by Mr. W. M. Acworth, a manager of the Metropolitan Asylums Board, who points out, fairly and lucidly, the duties and deficiencies of that important organisation. "Sermons" are dealt with by Mr. H. C. Benson, who takes the sensible view that if applause were permitted in the buildings of the Church of England the average preacher would have no reason to anticipate frequent interruptions. The Rev. H. D. Rawnsley sends a translation of a sonnet by a Japanese gentleman. It is difficult to criticise what it is impossible to understand, and every reader must form his own opinion of this very singular piece of verse. The periodicals of the Religious Tract Society are, this month, of very uneven excellence. The literary merits, for example, of the Leisure Hour are not considerable. An exhaustive account of the Hessian fly, and its habits, is the best paper; the worst is a sketch of Queen Anne's days, by Dr. John Stoughton, who is far too painfully anxious to write down to the mental calibre of readers less intelligent than himself. Mr. Charles Mackay—author of "Cheer Boys Cheer," contributes a song for a self-conscious "intending emigrant." Sunday at Home is better, containing, among other articles of interest, a paper by Mrs. Brewer, describing the children's hospitals at Great Ormond-street, Finsbury, and Shadwell. Better still is the Girls' Own Paper, in which Madame Lemmens-Sherrington writes "On Learning to Sing," and the Rev. J. G. Wood on "The Brook and its Banks," each with the authority born of special knowledge. There is also a charming poem, gracefully translated from the German by Miss Clara Thwaites; and a description of "Our Tour in North Italy," by Two London Bachelors, who "cannot resist quoting some verses," a great deal oftener than they need. But best of all is the Boys' Own Paper, in which the piece de resistance is a serial story by Commander V. Lovett Cameron, while the short articles on mining, mountaineering, railway accidents, and other subjects of interest to boys, are excellent of their kind.

And finally, the Naval and Military Magazine contains many able articles from the pens of specialists. Mr. Charles Marvin writes of the Afghan frontier, and the Hon. Henry N. Shore of the Great Wall of China. Lieutenant-Colonel L'Estrange continues his estimate of the influence of General Boulanger, and Mr. L. H. Smith commences a series of papers on "Shiplaunching."

TWO DAYS IN CHINA.

II.

The tide turns early in the morning (say), which is the pleasantest time at this hot season, and we will eat our breakfast as we go up to the town. Now we will make acquaintance with another Chinese institution—the sampan. The English, after the fashion of such popular adaptive absurdities, in the way of phraseology, as "rosemary" from ros marinus, or "beefeaters" from "buffetiers," shie at the name and transform it into "sand pan." The idea of a flat-bottomed, heavy, unwieldy, shallow water "crawler," which this name would convey, is unjust. The sampan differs locally. It is larger and stronger in proportion to the distances it has to do, and the requirements of wind and wave; but, as a general rule, the sampan of the north is as much sturdier and, we may add, cleaner than that of the south, as are its respective owners and inhabitants.

It is a long thin boat, decked in the fore part, and with a movable mast. Towards the aft there is a seat running round after the fashion of a stern-seat in an ordinary rowing boat. This is for the passenger or passengers, and is roofed in with a round awning of light coloured woodwork. Behind this again (I speak here of the min sampans only) is another small deck, capable of holding a rower, or perhaps a couple of rowers, and the steerer. The min rowing is done standing up, face forward. The oars are large and clumsy, thin-bladed, and working with no more rowlock than a notched up-right and a piece of thin rope. The stroke is jerky and irregular, all the force being put into the first part of it. The long sweeps on the cargo boats and junks are made of two pieces, and the stroke has two separate jerks in it—one at the beginning and the other at the close. The work done is not either so much mere arm work, or so wasteful, as one would have expected. In the Hongkong harbour sampans, on the contrary, the rowing is done facing backwards; is almost entirely arm-work, and shows an expenditure of force by no means realised in its propulsion of the boat. The sampan is the home. Here the cooking is done, boiled rice with vegetables sliced into a stew, and pickles as a relish; while in the little hold grandfather and grandmother, son and daughter-in-law, and children, all pack themselves away from the bleak winter nights. The Chinese poor have, on the whole, a superior sense of order, ornamentation, and at least superficial cleanliness to their European fellows. Some of the southern sampans I found rather frowsy, but the min ones I always found scrupulously clean; a piece of bright cloth laid coquettishly on the seat, and the little religious arrangements under the awning showing both care and taste. These said arrangements differ in detail, but all unite in the sacred matches, slow burning spills of coloured brown paper in appearance, which are purchased at the Temples only, and are burnt in the evening as a sort of "Ave Maria" for the close of toil. In the streets in the evenings these may be seen smoking themselves away in little niches cut low down by the ground, just like the niches for saints in Roman Catholic countries. The idea that the Chinese as a nation are materialists is a mistake. The belief of a future state, of rewards and punishments, for those whose relations, "pijin" or otherwise ("pidgen English" means "pijin" or "business English") have been honest and good or the reverse, seems universal.

Let us descend into our sampan, which is waiting for us at the foot of the gangway, and take our seats. Breakfast, done up in a hamper, follows, with a pleasant reminder of picnics, and we drop through the crowd of sampans which gathers round every steamer like a swarm of flies round a piece of meat. The wind is slightly against us, so it is a case of rowing all the way. The rowers take their places, three in front and two behind, the steerer also handling an oar. The front rower is a vigorous young fellow, the son of the old woman who owns the sampan, the steerer. Next to him comes another young fellow, smaller but vigorous, pulling the stroke-side oar. This is the old woman's nephew, and behind him, pulling the third and bow-side oar, is his wife, a plump young woman with reliable muscles. Presently their little girl joins the father at his oar, but cannot do much, and goes forward and lies in the prow. The other rower in the stern is a girl of 14 or 15, the old lady's daughter, and she works on steadily. They row well together, advancing and drawing back the foot with each stroke, and the boat surges forward at their jerk. We have one other Chinese fellow-passenger. It is a fat almond-eyed baby of two or three years, squatted by the old lady, solemnly considering us, finger in mouth, but the moment it catches our eyes on it, turning its face round to the side of the awning, and only returning to its inspection of these two remarkable "foreign devils" when it feels it is unobserved. ("Foreign devils," be it remarked, is the not unmerited inevitable phrase for us. Round the fat little half-nude body is attached a piece of thin rope with a small block of wood at the end, whereby, as I guess, the more immediate locality of the creature may be apparent should it fall into the water. Beside the sacred matches hangs a small bottle of white glass full of water, and pinned behind it is a piece of Japanese newspaper with illustrated advertisements.

Could anything be more charming than such a progress up such a river? The early morning—the delicious breeze—the pale green gardened hills, cast back further by the verdant haze—above us, the pale blue sky, untouched by clouds, utterly still, save for the slow-wheeling brown hawks whose shadows race over the flashing water. Here and there the low-lying land is made bright by fields of paddy. An occasional cargo boat lies by the banks, or a great junk with grotesque paintings all over it, wallows, drifting uncertainly, while the crew tug at the sweeps:—

"Up in the misty morning,
Up past the gardened hills,
With the rhythmic stroke of the rowers,
While the blue deep pales and thrills!

"Past the rice fields green, low lying,
Where the sea gull's winging down,
Run the fleets of junks and sampans,
And the ancient Chinese town."

That is indeed the first actual portion of the town which we come upon—the fleets of junks and sampans. The river has broadened and shallowed, and on the left side (where the town begins) seeds grow up on the outside of the channel. This also is the European quarter, and the inevitable British structures, whose hideousness is their glory, are to hand to warn us that our countrymen are the chief inhabitants here. We thread through the maze of boats, almost all of which are adorned on their tops with pots, holding plants in full flower—little gardens that take one back to youthful days in Paris, and the Vie de Botiens poor Henri Murger has painted in imperishable colours of laughter and tears. Mimi and Musette had little gardens like these; and where are Mimi and Musette now—our Mimi and Musette? What a thought to land on a Foochow stone pier with! But human nature changes not with clime and tongues, and doubtless there are Mimis and Musettes all over the world, or it would be an even more unendurable place than it is. guided by the sapient-looking (but, in reality, considerably stupid) nephew, we set off through the labyrinthine streets to the one hotel Foochow is aware of. The streets are from three to four yards wide, which has the present advantage of keeping out the blazing sunlight, and, when the pitiless Siberian winter winds blow down over these mountainless coastal tracts, this narrowness may not be without its advantages here also. But no one who has not suffered can imagine the infinite variety and intensity of odours which pervade these angiportus, to use the expressive Latin term, "alleys," as we should say. Coleridge tells us he counted 72 stenches, "all well defined, and several stinks," in Cologne. How many could that discriminating proboscis have discerned in Foo-chow? And O, how many more than many in Canton? There had been heavy and unexpected rains before I arrived in the former, and reliable authorities spoke of the streets—one being far better than usual, and really when I come to think of it I must lay my hand on my heart, and declare that it was not worse than are many parts of Sydney at a corresponding period of the year. On our road to the hotel, however, which we had to find ourselves, owing to the complete collapse of the nephew, we were mostly in the streets of the European quarter — and that meant in the full fervour of the devouring sunlight—and it was not till after lunch at the hotel, and four cups of the best tea I have drunk since I left England (the Australians brew the worst tea in the world), that I set off in a chair to go right through the city. Chairs, which, together with the fleeter "rickshaw"—a light two-wheeled affair drawn by a man in front—swarm in Hongkong, are rare in Foochow, almost all that are in use belonging to private individuals.

The "chair" is a conveyance for one, slung upon two poles, and carried by two, three, or four men, according to necessity, and it has a movable awning. It is fairly comfortable, and certainly the best thing to hand on an occasion like this. The streets we are about to traverse are the business thoroughfares. The town is divided into two parts by a bridge, or rather two bridges leading into one another, and the original settlement is on the farther side. We pass out of the bright blinding sunshine and the whirling song of the cicada (which, as the author of "Ecclesiastes" has told us, is "a burthen," into the narrow, shaded, malodorous alleys. They seem like fissures in a vast mass of buildings, galleries in an ant-hill. To right and left, all along, are the open shops—open, that is, right back. The Chinese everywhere live in public. The idea of privacy seems unknown to them. They saunter in and out of one another's houses quite casually, and, if you do the same, you will elicit little curiosity and less surprise. At the present season almost all the men are stripped to the waist, and the brown, bare bodies harmonise with the colours of the shops and the wares. There is every species of shop, and all are tastefully arranged. Even the hideous British Brummagem articles, which have flooded all the East, are disposed as advantageously as possible. Everybody is at his ease; everybody has plenty of time. The long procession of passers moves with complete leisure. Here and there, it is true, the coolies ("coolie" is the generic term in the East for labourers), carrying heavy burdens, advance at their unvarying jog trot, grunting out their call of warning to those in the way. They are quite unceremonious. If you do not move you are run into, and the right of the burdened to take the pavement seems justly uncontested. The infinite motleyness of the scene! The streets are like one long bazaar. The faces are more contented, infinitely more contented, than those in European or American streets. The proportion of fat people is large. The old seemed cared for. The only piteous sight of overwork is some broken-down coolie, moaning out a grunt at every step of his toil. Curs, gaunt and utterly mangy, stroll about with a self-possession that is admirable. Little boys and girls, genuine almond eyes, carrying a fish on a string (paper for purchases is rare), or a bunch of delicious lye-chees or other fruit, proceed in their unconcerned way. Here a group of boys are at marbles, shooting the marble from the end of the middle finger, drawn back like a catapult. There is no seclusion of the women, who walk about unconstrainedly enough. A few with the cramped pig-feet, esteemed a sign of refinement, totter helplessly along or sit on doorsteps. On the bridges, which are exceedingly old, and erected on the perpendicular and horizontal system out of big blocks of stone, there is a row of hucksters' booths with little awnings. There sits an old man, and a child of four or five is examining his head with the gravity of a monkey engaged with a similar purpose. No one heeds. Right in the old town a European attracts wonderfully little attention. It is all like a phantasmagoria of strange colours and shapes. It is quite new in its characterisation. The impulse to turn back on one's self and ask, "What does it all mean?" is irresistible. Neither books nor pictures ever give one the real idea, the real feeling, of all this. We can imagine some cultured Chinese or Japanese making the same remark after he had driven through London. Both are life, the stream of life; but consider how widely different are the aspects of it—how feeble is the realisation one should have of Thames and Amazon by explaining that they were both examples of running water. But this is not the place to discuss the meaning of our picture. We have only to paint it: to show the progress up the river and through the town; to bring the mind, as it were, into contact with this mass of form and colour; to try and render again the real idea, the real feeling of it all. If that has been achieved, then our two days in China have been well spent.

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

The SPEAKER took the chair at half-past 3 o'clock.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Mr. ABIGAIL, in reply to Mr. F. Farnell for Mr. Abbott, said the soakage water at Broken Hill would last about three months. 10,000 gallons per day of what was considered to be drinkable water was running to waste from the Victoria Cross mine. An officer of the Public Works Department had recommended that it be drawn into a small excavated receiving tank, with a M'Comas's hand-lift erected over it to fill water-carts. He had found what he thought would make a good site for tank and dam within a mile and a-half of Broken Hill.

Mr. GARRETT, in reply to Mr. Dangar, said that nothing had yet been decided relative to selling the several stock reserves situated on the travelling stock road from Jerry's Plains, via Bulga, to Homebush.

Mr. W. CLARKE, in reply to Mr. F. Farnell for Mr. Ewing, said that he would consider, as soon as practicable, the question of the permanent appointment of all members of licensing courts.

Sir HENRY PARKES, in reply to Mr. F. Farnell, said that in connection with the celebration of the centenary of the colony the Government did not intend to release short-sentenced prisoners.

Mr. BURNS, in reply to Mr. F. Farnell, said that the pilot at the Richmond River could exercise control over the tug service, as was set out in the conditions of contract for the service.

Mr. BURNS, in reply to Mr. Lakeman, said that no application had been made to the Railway Department by Messrs. P. B. Terry and Co., of Hay, for the value of goods burned at the railway accident at Petersham. The department did not admit any liability for loss through that accident.

Mr. ABIGAIL, in reply to Mr. F. Farnell for Mr. Chanter, said that the trustees appointed for the common at Moama were Messrs. E. P. Berryman, G. Redman, J.P., James Malone, J. W. Chanter, and James Carlyon.

Sir HENRY PARKES, in reply to Mr. S. Smith, said that at different interviews with members of the council of the Agricultural Society of New South Wales he had pointed out that the Centennial Exhibition would be likely to receive more éclat if it could be held in January, on account of the numerous visitors who were expected to be in the colony that month, and that he desired the members of the council of the society to consider the circumstances of this exhibition as not for the producers and the produce of this colony alone, but for the producers and the produce of the Australasian colonies, including New Zealand. Beyond expressing that opinion, he had stated that he did not desire to interfere with the judgment and free action of the council of the society, and that he trusted to their knowledge of the subject, and their consideration of the interests involved, to do what was best in their judgment. The answer he received from them was that they felt confident that they could bring about an exhibition in January next which would be in an eminent degree creditable to the colony. If they desired to hold the exhibition in February or March, or even in April, he would raise no objection. At the same time, he considered that, if it could be done in a creditable way, it would be better to do it in January.

Mr. BURNS, in reply to Mr. Trickett, said the scheme for laying pipes in the eastern suburbs, to connect with the main Bondi sewer, was not yet matured, as the dedication of the Lachlan Swamp as a park had caused alterations in the details. When approved, it would be necessary to provide funds by a loan vote for the service, as pipe reticulations were not included in Mr. Clarke's estimate.

Mr. BURNS, in reply to Mr. Taylor for Mr. Hawthorne, said that recently the motor employed in connection with the watering of the tramlines had occasionally been taken off the water service for passenger service. The necessity for so employing this motor would shortly cease. The instructions as to watering were that the lines were to be watered as often as required. It was proposed that, by arrangement with the municipal councils, the streets should be watered by hydrants.

PAPERS.

Mr. BURNS laid on the table a copy of a notification of the resumption of land required in connection with the water supply for the western suburbs, a return showing passenger traffic at each station between Hurstville and Sydney during the past six months, and a copy of conditions for the employment of steam-tugs.

Mr. ROBERTS laid on the table papers on the subject of the proposed reduction of telegraph rates between New South Wales and Queensland.

Mr. W. CLARKE laid on the table a return showing juvenile convictions and committals between 30th June, 1886, and 1st July, 1887.

It was ordered that the documents be printed.

THE TRAMWAY SYSTEM.

Mr. RYRIE called the attention of the Premier to the danger of tram motors passing the crossings of streets without pulling up, and said the practice should be put a stop to.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he had noticed it at different times, and he would make special inquiry into the matter. He would take that opportunity of expressing his opinion that the time had come when they should seek to abolish the existing system of tramways, with a view to introduce a complete system of wire tramways all over the city—(cheers)—especially in view of the excellent system of passenger accommodation in Melbourne, which he thought was equal, if not perhaps superior, to anything of the kind in the world. (Hear, hear.) He had seen trams running in San Francisco, Chicago, and several parts of Europe, and he did not hesitate to say that in many respects the system now in force in Melbourne was superior to any of them. He thought the time had come when with the sanction of the House steps should be taken to convert our unsightly and inconvenient trams into a complete system piercing all the important streets of the city. He had already brought the matter under the notice of the Government, and he was inclined to think it was their duty to ask the House to sanction this important alteration. (Cheers.)

THE CASE OF MR. LEESON.

Mr. HASSALL moved,—"That there be laid upon the table of this House copies of all papers or other documents having reference to the case of Mr. Leeson, of the Telegraph Department."

The motion was agreed to.

THE PARKES TESTIMONIAL.

Mr. MELVILLE said he had received several letters from parents complaining of the teachers of Public schools distributing begging letters and collecting packets to the children, and he asked the Minister of Public Instruction if he would give instructions that it should cease.

Mr. INGLIS said he had already explained that he had no power to do this. It was a purely voluntary proceeding on the part of the teachers. He had refused to give his official sanction to it; but if the teachers chose in the exercise of their rights as private citizens to do this, he could not see that he could do more than he had done. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. MELVILLE: The Minister of Public Instruction knows full well that he can stop it.

Sir HENRY PARKES having asked to see the letter referred to, said he would settle the question, because he would give directions that the children should have them no further. (Hear, hear.)

SUPPRESSION OF PRIVATE BARS.

Mr. HENSON moved,—"That, in the opinion of this House, the private bar system in connection with public-houses is an evil the Government should at once take steps to suppress." He said that these private bars had become a public scandal, and, being as well contrary to the spirit of the law, they ought no longer to be allowed to exist. When a public-house of over 20 rooms was being built plans had to be exhibited, and these showed only one bar; but, instead of that, they found that in some cases there were a number of private bars added to it. In reply to a question he asked on October 10, the Colonial Secretary stated that there were within the city of Sydney 502 licensed public-houses, 77 of which had private bars independent of the bars known as the public bars; 59 had one, 14 had two, two had three, one had four, and one had five bars. In these you paid 6d. for the same quality and kind of drink you got in the public bar for 3d. [Several Members: Oh, no.] Hon. members seemed to know a good deal more about these bars than he did, and he would be very sorry to say he knew as much. Such a state of things was never contemplated when the Licensing Act of 1881 was passed, and it seemed to him very strange that the Licensing bench could not do what any publican could do, and that was let out any room in his house as a private bar. The evidence taken before the Royal Commission was so decidedly condemnatory of private bars that it ought not to be necessary to adduce any other testimony to lead to their abolition. He quoted from the evidence given by Inspectors Anderson, Mackay, and Lenthall, Mr. Toohey, and others relative to private bars. The testimony of Mr. Anderson was to the effect that private bars did more harm than Sunday selling—he had seen men and women behaving disgracefully in places connected with them—and that the women in them were not always of the best character. Mr. Lenthall stated that there were in 1886 about 35 private bars in the city, principally kept by women; these women had a fast appearance, but were not known to the police as prostitutes; he was of opinion that these bars when kept by women were decidedly objectionable; they ought to be abolished. It was no wonder we had so much ruffianism and larrikinism. The existence of private bars was a public scandal, and their continuance would be a degradation to the community. Why should publicans be allowed to create private bars which, according to the evidence, were only brothels? He contended that the fact that there were in existence in connection with one hotel no less than five private bars showed that the business which supported them was not a legitimate one. He thought that the people should rise up, and with one voice insist upon the abolition of that evil.

Mr. TONKIN, whilst admitting that there were some private bars which were a disgrace, contended that there were others which were required for the convenience of the public. It was not possible for a publican to retail good spirits—pale brandy, for example—at 3d. a glass. The renting of private bars was illegal, and the parties who infringed the law in this direction could be dealt with in another way. The Licensing Act was stringent enough, and if it was acted up to, hotels would be kept in a respectable manner.

Mr. ALLEN said he thought no member of the House could conscientiously take exception to the resolution. There was plenty of evidence to show that the manner in which these bars were conducted was sufficient to shock the reason of hon. members. It was said that if these bars were closed the public would have no opportunity of getting good liquor; if that was so, it was a disgrace to the colony. The discussion which had taken place showed the absolute necessity for legislation upon the subject.

Mr. TOOHEY said what evidence he gave before the committee he gave conscientiously. As to the statement that the public would not be able to obtain good drink if the private bars were closed he would point out that in this traffic there were qualities of liquor. These bars were established for the purpose of selling the better class of liquor. If these bars were rented or purchased that was a matter which the authorities could deal with, and the police should be forced to take action with regard to it.

Mr. F. FARNELL thought the motion which had been moved was larger in its scope than necessary. The whole private bar system of the public-houses was not open to condemnation, but those establishments which had bars rented in the upper portions of the buildings were open to grave objection. Where the bars were open to the public inspection and the public gaze nothing disreputable occurred; but that could not be said of many of the private bars upstairs. The police, he contended, ought to be more vigilant than they were at present. There were hundreds of places in the city of Sydney where the Licensing Act was defied, and the duty devolved upon the Government to proceed with a searching inquiry. He hoped that inquiry would be made, and that the result of the investigation would lead to the discovery of where the violations of the Licensing Act existed.

Mr. HASSALL thought the matter of private bars should be left to be dealt with in terms of the Licensing Act and the inspectors under it. If that Act were powerless to deal with the question, he failed to see how anything the House could do would suppress the evil. This resolution had been supported by the promoters of the temperance cause, and what giddy boys they must have been in their youth, else how could they have obtained all this knowledge about the matter. If they knew nothing about the places why did they come to try to prove a case upon circumstantial evidence? He would decline to believe all that had been said about the barmaids at the hotels, for many of them were highly respectable, well-conducted young women. He had sometimes visited private bars to have a liquor, but he never saw anything immoral going on there. Although there might be evils in the system, the law should be sufficient to cope with them, and he did not think these private bars should be entirely suppressed, and many respectable young women prevented from getting an honest livelihood.

Mr. LAKEMAN supported the motion, and expressed his belief that it would be well to prohibit the employment of barmaids altogether.

Mr. ABBOTT thought this was a very inopportune time to bring forward the motion, seeing that the Government had stated their intention to introduce a bill to amend the Licensing Act next session. If it were necessary to enforce the resolution by an Act of Parliament the hands of the Government were pretty well full already; and if, on the other hand, there was no necessity for passing an Act, means already existed for having private bars suppressed if they were unlawful. He therefore moved the previous question.

Sir HENRY PARKES hardly thought the hon. member hoped to do more than to obtain an expression of opinion on an abstract question of this kind. He could assure the hon. member that he would to-morrow put himself in communication with the head of the police to see whether more stringent steps should be taken to cure any proved abuse in the present public-house system. That being so, he could not understand what good could arise from carrying the motion to a division. As the Government intended to introduce a bill next session to deal with the licensing question, and after the assurance he had given on this subject, he trusted the hon. member would withdraw the motion.

Mr. MELVILLE said he was surprised that some hon. members should endeavour to cover by a jest or light speaking what every member of the community admitted was a crying evil. Had they nothing better to offer the honest young women of Sydney than to become barmaids? If no hon. member would approve of his daughter entering that occupation, they ought not to afford an opportunity to any other young woman to engage in such a dangerous and immoral employment. The hon. member spoke very strongly against the employment of women as barmaids, and in favour of the suppression of private bars, which, he said, were the means of ruining many of them.

Mr. MARTIN said, although he was a drinker, he admitted that the curse of the British nation was drink, and he would to-morrow stand at the head of a crusade in the interests of the British nation and of Christianity, to exterminate the liquor traffic. He would give £50 to anyone who could prove that he had ever been drunk. (Laughter.) He looked upon the private bars, as a general rule, as being places of the most immoral description; and they should be suppressed accordingly. In San Francisco, which was a hell upon earth with respect to its drinking saloons, they had the modesty not to employ females. He protested against private bars, and against women being employed in bars. Private bars were places which were used to bring about the ruin of young women, and the sooner they got rid of those places the better.

Mr. FOSTER thought it might be said that after the speech of the Premier the object of that resolution had been accomplished. Two bars in one public-house was simply a fraud upon the public. The bar of a public-house was a place where everyone who conducted himself properly should go for his liquor, and if he did not choose to do that, then he might be served in a parlour. The private bar was, in his opinion, an excrescence upon the licensing system.

Mr. O'CONNOR held that a private bar in an hotel was absolutely necessary, and submitted that if the advocates of the abolition of private bars carried their logic to a legitimate conclusion, they would have but one class of carriage on the railways. It would be a piece of injustice to abolish private bars altogether, and that was a specimen of injustice which people who never went into public-houses at all wished to have sanctioned. The resolution was altogether unnecessary.

Mr. ABIGAIL said he had never expressed any intention of trying to prevent women from acting in the capacity of barmaids, and with regard to the liquor trade there were no doubt as good men in it as in any other. The system of letting up-stairs bars, as shown in the evidence given before the Drink Commission, led to disgraceful proceedings which met with the reprobation not only of teetotallers but of every respectable publican. (Hear, hear.) There were hotelkeepers who were performing in the best possible manner all the duties of citizenship; but when from £10 to £20 a week was charged by a landlord for the use of such bars as those referred to, it was only fair to assume that, in order to make them pay, the business carried on was not purely legitimate. The Premier had said he would consult the police and see what could be done to suppress this iniquity. The only way to remove the blot would be to remove such bars altogether.

Mr. HAYNES hoped the mover of the motion would withdraw it, after what had fallen from the Premier. They were now attempting to do in Parliament what the police ought to do by law—but they did not do their duty. He would oppose, most strenuously, any movement having for its object any bar to the employment of women. [Sir HENRY PARKES: Hear, hear.] It was because there were so few ways for women to get a livelihood that they went into the business of barmaids.

Mr. CREER was opposed to the employment of barmaids under any circumstances, and also to the liquor traffic as a whole.

Mr. GARRARD was not in favour of the employment of women in bars, and was opposed to the existence of such a class of bars as that referred to.

Mr. MELVILLE said he had particulars of a bar, together with the name of the publican, &c., where such things as those referred to were carried on to a most unblushing extent.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he should not like it to go forth with regard to the young women of this country that he was opposed to their employment in any honest course of life. He thoroughly believed in the sound policy of teaching our women to protect themselves, and to depend upon themselves, and for that reason he would open any avenue of employment where they could gain an honest livelihood, to save them perhaps from a worse life. He would be sorry to do anything which would narrow the modes of earning money possessed by women, or prevent them from earning the highest wages they could. (Hear, hear.) Many of them perhaps had mothers and sisters to support, while others were left alone in the world, and must earn their living. It was in the interest of civilisation, in the elevation of the character of woman, to teach her to protect herself, to depend upon herself, and fight her own way, that there should be no interference with any honest mode of life she might choose to adopt. (Applause.)

The previous question was then put and passed.

PETITION.

Mr. CREER presented a petition from Dr. Robertson and Mr. R. B. Wallace, of Newcastle, with reference to certain conditional purchases, and moved that it be referred to the committee now sitting on the Conditional Purchases Validating Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

CLAIM OF ISAAC BARCLAY.

Mr. MARTIN moved for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into and report upon the claim of Isaac Barclay, Cambewarra, for compensation for losses sustained by loss in defending his title to land held under Crown grant.

The motion was agreed to.

ADDITIONAL NAVAL FORCE.

Sir HENRY PARKES moved,—"That the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to provide for the payment by the colony of New South Wales of a proportional part of the cost of the establishment and maintenance of an additional naval force, to be employed for the protection of the floating trade in Australasian waters." He said that he thought it would be better if they were to debate the matter on the second reading of the bill, as, if there was to be a discussion now, he was was not prepared to go into committee.

Mr. DIBBS said that he had no objection to the motion being taken as a formal one, and the debate being taken on the second reading.

The House then went into committee, and the Chairman reported the receipt of a message from his Excellency the Governor recommending the expediency of making provision to meet the expenses in connection with the bill.

Sir HENRY PARKES moved that it was expedient to bring in the bill, and in doing so said that he wished to state, as briefly as he could at the present stage, that the object of this bill was to carry out the provisional agreement of the Imperial Conference for increasing the naval strength in these waters. Hon. members would recollect that from time to time he had declined in any way to commit the colony until the Government had had an opportunity of receiving the sanction of the House, and it would also be recollected, as he thought, that the other colonies had, almost without exception, given a conditional approval to the agreement at the time. The House was free at the present moment to take whatever course it chose. It seemed to him, however, in the highest interests of this colony, that we should cordially co-operate with the other colonies in carrying out this agreement for the maintenance of a force which the importance of these great possessions of the Crown, and the very large interests floating upon the ocean in connection with the Australian ports, now rendered absolutely necessary. The expenditure which might be necessary, it had been agreed, should be borne by the respective colonies on the basis of population—that was, in proportion to their importance, and it was provided by the bill that the consent of every one of the colonies should be necessary to validate the enactment. In other words, this bill would depend entirely upon the other colonies also coming into the federal arrangement and paying their proportion.

Mr. HAYNES said that he would like to ascertain what amount of money would be required to meet this expenditure.

Sir HENRY PARKES said that it was hardly fair to ask this question at present, as the House had consented that the debate should take place on the second reading, and that, he considered, would be the more dignified course.

The motion was then agreed to and reported to the House, and the bill was introduced and read the first time.

Mr. DIBBS asked the Premier when he intended to proceed with the debate on this bill.

Mr. COPELAND suggested that it would be a better arrangement to go on with this bill, or some other bill, instead of the Land Bill, as members had not yet had time to master the new clauses in the Land Bill. He would suggest that instead of taking the Land Bill on Wednesday next, the Government should take this, or some other bill.

Sir HENRY PARKES said that he would be willing to take the second reading of this bill on Wednesday, and to postpone the Land Bill until Thursday.

Mr. GARRETT said that in only three respects had any important alterations been made in the new Land Bill. The phraseology had been altered, and consequent alterations had been made on account of the principal alterations referred to. The three principal alterations which had been made in the bill were as follows:—The conditions by which ordinary conditional purchases might be converted into mining conditional purchases were omitted. The non-residential conditional purchase clause was omitted. The new bill also provided for the discontinuance of pastoral leases in the Eastern division after the expiry of the present leases, this was five years from their commencement. There was one other modification of the terms upon which the loans towards the cost of the construction of rabbit-proof fencing would be made.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. MELVILLE rose to draw attention to a statement which had appeared in the Daily Telegraph of that morning, made by Mr. Hugh Taylor, charging the Opposition with having acted by arrangement during the proceedings on the previous evening. He wished to entirely deny this charge.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he might be allowed to say with reference to the unfortunate occurrence of the previous day that he was sure there was no concerted arrangement with regard to the matter. He was free to acknowledge that he did not believe there was any concerted arrangement on either side of the House.

MINING ON CHURCH AND SCHOOL LANDS.

Mr. SPEAKER reported the receipt of a message from his Excellency the Governor recommending the expediency of making provision to meet the expenses of the Mining on Church and School Lands Bill.

The House then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to make better provision for mining on church and school lands.

Mr. INGLIS said it was well known that this matter had already been dealt with by the House, and it would have passed the Upper House also but for some misapprehension on the part of Mr. Darley. He moved that it was expedient to bring in the bill.

Mr. FLETCHER said he should protest against any Minister but the Minister for Mines dealing with lands set apart for mining purposes.

The resolution was passed, reported to the House, and agreed to.

BANKRUPTCY BILL.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Legislative Council's amendments in the Bankruptcy Bill.

Mr. WISE moved that the committee agree to the Legislative Council's amendments in the Bankruptcy Bill from clause 1 to clause 16, inclusive.

The motion was agreed to.

Clause 18, "On the public examination of debtor."

Mr. F. SMITH proposed to amend the clause by reinserting the word "representative," which had been eliminated by the Legislative Council from sub-section 4 of the clause. He said it was patent to the committee what the effect of this amendment was. He considered that a commercial man, who might not have the time to attend an examination meeting himself, should have the opportunity of sending a representative without being forced to employ a professional man. He was asking for this concession in the interests of the general public.

Mr. WANT said he could hardly understand why this word was left in the clause, unless it was done by an oversight. If they allowed that word "representative" to be restored, the effect would be to cause to spring up a class of persons to attend the Court who, having tried for some considerable time, had failed to pass the examinations. That class would be composed of those who were unable to pass the examinations, or had not the pluck to go through with them—a class who would know nothing whatever about their business, and who would be up to all sorts of shady, dirty tricks. They knew the time of the Court was a matter of money to the State; and if the time of the Court was wasted, so also would the money of the Treasury be wasted. The whole work of the Court would be destroyed. If they inserted that word, a shady class of quasi-professional people would crop up to waste the time of the Court.

Mr. DIBBS hoped the House would assert its right to deal with that question, because it was the first step in the direction of legal reform. The will of this House had been set aside by the other Chamber.

Mr. BURNS contended that the alteration made by the Council in no way interfered with the right of any creditor. The insolvent had the option of attending or of sending either his manager, accountant, or clerk. If the House again introduced the word "representative," mere touters at the courts would have the right of audience, and, being actuated by malevolence, might attend a court to not only waste time but to annoy an insolvent.

Mr. GARRARD thought that was a serious inroad by the Council upon a determination of the Assembly. He trusted that the word "representative" would be insisted upon.

Mr. WOODWARD urged the restoration of the word "representative." He thought creditors should have the right of choosing their own representatives regardless of whether they were lawyers or not.

Mr. WISE submitted that when the Assembly assented to the introduction of the word "representative," it was generally understood that it was intended to apply to "clerk, manager, or accountant." There was very sound reason why unauthorised persons should not be allowed to appear in the Supreme Court. If they were to restore the word they might have a case of a man who had in the Banco Court in the morning been struck off the rolls, going in the afternoon to the Bankruptcy Court and appearing before one of the Judges who had in the morning struck him off. The man would be beyond the control of the Court, and his conduct would be an insult to justice. He hoped the House would support the amendment made by the Legislative Council.

Mr. ELLIS urged the restoration of the word "representative."

Mr. FOSTER said he thought the Council in this case had just performed the function which belonged to them—they had interpreted the matter in a clear and representative manner. He quite approved of the alteration which had been made.

Mr. LEES thought the committee would stultify itself if the accepted the amendment of the Council.

The question, "that the committee disagree with the Council's amendment," was passed on division by 30 votes to 14.

Mr. WISE moved that the committee agree with the remainder of the Council's amendments in clause 18.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council's amendments in all the following clauses down to and including clause 37 were agreed to.

Mr. WISE moved that in clause 38 the committee agree with the Council's amendment, by the addition of the following words in reference to unsatisfied judgments: "or for damages or costs under all laws relating to divorce."

Mr. FRANK SMITH dissented from the amendment. It was a monstrous thing that a man should go to prison because he could not pay alimony or costs in cases of divorce unless he chose to become a bankrupt.

Mr. FOSTER hoped the clause would be carried as it stood.

Mr. BURDETT SMITH hoped the clause would be passed as it now stood. The Council were to be commended for inserting the words.

The amendment was then agreed to, as were also the remainder of the Legislative Council's amendments in the bill.

The Chairman then left the chair, and the committee reported that they had agreed with some and disagreed with other amendments in the bill.

ROYALTY ON OYSTERS ABOLITION BILL.

Sir HENRY PARKES moved the second reading of the Royalty on Oysters Abolition Bill. He said that the question was so simple, and the desirability of the abolition of this royalty was so great, that he did not think it was necessary to detain the House on this matter. At the present time we were charging a royalty upon our own oysters, whilst admitting oysters from other countries free of duty, and this was so absurd and undesirable that he did not think it was necessary to say another word on the matter.

The motion was agreed to, and the bill was read the second time, and passed through committee without amendment.

ADJOURNMENT.

Sir HENRY PARKES moved "That the House do now adjourn."

Mr. CAMERON said that he had received a letter from patients in the Sydney Hospital representing the extreme torture and misery which they were put to by the letting off of fireworks in the Domain.

Sir HENRY PARKES said that he would cause inquiry to be made into the matter.

The House adjourned at 3 minutes past 10 until 3 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday.

THE AUSTRALASIAN NAVAL FORCE BILL.

A bill was introduced and read the first time in the Legislative Assembly last evening, to provide for the payment by the colony of New South Wales of a proportional part of the establishment and maintenance of an additional naval force to be employed for the protection of the floating trade in Australasian waters. The preamble of the bill recites that the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and the Governments of the colonies of New South Wales, Tasmania, South Australia, New Zealand, Victoria, Queensland, and Western Australia, having recognised the necessity for increasing the naval force for the protection of the floating trade in Australasian waters at their joint charge, have concluded, subject to the ratification and approval of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, and the Parliaments of the colonies an agreement to the establishment and maintenance of an additional naval force for that purpose; and that in order to give effect to the agreement and to provide for the payment by the colony of New South Wales of that colony's share of the cost of the additional force, the Legislative Assembly had resolved to grant the sum thereinafter stated. The bill consists of six clauses; the first approving of the ratification of the agreement, the second and third clauses provide that "In each of the ten years during which the said agreement shall be in force there shall be issued and paid to her Majesty out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund for the purposes of the said agreement, a sum bearing the same proportion to the total amount payable under article VII. of the said agreement as the population of this colony bears to the total population of the Australasian colonies whose Governments are parties to the said agreement. For the purposes of the last preceding section the population of each of the said colonies shall in each year be deemed to be such as is certified by the Government Statist or statistician, Registrar-General, or other officer of such charged with the duty of compiling statistics, to have been the population of such colony as on the 31st day of December next preceding. Until any such certificate is given the population last certified by him shall be deemed to continue to be the population, subject nevertheless to an adjustment of the contributions when a fresh certificate is made." The other clauses declare that the Treasurer shall pay the amount of the contribution as directed by the Governor, and be allowed credit for the contribution, and the agreement is set forth in the schedule. It provides that there shall be established a force of sea-going ships of war, to be provided, equipped, manned, and maintained at the joint cost of Imperial and colonial funds. These vessels shall be placed in every respect on the same status as her Majesty's ships of war, whether in commission or not. The officers and men of these vessels as are in commission shall be changed triennially, and of those in reserve as may be considered advisable. These vessels shall be under the sole control and orders of the Naval Commander-in-Chief for the time being appointed to command her Majesty's ships and vessels on the Australian station. Notwithstanding the establishment of this joint naval force, no reduction is to take place in the normal strength of her Majesty's naval force employed on the Australian station, exclusive of surveying vessels. These vessels shall consist of five fast cruisers and two torpedo gunboats, as represented by the Archer (improved type) and Rattlesnake classes in her Majesty's navy. Of the above, three cruisers and one gunboat to be kept always in commission, the remainder being held in reserve, in Australasian ports, ready for commission whenever occasion requires. The first cost of these vessels shall be paid out of Imperial funds, and the vessels fully equipped, manned, and sent to Australia. The colonies shall pay the Imperial Government interest at 5 per cent. on the first and prime cost of these vessels, such payment not to exceed the annual sum of £35,000. The colonies shall, in addition, bear the actual charges for maintaining from year to year the three fast cruisers and one torpedo gunboat, which are to be kept in commission in time of peace, and also of the three other vessels, which are to remain in reserve, including the liability on account of retired pay to officers, pensions to men, and the charge for relief of crews; provided always that the claim made by the Imperial Government under this head does not exceed the annual payment of £91,000. In time of emergency or actual war the cost of commissioning and maintaining of the three vessels kept in reserve during peace shall be borne by the Imperial Government. In the event of any of these vessels being lost they shall be replaced at the cost of the Imperial Government. This agreement shall be considered to become actually binding between the Imperial and the several colonial Governments named in the first clause so soon as the colonial Legislatures shall have passed special appropriations for the terms hereinafter mentioned, to which Acts this agreement shall be attached as a first schedule. The agreement shall be for a period of ten years, and only terminate if and provided notice has been given two years previously, viz., at the end of the eighth years or at the end of any subsequent year, and then two year, after such date. On the termination of the agreement these vessels to remain the property of the Imperial Government. The payments shall be considered as payments in advance, and shall first become due and payable on the dates on which the several vessels are put in commission; and the period of ten years referred to is to be calculated from the date of the first vessel being put in commission. The share of these payments due from each colony shall be paid annually in London by the Agents-General and the Crown agents respectively to such account as the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty may direct. Nothing in this agreement shall affect the purely local naval defence forces which have been or may be established in the several colonies for harbour and coast defences. Such local forces in each colony to be paid for entirely by that colony, and to be solely under its control. In time of peace two ships, either of the normal Imperial Squadron or of these vessels, shall be stationed in New Zealand waters as their headquarters. Should, however, such emergency arise as may, in the opinion of the naval Commander-in-Chief, render it necessary to remove either or both of such ships, he shall inform the Governor of the reasons for such temporary removal.

SANITARY DWELLINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A superficial observer passing through the various factories comprised within the district known as the western side of the city, and into a centre at the head of Darling Harbour, through the warehouses and among the wharf labourers, must see the necessity for providing dwellings erected with a due regard to the laws which govern health, and at the same time constructed in such a manner as will place them within the reach of the class for which they are specially intended. From an intimate acquaintance with that part of the city now referred to, I confidently assert that if 10 buildings of not less than 100 rooms in each were available next Monday morning a very large percentage of the rooms would be taken by those needing clean and healthy accommodation for their families.

I know there is a class of capitalists who have been investing their money in suburban properties who would urge the working man to fly to the suburbs for a relief to his social troubles; but the very nature of the labour of the classes I refer to, prevents the labourer from taking advantage of the benefits a suburban residence is supposed to confer, as a very large proportion of our labouring class must always reside almost upon the "spot." The want of proper dwellings has been greatly intensified by the wholesale destruction of houses which took place during last year (known as the rookery year) when a considerable number of dwellings were condemned on insanitary grounds, certainly not in the interests of health or morality (though such may have been the intention), as houses which formerly contained one family have now to accommodate two and three families, owing to the demand and the increase of rent, which the people cannot pay during the season of depression, &c. In looking at this subject—not the least important which can be considered by our "civic fathers"—it might fairly be urged that instead of wasting very much time over personal matters, and a strife for the brightest robe and the principal seat in the council, one or two sittings might be given to see how a loan of say £100,000 could be obtained for the erection of six or seven buildings for the comfort, convenience, and cleanliness of our poorer brethren. This seems to me, Mr. Editor, a far better method of celebrating our centenary than the erection of a pile of buildings on the George-street Market site—a site that is much needed as a recreation reserve by the very class in whose interests this letter is penned, as the shops, if erected, may not be let for the next year or two. Surely the labourer giving his physical and brain power, deserves better treatment. If capital can combine to protect itself from the unjust demands of labour, should not capital also combine to contribute that which will add to the comfort, cleanliness, health, morality, and social order of a great producing power in this community.

I am, &c., SUSSEX-STREET.

DEPUTATIONS.

THE CENTENNIAL REGATTA.

A deputation representing the Centennial Regatta Committee, and consisting of Messrs. James R. Fairfax (Commodore of the Royal Yacht Squadron), A. J. Milson (Vice-Commodore), E. N. Dietrich, P. J. Clarke, E. W. Knox, P. W. Creagh, Major Gascoigne, and C. C. Metcalfe, waited on the Premier (Sir Henry Parkes) yesterday, in reference to the Centennial Regatta arrangements.

Mr. J. R. Fairfax, who introduced the deputation, said they were appointed by the Anniversary Regatta Committee, and that their object was to lay certain matters before the Premier, and to request consideration and approval of them. The first question they desired to ask was as to the day on which the Premier would like the regatta to take place. They understood that he (Sir Henry Parkes) had stated in a conversation with some members of the committee that the 26th should be the day, and that the National Regatta should be the great event of that day—in fact, the only event to attract public attention.

Sir HENRY PARKES: As far as that is concerned, perhaps I had better deal with it at once. In conversation with some gentlemen representing your interest, I think I explained what had been done, as far as his Excellency the Governor and myself were concerned, in the arrangements for that day. I think Mr. Milson was present at the time. We thought that the great international event ought to take place on the 26th, because it represents in an official manner the whole of the colonies. We expect all the Governors here, and most of the important people connected with the public life of the other colonies, and we thought that that event ought to take place on the principal day—the 26th, and our idea was that the regatta should come off on another day. I have no desire to act in any decisive manner about this matter. It ought to be left to mutual arrangement in some way, but as we were inviting all the important people from the other colonies to come here as our guests, we thought the entertainment should take place on the principal day. We also thought that the Saturday following would be a better day for the regatta.

Mr. FAIRFAX: I think I may venture to say that the deputation would be quite willing to accept the proposal of the Government. There is another consideration, and that is that on regatta day there is certain to be a public luncheon on board the flagship, and I am sure you would like the representatives of the other colonies to be at that luncheon.

Sir HENRY PARKES: Yes; it would be very desirable. I am not quite sure about the days, but I do not think anything definite was settled, except that this great gathering of Australian notabilities should take place on the 26th.

Mr. FAIRFAX: May we then fix our day for the 27th.

Sir HENRY PARKES: I think the 26th is a Thursday. The suggestion of Lord Carrington was that the regatta should be on the 27th and the races on the 28th. I think I might say that the Government will be happy to concur with the 27th. I notice that on the regatta day there will be a party at Government House in the evening, and what we we have to consider is, not to have too many things in one day.

Mr. FAIRFAX: I have to convey to you the thanks of the Regatta Committee for having placed in their hands £800, but the committee would like, if you would allow them, to consider how it is to be disposed of.

Sir HENRY PARKES: £500 of it must be disposed in one way; it is so decided by Parliament, and we cannot vary the decision of Parliament in any way.

Mr. FAIRFAX: That is to say, the £500 is for the hundred-year prize.

Sir HENRY PARKES: Yes. It has been thought that the cup should be of gold.

Mr. FAIRFAX: The impression amongst those most interested in yachting matters is that the prize is rather a large one for the event; that is to say, only a certain number of competitors can go for it, and the prize is a heavy one for those who are likely to compete.

Sir HENRY PARKES: But then we have to crowd one hundred years into it. What I want particularly to bring under the notice of the deputation is that it is out of our way to vary the decision of Parliament. The £300 is to be disposed of in any way in connection with the regatta.

Mr. FAIRFAX: I suppose the committee can use the £300 towards entertainment as well as prizes?

Sir HENRY PARKES: I doubt it; I think the resolution of Parliament expressly says it is for prizes.

Mr. FAIRFAX: Well, then, we must abide strictly by the terms of the resolution?

Sir HENRY PARKES: Yes, we must look upon it as an appropriation of public money, and we cannot vary it.

Mr. FAIRFAX: Of course, we acknowledge the liberality of the Government and Parliament in giving us this £800, but I suppose you will not think it improper if we venture to ask you for a further vote to assist us in giving some entertainment on that day.

Sir HENRY PARKES: I think, as far as the entertainment is concerned, it will be better to say nothing about it. It might be found necessary to devote some money to that purpose, considering the character of the event, but as a rule we do not vote public money for that sort of thing.

Mr. FAIRFAX: The suggestion is made because we are bound to use the £500 in a certain way.

Sir HENRY PARKES: I merely mention this to point out to you how cautiously we must act in the application of public money for a purpose of that kind; and I may perhaps tell you, as every gentleman present may not know, that if we as a Government give any entertainment we pay for it out of our own pockets. [Mr. Milson: We intend to collect subscriptions from the public.] I admit that on an occasion of that sort some departure from the rule laid down as a general rule might be justifiable, but we must consider that.

The deputation thanked the Premier and withdrew.

"UNEMPLOYED" LABOUR AT WALLSEND.

A deputation from the Wallsend Municipal Council, introduced by Mr. Creer, M.L.A., waited on the Premier yesterday and requested that some eight or nine of the "unemployed" now engaged in municipal work at Wallsend might be allowed to continue at work there under the usual conditions for one month longer.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he would approve of the application if it were made in writing.

REQUIREMENTS OF WATERLOO.

A deputation representing the Municipal Council of Waterloo waited upon the Hon. John Sutherland, Minister for Public Works, yesterday morning, for the purpose of inducing the Government to revert to the old tram fare on the Waterloo line and to extend the first section at 2d. to the old tollbar. The deputation pointed out that they based their claim upon the fact that the people in the borough were mostly poor people and were entitled to concessions such as had been made to the residents of Glebe Point, Forest Lodge, and Woollahra. They, therefore, asked that the section should be extended to the old terminus at the tollbar.

The Hon. JOHN SUTHERLAND, in reply to the deputation, pointed out that the Waterloo tramline was not paying, and it was reported to him that if he made the move they now wished him to make he would lose a certain amount of money every month. He also stated that the Glebe Point and Forest Lodge lines were not paying. He thought it was an unfortunate thing that the Government ever became carriers in this respect, and the question of handing the trams over was under consideration. He could say nothing more until he received the returns for the present month.

GRANVILLE TRAIN TIME TABLE.

A deputation of residents of Granville, introduced by Mr. Frank Farnell, M.L.A., waited upon the Hon. John Sutherland, Minister for Public Works, yesterday morning, and asked that an alteration might be made in the running of the trains between Granville and the metropolis. The deputation pointed out that much inconvenience and waste of time was experienced by the present train service. The arrangements of the time table did not suit the people of Granville, as the trains were run at inconvenient periods through the day and were consequently of no use to business people who were anxious to get to Sydney. It was also pointed out that there were only two trains on Sundays—viz., at a quarter-past 1 o'clock and five minutes past 5 o'clock. The deputation thought some arrangement might be made by which the Parramatta trains calling at Granville might go on direct to Homebush, and a special or new service might be made direct from Homebush to Sydney.

The Hon. JOHN SUTHERLAND, in reply to the deputation, promised to inquire into the matter. He pointed out that there was a great necessity for arrangements to be made whereby time could be saved in connection with the running of trains, and he hoped to be able soon to make some alterations in this direction. Powerful engines which could be stopped quickly, and which could be started easily without jerking the carriages should be employed, and trains should not have to stop at the stations longer than a minute. All these matters will receive his consideration.

OFFENDERS' PROBATION ACT.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. Skinner, Munroe, and Gale, representing the Liberal Association of New South Wales waited upon the Minister for Justice yesterday for the purpose of laying some information before him regarding the proposed Offenders' Probation Act. The deputation submitted to the Minister a number of papers with reference to the working of similar Acts in the colonies of New Zealand and Queensland.

Mr. CLARKE said he would be glad to receive the papers. The existing criminal law here made some allowances for the restitution of property and for prisoners going out of gaol on probation, but not enough. He had lately visited Victoria, and had gone over the penal establishments there, and he was surprised to find that the colony of New South Wales, although it contained about the same population as Victoria, had 1000 more prisoners. This was partly accounted for by the fact that longer sentences were given by our Judges, but it was to be attributed more to the circumstances that there was an Act in force in the sister colony which enabled prisoners of good behaviour to go out on their recognisances. It was now under the consideration of the Government to amend the penal laws here after the model of Victoria.

THE FLOGGING OF PRISONERS.

Mr. Munro, one of the members of the deputation from the Liberal Association, interviewed the Minister for Justice with reference to the flogging of prisoners sentenced at the police courts. He asked in the name of the association that if flogging could not be abolished altogether, no persons should undergo the penalty without having been found guilty by a jury and sentenced by a Judge.

Mr. CLARKE replied that he would give the matter consideration. He thought, however, that the fear of a flogging kept many persons from crime, and the offences usually punished by flogging were of a nature that required such treatment.

THE RELIGIOUS CELEBRATION OF THE CENTENARY.

At a meeting of the committees appointed by a Conference of the representatives of various Christian Churches to arrange details for the religious celebration of the centenary, held at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, the Bishop of Sydney in the chair, it was agreed to lay before the Conference on Monday, the 28th instant, the following recommendations:—1. "That the various Churches be invited to hold contemporaneous Thanksgiving Services on Sunday, January 22;" moved by the Rev. S. Cameron, seconded by the Rev. Pastor Allen. 2. "That a united Service of Thanksgiving be held on the afternoon of Sunday, January 22nd." Moved by the Rev. W. A. Stephinson, seconded by Pastor Allen. "That for the purpose of this service, application be made to the corporation for the use of the Exhibition Building, with liberty also to erect a platform at the east end of the building for an open air service, and to admit to the building under such regulations as may be found advisable." Moved by the Hon. E. Vickery, seconded by Mr. W. Wood. 3. "That the united Sunday School celebration be held on Saturday, February 4." Moved by the Hon. E. Vickery, seconded by the Rev. W. A. Stephinson. "That the celebration be held, if the consent of the corporation can be obtained, in the grounds of the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, and that the children assemble by permission of the trustees, in Hyde Park," moved by the Rev. George James, seconded by Mr. G. Farr. 5. "That the proposed United Conference be held at some time during the month of April, 1888." Moved by the Rev. W. A. Stephinson, seconded by the Rev. Dr. Cameron. 6. "That it be recommended to the Conference to consider the propriety of initiating during the Centennial year a combined movement for the establishment of 'a Hospital week' in the city and suburbs." Moved by the Rev. E. R. Grant, seconded by Mr. John Kirkland. These recommendations will be, of course, subject to revision at the next meeting of the Conference.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent in to-day's issue seems to lay too great a stress upon the non-essential differences between Protestant Christians. According to him, our brethren not in communion with the Anglican branch of Christ's Church have no ministers, as he states "The apostolic ministry of the Church is of the essence of the Church." Now, Bishop Barry is continually calling them and speaking of them as "branches of" the Church, but how can this be if the Apostolic ministry is of the essence of the Church? and this they lack. I suppose your correspondent is one of those who hold that there can be no sacraments without this ministry. If this is true, it is about time our Protestant brethren seriously considered their position.

As to the forthcoming Centenary celebration, I must remind him that some short time back a conference of ministers was held in Sydney, presided over by Dr. Barry, and at which the large bodies of Christians, including the Unitarians, were represented, and at which it was resolved that a united service should be held, and a committee appointed to carry out this object. Now I, for one, can see no reason why this service should not be held at the mother church in Sydney. Surely, at such a time as that referred to we can be content to wrap up those non-essential differences, and meet upon a broad and liberal platform. Our good Protestant Bishop is evidently of this opinion, or he would not have taken up the position he has. I am, &c.,

PROTESTANT CHURCHMAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It appears to me, as I am sure it must appear to many besides, that the letter of your correspondent "A Member of the Provincial Synod," in to-day's issue, is a very pitiable production. It is evidently the emanation of a contracted mind which has fallen into a narrow rut from which it cannot, or will not, extricate itself. The sentiments expressed are, no doubt, those which are held by a small and gradually-decreasing section of the Episcopal Church, which can see no good in any religious community but its own, and which seems to dread a fearful contamination by coming into contact with any other denomination of professed Christians. Where are the "Dissenters" and "Nonconformists" for whom your correspondent affects to have so great an abhorrence? I was not aware that any such persons existed in this free country, where, happily, all denominations are on an equality in the eye of the law. By what authority do certain parties speak of the Episcopal Church as "The Church," and of themselves as "churchmen," as if there were no religion to be found anywhere else? Away, I say, with such silly superstition and such vain presumption! and while each separate section of the Christian Church maintains in fidelity its own distinctive views, and endeavours in its own particular way to advance the interests of Christ's kingdom, let all join hands and hearts together without fear on such a great occasion as the Centennial of the colony, and unitedly supplicate a blessing upon this goodly land.

I am, &c., P. FALCONER MACKENZIE.

OFFICIAL ANNOYANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you kindly permit me, a stranger in your rapidly growing city, to call attention to an annoyance to which respectable persons having occasion to call at the General Post Office are subjected.

Whilst exchanging a few words with a friend under the Post Office colonnade this morning, a man with a red coat on strode up to us, and, without deigning to utter a syllable, began swinging his arms about in front of us, as if to intimate that if we did not leave the spot instanter, he would sweep us off into the street.

Now, it so happened that we were on the George-street side of the Post Office, where there is no through traffic, and, moreover, were standing close to the building, and, therefore, could not possibly have obstructed the thoroughfare had we stood there the whole day.

It can but be offensive to the public in general to be hunted off the Post Office premises in the officious way I have described, and should you do me the favour of inserting this letter in your very popular journal, I think you will find I am by no means alone in the view I take of this matter. I am, &c.,

SMOKE PREVENTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Lack of time must be my excuse for not writing you sooner anent your leader on the smoke nuisance in your issue of Tuesday last. I am very glad indeed that you have taken up the matter, for it is one of very great importance to the future comfort of the community. As to the possibility, nay, the ease, with which the production of smoke can be prevented in all ordinary cases, that has passed quite beyond the region of theory. The Smoke Abatement Exhibition of 1882, no less than previous and subsequent experience, amply established that point, and what is now urgently wanted is not the mechanical means for preventing smoke, but the legal appliances to compel the application of such means. The president of the British Sanitary Institute made that abundantly clear, as your abstract from his paper clearly shows, and the resolution, as I take it, leans strongly in the same direction. As to gas firing, while it is quite true that many of the large manufactures have not yet adopted it, it is far from correct to say that none had done so. I hold letters addressed to me in reply to inquiries made in connection with smoke cases in Glasgow from the Butterly Iron Company, Alfreton; Messrs. J. L. Thomson and Son, the large shipbuilders in Sunderland; Robert Heath and Son, ironmasters, Stoke-upon-Trent; Sneedshill Ironworks, Shropshire, and other large and well-known firms, all of whom have adopted gas firing, and are well satisfied with it. With solid fuel it is certainly all but impossible to avoid smoke in ironwork operations; but the manager of the Butterly Company, using gas-producer fuel, writes me:—"There ought not to be, and need not be, any smoke from either boilers or furnaces, and it is only in cases of negligence that we see any, and this only occurs at rare intervals."

For firing boilers gas is used by the Midland Railway Company at their Derby works, by Sir Joseph Whitworth and Co. (Manchester), at Crossly Brothers' immense works, the London and North-Western Railway Company's works and many others. The manager of the latter company states publicly that a very large economy had been realised in their works by the general adoption of gas firing, while they had at the same time abolished smoke almost entirely. Thus it appears that as gas fuel has been adopted by many of the leading manufacturers besides those whose names I have mentioned, there cannot on that account be any discount suggested by my statement of its simplicity and its success.

As to the grimy state of most of the old country manufacturing towns, that is an undoubted fact—more's the pity—but it only proves that many men will not take means to mend their ways till they are compelled by law to do so. As I said in my lecture on Thursday last, in those cases the disease has established itself, and is so all the worse to cure, a sufficiently truthful warning to us here in Sydney to take it in time.

I think you will grant that an experience gained as adviser under the Smoke Prevention Act in a city like Glasgow is one which is likely to be wide in its scope as to different furnaces, as well as practical in the application of remedies. I have had that experience, and as the result of it I have no hesitation in saying that in all ordinary steam boiler cases smoke is preventable even without gas firing, and its production is due to one of three causes—overworking of the boiler, overworking of the chimney, or careless or ignorant firing.

As to gas firing, even in Glasgow, where gas firing is already in considerable use, I found that the great bulk of the smaller steam users, if they knew about it at all, were possessed by a fixed, if shadowy, idea that it was a most complicated and expensive operation, involving apparatus something like that in a gasworks, instead of being, as it really is, easier and simpler than firing by the ordinary method. I am, &c.,

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE.)

LYONS V. SHARLAND.

Mr. Pilcher and Dr. Donovan, instructed by Messrs. Fisher, Ralfe, and Salwey, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Curtiss and Barry, for the defendant. This was a suit brought by Samuel Lyons, official assignee in the estate of Patrick Rogers, of Forest Hill, near Wagga Wagga, against Alfred William Sharland, to obtain a decree setting aside certain transfers of land by the trustees of Mrs. Rogers to the defendant. Plaintiff in his statement of claim set out that on the 1st March, 1887, the estate of Patrick Rogers was duly sequestrated, and the plaintiff was appointed official assignee in the estate. Before the date of alienation by Patrick Rogers of certain conditionally purchased lands, he was possessed of and entitled to the lands under the provisions of the Crown Lands Act, and they were registered in his name. On or about the 30th day of November, 1885, Rogers, for a nominal consideration of 10s., executed six several transfers of the conditionally purchased land already referred to, amounting to about 1040 acres, to his solicitors, Messrs. Fitzharding and Coleman, of Wagga Wagga, and the plaintiff charges that such transfers were made with a view to some voluntary settlement of the said lands being then or afterwards made by Patrick Rogers in favour of his wife and children. The lands are situated near Wagga Wagga, and are known as the Forest Hill Estate. One block of 400 acres is situated about two miles from the other blocks, and at the time of the alienation there were standing on the block a valuable woolshed, fencing, and other improvements which were still in existence. On the other blocks, which were contiguous to one another, there was a dwelling-house and outoffices occupied by Patrick Rogers and his family, besides fencing, cultivation, and other improvements. By five transfers, dated July 15, 1886, Messrs. Fitzharding and Coleman transferred to defendant the six blocks, the amount of purchase money alleged being £1783 10s., whereas the plaintiff charges that no sum whatever was paid by defendant for such lands. It was also contended that at the time of the transfer to defendant Patrick Rogers was insolvent, or that by the alienation he was rendered insolvent. The defendant is a brother-in-law of Patrick Rogers, and at the date of the transfer was carrying on business as a licensed victualler in Sydney, where he still carries on business; and plaintiff further alleges that the purchase by defendant was not bona fide, that if the sum of £1783 10s. was paid it was a grossly inadequate price, and that the transfer from Messrs. Fitzharding and Coleman to defendant was in effect a transfer from Patrick Rogers to defendant, and was contrived for the purpose of delaying, hindering, and defrauding the creditors of Patrick Rogers in and from recovering and receiving payment of the debts due to them by Patrick Rogers. The plaintiff, therefore, prayed for a decree declaring the transfers from Rogers to Messrs. Fitzharding and Coleman, and from the latter to defendant, to be fraudulent and void as against the insolvent estate of Patrick Rogers; that defendant be ordered to execute transfers of the land in question to the plaintiff as official assignee of Patrick Rogers's estate; and that, in the meantime, defendant should be restrained from selling the lands.

The defendant, in his statement of defence, set out that some time before the purchase by him of the lands in dispute, Patrick Rogers had unsuccessfully applied to him for a loan upon the security of the lands; but, after considerable solicitation, he agreed to purchase the property for the sum of £2000 for so much as was then capable of transfer, and a further sum of £1000 when so much of the land as was not then transferable should be transferred to him. In accordance with the agreement a contract was drawn up, upon the signing of which he paid to Messrs. Cave and Co., the vendor's agents, the sum of £100, and upon its completion a further sum of £1994, but he was unaware how the consideration money was stated in the several transfers to him. He admitted that no portion of the purchase money was paid by him to Messrs. Fitzharding and Coleman, but affirmed that the purchase was a bona-fide one for valuable consideration, and that no secret agreement of any kind existed between him and Patrick Rogers with reference to the purchase. The amount paid by him was, under the circumstances of the case and the state of the money market, and the unsaleability of such lands, a fair and reasonable price, and not grossly inadequate. Defendant also denied the alleged collusion, or that the alienation had, or could have had, the effect of delaying, hindering, or defrauding the creditors of Patrick Rogers. A good deal of evidence was given on both sides as to the value of the property alleged to have been purchased by the defendant, who was examined and cross-examined at considerable length in regard to the transaction, and the manner in which he had accumulated sufficient money to enable him to make the purchase.

The case had not concluded when the Court rose.

STEPHEN V. ERWIN.

Mr. Nash appeared on behalf of one Gunn, a trustee of the settlement of Mrs. Erwin, and moved for an order varying the decree of the late Primary Judge in the suit Stephen v. Erwin. Mr. Armstrong appeared to show cause. It appeared that the Judge made a decree setting aside certain deeds of settlement, and the trustee Gunn desired that certain of the deeds which had been included in the terms of the order drawn up by the Master, but which were not specifically dealt with in his Honor's decree, should be struck out.

His HONOR said he was quite clear that he could not grant the application, and dismissed it with costs against Gunn.

(Before his Honor the Primary Judge Mr. Justice OWEN.)

PROMOTERS COMPANY OF THE TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Mr. H. Davies, in the matter of the Companies Act, 1874, and the Promoters Company of the Transcontinental Railway of Western Australia, said that the petition was one for the compulsory winding-up of the company to be withdrawn; but it had been arranged that the voluntary winding-up should be proceeded with immediately, with Mr. Baly as liquidator, under the supervision of the Court. Costs of both parties were to be taxed as between solicitor and client, and to be a first charge on the assets of the company.

M'CULLOCH AND ANOTHER V. MARSHALL AND OTHERS (PART HEARD.)

This was an application by Mr. Walker (instructed by Mr. De Lissa) on behalf of the defendant, Wm. Marshall, to dissolve an injunction upon some mining property. Mr. Lingen (instructed by Messrs. Want, Johnson, and Co.) appeared for the other defendants, George C. Loughnan, John Clarke, and John Bassett Christian. Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. A. H. Simpson (instructed by Messrs. M'Culloch and M'Culloch) appeared for the plaintiffs, Andrew Hardie M'Culloch, jun., and Wm. Howell, to oppose the application.

The CHIEF JUSTICE on September 15 granted an injunction on the ex parte application of the plaintiffs, by which the defendants Loughnan, Clarke, and Christian were restrained from selling or dealing with certain property in Queensland, comprising 150 acres, worked under the name of the Mount Morgan Freehold Gold-mining Company, and the defendant William Marshall was also restrained from selling or disposing of any shares in the company to the prejudice of plaintiffs' rights.

His HONOR said he did not wish to hear further argument. It would be impossible for him to say that the plaintiff had not made out a prima facie case for continuing the injunction. The three grounds of objection taken against the continuance of the injunction were, suppression of facts, that the case did not come within the statute of frauds, and the general merits of the matter. He decided that all three of these grounds failed, and therefore there should be an injunction to keep the property safe until the rights of the parties were determined.

Application dismissed, costs to be costs in the cause.

EX PARTE GALL AND ATTORNEYS ACT.

Mr. Cohen, for the applicant, asked the Court to make an order for the taxation of the bill of costs in Plummer and Gall v. Logan, an Equity suit settled in 1886. Mr. Walker and Mr. C. J. Manning were for the respondents. Mr. Walker took the preliminary objection that the matter had been already before the Master, and that therefore the present application was out of order. His HONOR upheld the objection, and dismissed the application, with costs.

EWRY V. WITHERS AND ANOTHER.

Mr. Mann (instructed by Mr. W. P. Crick) applied on behalf of the plaintiff, Michael Ewry, for an injunction restraining the defendant from dealing with certain lands at Pyrmont and Parramatta, which plaintiff claimed to be entitled to. Mr. Walker (instructed by Mr. Colyer), who appeared for the defendants, said that they had no intention of interfering with the property, and were willing to give an undertaking to this effect. His HONOR thought it would be best to grant the application.

Injunction granted, costs to be costs in the cause.

HAYWARD V. SMITH.

The Attorney-General and Mr Walker appeared for the plaintiff, Albert Hayward; and Mr. Lingen for the defendant, Robert Johnston Smith.

According to plaintiff's statement of claim, on 27th April, 1881, one John Smith conditionally purchased under the provisions of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861, at the Land Office, Wentworth, 450 acres of land, in the county of Tara, parish of Walkminga. On 6th November, 1884, he further conditionally purchased 180 acres of land. On 29th April, 1886, he, by a deed of grant and release, mortgaged the land to the plaintiff, to secure the repayment of £700 advance, together with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. On 3rd June, 1886, Smith, by another deed charged the land with the repayment to plaintiff of £1100, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. The deeds were duly registered. On the 11th September, 1886, the Sheriff, under a writ of fi. fa. issued against Smith at the suit of Robert Tully and others, sold his right, title, and interest to the defendant for the sum of £60. On 28th April, 1887, the Sheriff transferred the land to the defendant, and the defendant lodged the transfer in the Department of Lands, and claimed that by virtue thereof he had defeated the mortgages, and was entitled to hold such hereditaments free from encumbrance. Plaintiff had entered into possession under the power contained in the mortgages, and the defendant now threatened to bring an ejectment against him. Plaintiff claimed that the defendant held the hereditaments subject to the mortgages; he asked that an account might be taken of what was due to him (plaintiff) under the mortgage, and that defendant might be restrained by injunction from prosecuting any action for obtaining possession of the land until he shall have redeemed the mortgages.

The defendant demurred, for the reason that at the respective dates of the alleged mortgages, five years had not elapsed since the land therein comprised had been conditionally purchased, and therefore, under the Crown Lands Alienation Act 1880, no estate in such land had been vested in the plaintiff.

Mr. Lingen contended that under section 7 of the Crown Lands Alienation Act, 1880, the land must be held for five years by the lawful owner, and that any mortgage taken upon it before the termination of the time would be invalid. If this were not so dummyism could not be avoided.

His HONOR: Then for five years the selector could get no security upon his land?

Mr. Lingen: That is my contention. The plaintiff's case was that, at the time the statute forbid it, a lien was given upon the land which this Court was now asked to uphold.

His HONOR said that section 7 seemed to apply only to actual transfer; but it did not follow that the word transfer was as weighty as the word disposable. A man might create a lien on his land, but not give complete title until the end of five years.

Mr. Lingen contended that the Legislature intended the land to be the bona fide property of the person residing on it; but if a mortgage could be taken over it this object would be defeated. The land might be priceless to the squatter; and to obtain possession of it he might be willing to lend more money upon it than the holder would care to pay back. Thus in the end the holder of the land would be a mere dummy.

The Attorney-General urged that the section was not open to the construction that Mr. Lingen put upon it. No land would ever be taken up if money could not be advanced and the land held as security. The clause simply applied to positive disposal of the land, and not to simple mortgage.

His HONOR: It leaves a wide door open for dummyism by means of mortgaging.

The Attorney-General pointed out that otherwise a mortgagee would lend his money and have nothing as security. He proceeded to urge that a man merely mortgaging his land would not be alienating it against the intention of the Act.

Mr. Walker maintained that by common law a man could deal with his property as he pleased; and it had not been proved that the right at common law had been taken away by any special provisions under the Land Act.

Mr. Lingen replied.

His HONOR said that the point was a most important one, and he should take time to consider it.

Judgment reserved.

In Chambers.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice INNES.)

IN RE CHARLES LORD.

Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Mr. J. M. Thompson, appeared on behalf of the appellant, Charles Lord, and moved for a rule nisi for a prohibition directed to the Mayor of Goulburn, also Mr. C. S. Alexander, P.M., and Mr. S. Meyer, J.P., calling upon them to show cause why a certain conviction had against appellant should not be set aside. It appeared that in October last the Borough Council of Goulburn adopted the following bylaw, which was gazetted on the 24th of the same month:—Bylaw 142: Any person desiring to organise or carry out any procession or parade in any street within the municipality shall first apply to the Mayor for the time being for permission for such purpose; and if any person shall organise or head any procession or parade of any kind within or along any of the said streets for which permission in writing of the Mayor has not been obtained, such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5, and any person who shall join or take part in any such procession shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £2. This bylaw shall not apply to any volunteer corps or fire brigade, the members whereof shall be in uniform, and in charge of an officer of such corps or brigade." On the 28th October the inspector of nuisances for the borough met the appellant, Charles Lord, who is the captain of the local Salvation Army, and drew his attention to the new bylaw. Lord subsequently saw the Mayor and obtained a written permission to march through the streets, on the distinct understanding that he was not to carry banners or musical instruments. Lord promised to observe this stipulation, but failed to do so, and as he paraded Auburn-street on the 31st October with a banner flying and the army band playing, he was summoned by the inspector of nuisances under the 142nd bylaw, and was fined 20s., with 2s. 6d. costs. Against this conviction Lord now appealed, on the ground that the bylaw is ultra vires, and that the Mayor in giving his permission had no right to place any restriction upon the appellant. Mr. Manning cited Johnson v. Mayor of Croydon, 16, Q. B. division.

The rule was granted, returnable on this day week, in Chambers.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice INNES and a jury of four.)

STEPHEN V. KETHEL (PART HEARD).

Mr. Salomons, Q.C., Mr. Want, and Mr. Nash, instructed by Mr. T. Read, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. G. B. Simpson, Q.C., and Mr. Rogers, instructed by Dr. G. J. Sly, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Edward Milner Stephen, official assignee in the insolvent estate of Wm. Cox Griffin, against Alexander Kethel, to recover the value of certain machinery and household furniture, &c., alienated and transferred to him by Griffin without consideration at a time when the latter was insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency. The defendant had filed a number of pleas setting out that at the time of the alienation Griffin was not insolvent, nor was he in contemplation of insolvency, and that the alienation was made for valuable consideration.

This morning the defendant was again placed in the witness box, and gave evidence that he had no idea that Griffin was in financial difficulties until the middle or the latter end of March.

Counsel having addressed the jury,

His HONOR summed up, pointing out that the main questions they had to consider were whether Griffin was actually insolvent on the 23rd February, whether the bill of sale rendered him insolvent, and whether there was any valuable consideration. They would also have to decide whether the £400 paid by Kethel was an advance to Griffin or to wipe off Kethel's liability to the bank. Not one penny of the £400 apparently went to Griffin, and it was admitted that the £25 was used to purchase a steamer ticket to enable Griffin to leave for New Zealand. Did they believe that when Kethel made that arrangement with Griffin he did not know that he was in insolvent circumstances and about to leave the colony? It was said that the distress that Griffin was in was of a domestic rather than a financial nature at the time of the transaction, and the jury would have to say whether or not they were of that opinion.

The jury returned a verdict in favour of the plaintiff, with damages £244 5s. 7d.

M'ARTHUR V. CARPENTER (PART HEARD).

Mr. Rogers and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. C. B. Pitt, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Cohen and Mr. Heydon, instructed by Mr. J. Williamson, for the defendant. This was an action in which Gilbert M'Arthur, potter, of Camperdown, sued Uni William Carpenter, builder and contractor, to recover compensation for injuries received owing, as alleged, to the negligent and improper conduct of the defendant's servants, in consequence of which a stone fell from a building known as the Crown and Anchor Hotel, and after shattering an awning struck the plaintiff and inflicted the injuries complained of.

The plaintiff having, by permission of his Honor, amended his declaration by adding a count charging defendant with negligence in respect to the awning, it was agreed by the parties that the question to be settled by the jury should be merely one of assessment of damages.

The evidence having been closed, counsel addressed the jury, and his Honor summed up. The jury returned a verdict in favour of plaintiff, with damages £350.

The parties privately agreed that the verdict was to be taken as final, and that each party should pay his own costs.

MATHEY AND OTHERS V. STOCKDALE.

Mr. Tarleton, instructed by Mr. Levien, appeared for the plaintiffs. The defendant did not appear. This was an action brought by Mathey, Nathan, and Co. against Harry Stockdale to recover the sum of £345, amount of a promissory note made by defendant in favour of J. Malcolm and endorsed to the plaintiffs.

Verdict for the amount claimed.

LINDBERG V. HART.

Mr. Tarleton, instructed by Mr. Levien, appeared for the plaintiff. This was an action of slander brought by plaintiff, a restaurant-keeper, carrying on business at Peat's Ferry, to recover compensation for slander. As the defendant did not appear, the question was merely one for assessment of damages. The words complained of were, "You robber and thief; I believe you are going to leave the colony without paying your debts;" and plaintiff alleged that in consequence of this language his business had been considerably damaged.

The jury found for the plaintiff, damages one farthing. His Honor reserved the question of costs.

Divorce Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice STEPHEN and a jury of twelve.)

COMER V. COMER AND OTHERS (PART HEARD).

Mr. Pilcher, Mr. Wylie, and Mr. Blacket, instructed by Mr. Nicholls, appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Want and Mr. Gibson, instructed by Mr. W. J. Hill, for the respondent; Mr. Meriarty, instructed by Mr. Banks Smith, for the co-respondent Noble; and Mr. Ralston, instructed by Mr. Banks Smith, for the co-respondent Kirkland.

The petitioner, William Augustus Comer, petitioned for a dissolution of marriage on the ground that the respondent, Grace Ann Comer, had been guilty of adultery at various times with the co-respondents William Henry Howell, Chas. Noble, and George K. Kirkland.

Mr. Ralston concluded his address to the jury on behalf of the co-respondent Kirkland.

His HONOR, in summing up, said that during the case he had written some 80 pages of closely-written manuscript, and he would like to ask the jury whether any 80 pages were ever written which contained a greater mass of contradiction and a more deplorable variety of statement. There could be no question that on one side or the other the most deplorable, wilful, and wicked perjury had been committed. The jury had to decide, among other matters, whether Mrs. Comer, who, with the exception of an incident alleged to have taken place in 1880, seemed up to 1886 to have led a reputable life, had become in a short time little better than a prostitute. They had to decide whether Noble was an adulterer and perjurer, whether Kirkland was an adulterer and perjurer, or on the other hand whether Comer was an adulterer and a perjurer. Had Comer and one or two others been hatching plots of the most detestable character, the sole object for which was to ruin the character of Mrs. Comer and to obtain a divorce from her? They had been told by both sides that they were dealing here with witnesses who were not immaculate, and he thought there was some truth in this assertion, with the exception of one or two witnesses against whom nothing had been said. They had heard oath after oath taken, and it was plain that on one side or the other, the administration of the oath had been a simple mockery, and it seemed that some of these people could have had no fear of God before their eyes, and must simply have sworn exactly as if there was no God. One felt that it was almost hopeless in a case of this kind ever to be satisfied what the truth was. It might be that the jury would see their way without difficulty in this case, but on the other hand they might have to resort to a less satisfactory way of determining the case by finding out which facts were to be established, who was to establish them, and, if the party who had to establish the facts failed to do so, to their satisfaction, to return a verdict against that party. He supposed that the jury might feel a modicum of thankfulness that there was one thing with regard to this case about which there could be no doubt, and that was that a marriage did take place between the parties on the 17th February, 1880. The first issue they had to deal with was whether the respondent had been guilty of adultery with Howell on a day in June, 1886, at the Ti-Tree House, and the onus of proof in this case was on the petitioner. There was evidence on each side, and the jury had to decide on which side there was a balance of testimony. This issue was different from the others, because it did not turn so much on the question of veracity as of accuracy, for the case against the respondent rested on the identity of the lady and gentleman who stayed at the Ti-tree House in June, 1886, with Mrs. Comer and the co-respondent, Howell; and, as was well known, mistakes often occurred on questions of identity. His Honor then reviewed the evidence on this issue, and then passed on to the question of the respondent's guilt with the co-respondent Noble. Here, he pointed out, it was simply a matter of veracity, as there was no question of a mistake, but only which side they were to believe. After dealing with the evidence on this issue, his Honor stated that the case was peculiar in one respect, as the establishment of almost every act of adultery depended largely on the evidence of the husband, who, with others, was witness to his own wife's adultery. Of course, if the petitioner and the other witnesses on his side had not been telling the truth, the case was a downright conspiracy of the most barefaced type. With regard to the charge of adultery with Kirkland, the evidence on this issue was also contradictory. A counter charge had been entered against the petitioner of adultery with Emilie Harris, but this was denied both by Emilie Harris and Comer. With regard to the charge of cruelty against the petitioner, he would ask the jury to find whether there was cruelty on the part of the petitioner towards the respondent in March, 1886, and whether it was of such a character as to found in the respondent a reasonable apprehension that further cohabitation with her husband would not be safe. Then, if they found that cruelty had been committed, they must find whether that cruelty was in any way conducive to her adultery, if they found that she had committed adultery.

The jury, after a deliberation extending over nearly five hours, returned the following verdict:—1. That the petitioner and respondent were married on the 17th February, 1880. 2. That the respondent was guilty of adultery with the co-respondent Howell at the Ti-tree House in June, 1886. 3 and 4. That the respondent had not been guilty of adultery either with the co-respondents Noble or Kirkland. 5. That the petitioner had not been guilty of adultery with Emilie Harris. 6. That the petitioner had been guilty of cruelty to the respondent, and that his cruelty had been conducive to her adultery with the co-respondent Howell at the Ti-tree House.

Mr. Wylie, on behalf of the petitioner, applied for a decree nisi, granting a dissolution of his marriage.

Mr. Ralston applied to have the co-respondents Noble and Kirkland dismissed from the suit, with costs against the petitioner.

His HONOR said that according to the practice in such cases the applications would have to wait until the time for moving a new trial had elapsed.

INSOLVENCY COURT—FRIDAY.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. ARTHUR HENRY.)

FIRST MEETINGS.

Re Abraham Goldberg. Seven debts were proved.

Re William Pettit. One debt was proved.

Re Henry Glade. Two debts were proved.

In the matters of Charles Herbert Martin and John Shiel. No debts were proved.

THIRD MEETINGS.

Re Arthur Thos. Gale and Herbert John Gale. Three debts were proved. Directions, that the insolvents be allowed their furniture, were moved, but were negatived.

Re William Walton, a third meeting. One debt was proved, and two claims were submitted. One of the claims propounded was for £188 4s. by Cornelius Lees, being £97 4s., balance alleged to be due by Walton to Lees at £20 per month, for acting as manager to the insolvent, and £91 for the board and lodging of insolvent's "children." Mr. Lloyd, official assignee, opposed the admission of that portion of the claim relating to board and lodging of insolvent's "children," on the ground that there was something that was extremely strange in connection with it. The insolvent had by his schedule represented that his indebtedness to Lees in respect to wages was much less than the claim made in that respect, and had declared that his indebtedness in regard to board and lodging for his children amounted to only £46, whereas the claim by Lees in that regard was about double that sum. Mr. Lloyd examined both the claimant and the insolvent with regard to the claim, and elicited that it was made up in this way:—One quarter's board and lodging of Miss Martha Walton, from January 1 until March 31, 1887, at £13 per quarter, £13; three quarters' board and lodging of Miss Catherine Walton from January 1st until September 30, 1887, at £13 per quarter, £39; three quarters' board and lodging of Miss Elizabeth Walton, from January 1st until September 30th, at £13 per quarter, £39; total, £91. It, moreover, appeared that the insolvent had been engaged in the pearlshell industry at Western Australia, that the claimant's wife resided in Sydney, and Walton's "children" lodged with her. Lees had, he said, married one of the daughters of the insolvent, and it was with respect to board and lodging of three other "children" that the claim for £91 was made. Mr. Lloyd asked what were the ages of these "children," and he was informed by the claimant that Martha was 24, Catherine between 22 and 23, and Elizabeth about 20 years of age. Mr. Lloyd said it seemed to him very strange that three "children" of such advanced ages should not have done something towards their own maintenance, and asked the witness whether they were not in some employment. Mr. Lees replied in the negative. The official assignee said it seemed to him an extraordinary thing that young women who ought to be well able to work and maintain themselves should prefer to live, not upon the bounty of their father or their brother-in-law, but upon that of the creditors of their father. The claim being of so remarkable a nature, he should not, he thought, be doing his duty to the estate if he were not to oppose it. The Registrar refused at the present stage to admit the claim, and ordered that it stand over. The meeting was adjourned until December 16th.

SINGLE MEETINGS.

Re George Powell Baines, a single meeting. Six debts were proved. The insolvent, in the course of examination by Mr. Hawkins (on behalf of proved creditors), deposed that his business had been that of an auctioneer; the business was mostly a cash business, and was carried on for the trustees of Mrs. Baines; he was still carrying on that business; he never held the property; he had a private house which was never settled on his wife; the house was sold by the mortgagees before witness's insolvency; the property where he carried on business never belonged to him; the trustees collected the money for his wife; after witness's place was burned out money was collected, and with that money the trustees purchased the property and settled it on Mrs. Baines; before witness's place was burned out the property belonged to Mr. Harrison; witness was a weekly tenant, and had a ground lease; he erected the store which was burned down; neither the store nor the stock was insured; he erected the building on a weekly tenancy; when he was burned out he gave the property over to the landlord; witness did not know the trustees were purchasing the land; they asked his consent to the purchase, and he gave it; everything was burned except the horse and cart; it was incorrect that only £40 was collected; the property was worth £700; the balance of the purchase money was borrowed from a building society; witness valued his stock at £100; the property was mortgaged to Mr. Isaacs for £112; the furniture and stock-in-trade were mortgaged to Mr. Jacobs for £90. By Mr. Nicholson (who appeared for the insolvent): Mr. Isaacs had security over a leasehold; the property witness mortgaged to Jacobs was his own. To Mr. Hawkins: Witness was living on what he made as an auctioneer; he was carrying on a furniture business for Mr. Isaacs, and an auctioneering business on his own account; he was now making about £3 a week. The meeting terminated.

Re Kenneth Mackenzie. The insolvent did not attend. One debt was proved.

Re Charles Father. One debt was proved. The insolvent was examined by the official assignee, but nothing of importance was elicited.

Re William Halfnights. Two debts were proved.

SECOND MEETINGS.

Re Edmund William Deacon. Three debts were proved.

Re William Spence Lockhart. No debts were proved.

SPECIALS FOR PROOF.

Re Elias Cohen. One debt was proved.

DARLINGHURST APPEAL COURT.—FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.)

THE QUEEN V. HAYES.

Mr. Clark Irving for the Crown: Mr. William Oliver for the appellant.

In this case, the appellant, the licensee of the Warwick Arms in Riley-street, had been fined £10 and costs by Mr. T. K. Abbott, S.M., for having sold liquor on Sunday, the 11th September. The evidence adduced by the prosecution was that at a quarter-past 11 o'clock on the night in question Police-constable Brown saw a woman named Sweetman go into the Warwick Arms at the time mentioned. At the same time several men went in and several were let out, and around the door there were a number of men in an intoxicated condition. A few minutes later the woman came out, and appeared to have something under her apron. The constable asked her what she had, and she replied, "Nothing;" but he found that she had a quantity of rum in a bottle. He taxed her with coming out of the hotel, and getting the rum there, but she denied it. He then went to the hotel door and knocked, but it was ten minutes before the landlord came, and when the constable taxed him with having served the woman, he said, "You must be making a mistake, she did not come here;" but the woman who was with him said, "No, I came out of here, but I did not get the rum here, I got it at another place last night, but left it at a friend's down the street, and called for it to-night." Constable Rex corroborated the evidence of Constable Brown. For the defence, a witness named Evans deposed that he was a lodger at the hotel, and that on the 11th September the defendant went to bed at 10 minutes to 11 o'clock, leaving witness in the parlour to let in boarders. He denied that there was anyone in the place but himself till he let the woman in. She said she came to see the landlord about doing some work on the Monday; and he accordingly called Mr. Hayes, who came downstairs. He had lodged there three weeks, and the landlord had given him authority to admit the lodgers; no one was in the bar. Ellen Sweetman's statement was that when she went into the house she had the rum with her. She had left it the night before at the house of a woman whom she had been nursing. There was only sixpennyworth, in a lemonade bottle. Evans had opened the door to her; the landlord was upstairs, and afterwards came down. The defendant's statement bore out the evidence of Evans and the woman. He said it was impossible that anyone could have been served with drink as mentioned, because he had gone to bed before Sweetman came into the place and taken the key with him. He denied that there were drunken people either in the house or at the door. When the magistrate gave his decision Mr. Kempthorne, who then appeared for Hayes, gave notice of appeal.

An additional witness was called yesterday on the part of the Crown, viz., the night watchman employed by the Gas Company to watch certain works then in progress near the Warwick Arms. He proved that a number of people were going in and out of the hotel about 11 o'clock on the night of the Sunday in question, and that he was invited to have a drink by Mrs. Sweetman, but declined. She offered him 3d. to pay for it, but Mrs. Sweetman in her evidence was rather indignant about this, and said it was 6d. The different witnesses were examined and cross-examined at some length.

Mr. Oliver spoke in support of the appellant's case, which was that the evidence disclosed no defence; that the conviction was bad and contrary to law, and that the decision was against the weight of evidence.

His HONOR sustained the judgment of the Court below, with five guineas costs, to be paid to the Clerk of the Peace within one week.

This concluded the business.

In another column appears the prospectus of the Princess Alexandra Gold-mining Co., Ironbarks, registered with a capital of £36,000 in £1 shares.

Elsewhere will also be found the prospectus of the Mount Leyshon United Gold-mining Co., Limited, Charters Towers, North Queensland. The capital is £100,000, in 200,000 shares of 10s. each, and the provisional directorate is a representative one. The company is formed to acquire and work the following gold-mining leases, Mount Leyshon:—No. 955, 10 acres; No. 1062, 7 acres; No. 1026, 5 acres; No. 1030, 7½ acres, containing an aggregate area of 29½ acres. The leaseholds are part of Mount Leyshon proper, and the Mount is situated about 16 miles from Charters Towers in a south-easterly direction, and is within easy reach of the railway. Prospecting during two years has, it is said, shown that the property is a mountain of auriferous stuff of a soft and yielding nature, averaging from 10dwt. to 3oz. of gold per ton. Encouraging facts are set forth in the prospectus.

The hon. secretary, Sydney Stock Exchange, reports the crushing of the Band and Albion Gold Company, Ballarat, to be 483 tons stone for a yield of 237oz. of gold.

Messrs. C. F. W. Lloyd and Co. report having sold, by public auction, during the week, the mortgagee's interest in 10,666 shares, Gipsy Girl Silver-mining Company, Silverton; and a two-thirds share in three mineral conditional purchases, situate Thackaringa, for the sum of £5000 cash—Mr. G. Matheson, purchaser.

At a general meeting of the shareholders of the Terrible Dick Silver-mining Company, Limited, Silverton, held at the company's office, yesterday, the following resolution was moved by Mr. L. W. Fienberg, and seconded by Mr. E. R. Daunt,—"That the managing directors' progress report, as presented to the meeting, be received and adopted." The resolution was carried unanimously. A vote of thanks to the chairman (Mr. E. Millett) and directors closed the business of the meeting. The report, which has already been alluded to, was of a most encouraging and satisfactory character.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Terrible Dick Silver-mining Company, Silverton, November 14.—Some of the machinery for smelters has just arrived. The boiler will leave Silverton to-day. It would have arrived earlier but for the difficulty of getting things up from Adelaide on account of the different gauges on the line, things thus being delayed sometimes for days. I have let by contract the work to take out the foundation for the smelters, and for cutting trench for the flue. I have also let a contract for burning the lime we have on our property in preparation for smelting and building operations. Am pushing on everything as fast as I can, and will do my best to get all ready as quickly as possible. Everything is working to my satisfaction.

The mine manager of the Broken Hill South Silver Mine telegraphs as follows:—"The main shaft is now down 140ft.; country clear of lode and good sinking. Surface works are progressing satisfactorily."

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The following are the latest Gympie crushings:—417 tons from No. 1 North Glanmire yielded 580oz. of gold; a dividend of 1s. per share was declared. 600 tons from the Golden Crown claim yielded 519oz. The Charters Towers crushings are—197 tons from the Stockholm mine, 160oz.; 57 tons from the Union Jack (mundic stone), 75oz. of gold.

BATHURST, FRIDAY.

Intimation has been received from the Mines Department that the Prospecting Board has approved of aid being granted from the vote for prospecting for the benefit of the Sofala district to Messrs. Walker, Alsop, and party, to the extent of 30s. per foot, for sinking a shaft at Monkey Hill 150ft., and 5s. per foot for driving 200ft. if necessary; to G. R. Williams, to the extent of 25s. per foot, for sinking a shaft at Carney's Reef, 6ft. by 3ft. in the clear, to the depth of 100ft. on the underlay; and to M'Lean and party and James and party conjointly, to the extent of 1s. 6d. per foot for sinking a shaft at Sandy Flats 600ft. and driving 400ft. The board could not sanction the appropriation of any portion of the vote to the purchase or erection of machinery and appliances as requested by S. Davidson, who desired aid to erect a water-wheel at Oakey Creek, as if that course were entered upon the demands upon the vote would be so great that very little of it would be left for legitimate prospecting.

CARCOAR, FRIDAY.

Several mining experts have lately visited the newly opened reefs at the Junction, Cornishman's neighbourhood, and they speak highly of them. It is reported that several small nuggets have lately been discovered at Dogtrap Gully, near Tuena.

TEMORA, FRIDAY.

No. 2 tributors of the S. A. Q. Company crushed 20 tons for 7oz. 6dwt. per ton. The S. A. Q. crushed 47 tons for a yield of 10dwt. per ton. May and party, at Foster's old claim, lower lead, washed 23 loads, returning 12dwt. per load. Mackinney and Conway, West Fiery Cross, Barmedman, crushed 23 tons for 3oz. per ton.

BROKEN HILL, FRIDAY.

The week's run at the Broken Hill mine is equal to five furnaces for six days of seven hours, one furnace being shut down a day and a-half for repairs. The ore treated was 1147 tons, silver 55,860oz. Sinking has been resumed in M'Culloch's shaft below the 316ft. level. At the 216ft. level south, they are in a splendid lode of carbonate ore, containing rich patches of horn silver. A contract has been let for sinking Patterson's 100ft. from the present bottom. Work was commenced yesterday, and is expected to be completed in two months from date, but the crop in the vicinity of this shaft is producing magnificent iron. The erection of machinery at Brodribb's is being proceeded with. At the 66ft. level in this shaft good ironstone is being worked. At the 132ft. level the blocking faces are yielding capital silicious iron ore. Sinking in Jamieson's continues. Two shifts are employed. The ore raised is about the same quantity, viz., 94oz. to the ton. Very good quality of kaolin and iron taken from the 208ft. south level, and the stopes at 142ft. have been yielding extraordinary rich kaolin. At Knox's the surface improves, and the mine generally never looked better than at the present time. At Block a crosscut is being put in west with the object of cutting any portion of the lode which may have branched. On Block 16 a shaft is being sunk in manganic ironstone. The rock in the last 20 feet was very close and hard, but is now much easier. At the War Dance a good appearance is maintained; the lode is improving as sinking proceeds. A small parcel was despatched for treatment, and good returns are expected therefrom. It is reported that rich sulphides have been struck in the winze 16 feet below the 150ft. level. Shares are much inquired after.

SILVERTON, FRIDAY.

At the Caloola claim the west shaft is down 38ft. on No. 3 lode. No. 2 lode shaft has been sunk 12ft. and shows good tin. On No. 1 lode the shaft is 25ft. deep, and there is also another shaft being sunk at present, which is down 40ft. This claim looks very well, and the ore around the shaft is of good quality. The Victory tin-mine consists of 160 acres, including a disputed block on the north. The lode runs up a gully, cropping out only at intervals, and finally forms a quartzite blow. On block 35, a shaft is down 35ft., showing a fine lode with small crystals of tin evenly distributed through the stone. On block 34 the shaft is 60ft. deep, and is being sunk on the footwall, carrying about 4ft. of lode, the full width whereof is about 14ft. The ore is very rich, the smalls assaying 4 per cent, and the roughs showing a larger percentage of tin, and even the fine stuff from the shaft is full of very fine grains of pure oxide. The tunnel is in 30ft., and here there is a 3ft. lode in width of tin showing. The fact of the lode widening out so much points to the conclusion that in depth, Euriowie will have good permanent and payable lodes. On the Albion claim the main shaft is down 31ft., and the lode in the bottom at the south end is 3½ft. wide, and shows large crystals of tin and a fine compact lode which is gradually widening out. At 21ft. it was barely 1ft., and as it increases in size so is the quality improved, and the pile at the shaft is far above the average quality on the Barrier. At the Bischoff mine, work, pending the arrival of the new manager, is merely preparatory. The east shaft is down 50ft., and with a width of lode of about 40ft. The west shaft is 40ft. deep, and a crosscut of 40ft. has cut a lode which is 19ft. wide, with a lot of tin showing.

INQUEST.

The City Coroner (Mr. H. Shiell, J.P.) held an inquest yesterday, at the Club Hotel, King-street, Newtown, on the body of a lad named Alfred Ernest Sloman, aged seven years, the adopted son of Mrs. Woodhouse, 53, Wilson-street, Newtown. Evidence was adduced to the effect that on Saturday morning last the deceased went on a visit to a Mr. Heydon, at Toongabbie, near Parramatta, and on the afternoon of that day Mr. Heydon went on business to Parramatta, taking the deceased and his own son in the cart with him. Having transacted his business, he was returning home, his son standing up in the vehicle driving, and deceased was standing alongside him holding on by two ropes fastened to the cart. Mr. Haydon was sitting with his back towards the boys, and when about a mile from home he heard a scream, and on looking round saw deceased on his hands and knees on the ground. He at once picked deceased up and conveyed him to his residence, where he was attended to, and remained until Monday last, when he was removed to his home at Newtown. Frank Heydon, jun., stated that deceased, whilst in the cart, began to jump about and call out, which made the horse increase its pace, and deceased losing his balance fell over the side of the cart to the ground. Dr. Steel stated he was called in to see deceased on Tuesday morning last, and found him to be suffering from bruises on the head; he prescribed for him, but he gradually sank and died the following day; he made a post-mortem examination of the body, and found that death was due to compression of the brain, consequent upon extravasation of blood, the result of external violence. The jury returned a verdict that death resulted from injuries accidentally received.

"Ay, marry, now unmuzzle your wisdom."—Rosalind.

What name shall we give to the "proceedings" of the Legislative Assembly on Thursday night? They did not amount to a riot, because the Assembly is a lawful not an unlawful one; and nothing took place that one can fairly call a breach of the peace, nor did any of the actors proceed to execute an unlawful purpose, to the terror of the Queen's subjects, so that a magistrate would have been justified in reading the Riot Act. They did not amount to insurrection, treason, felony, mutiny, sedition, barratry, or even to a faction fight or a free fight, for reasons not necessary to set forth. If they had, the Speaker could not have called in the aid of the police to restore order, and carry away the killed and wounded. Perhaps we must resign ourselves to the recognition of these proceedings as an element in law-making. They represent one of the preliminaries in the introduction of bills, not provided for in the Standing Orders perhaps; but capable of being brought into operation pro re natâ, so to speak. But what puzzles me most about these proceedings in the conduct of Thursday's business—(they culminated, if I remember rightly, upon the announcement by Sir Henry Parkes that he would move the House into committee on a certain day to consider the Naval Subsidy Bill)—is to make up my mind whether they were premeditated or suddenly and spontaneously "ignited" by that wretched attempt of Mr. Hugh Taylor's to stifle all debate on Sir Henry's motion. I have all along felt certain that several members of her Majesty's Opposition meant to take the earliest opportunity of testing the gagging standing order by taking "a certain course," whereupon the Speaker would take "a certain course," to be followed by "a certain course" on the part of the Premier, and terminated by a "certain course" taken by the Sergeant; all those "courses" being necessary to obtain a decision of the Supreme Court upon the validity of that standing order! (Risum teneatis Amici?)

I suppose that about 20,000 people, as they read the report of this queer political dust-storm yesterday morning, fixed upon this, that, or the other culprit—not a few, perhaps, discharging on the collective legislators a withering curse, sarcasm, or rebuke—as the persons to be brought up to the bar of public opinion, condemned and executed for the disgraceful outrage reported by the newspapers, and possibly tried afterwards, as is sometimes the case when the offender is a political malefactor, actual or alleged. But, here, again, I find myself unable to hunt with the myriads, though daring to say that Mr. Herbert Spencer, who has reduced everything human under philosophic regulations of his own, has most likely something on this subject. But, whether he has or not, I, who am by no means a disciple, though by every means an admirer, of that very hard-to-understand teacher, venture to propound a theory for that dust-storm which ought to cast the responsibilities of the phenomenon on the parties responsible for other meteorological cataclysms. When cats and certain other creatures are rubbed up the wrong way of their hair they generate electricity. Similarly, when politicians are submitted to a sand-papering process at the hands of other politicians, electricity of a positive kind is rapidly generated; and as these electrified politicians have no conductors attached to them, and often have no other means (such as writing to the newspapers or spouting to their constituents) of discharging the pent-up fluid, does it not go without saying that directly their enormous volume of positive-electricity is brought into contact with ever so small a volume of negative electricity, the result is a lurid southerly buster, with horrible atmospheric threatenings, a few crashes of thunder, lightning to match, some big drops of rain and hail, half-an-hour of blinding dust—and then a calm. So it came to pass that when that extremely negative and neglectable quantity, Mr. Taylor, came into contact with the accumulated and highly charged batteries of the Opposition, the result was a Parliamentary simoom so terrible that even the Speaker had to lie down flat while the hot blast passed over him.

"Don't shoot, Colonel! I'm coming down." This was not said in so many words by the Minister of Lands to the Opposition leader of her Majesty's Opposition, Mr. Joseph Abbott; but the thing was done. Mr. Abbott, some say magnanimously, some say otherwise, informed the Minister and the Speaker that he had charged his blunderbuss up to the muzzle with objections against the Land Bill, and meant to fire it off when the proper time came, but that he did not want to take the Government by surprise. As if it would not be a surprise to them to find the gentleman who cheered the announcements made by the Minister on his introduction of the bill, as if he had been sitting on the front row of the Ministerial benches, solemnly preparing to cut its throat even before it got into committee. However, surprise or no surprise, the Government very sensibly ordered its pet coon to come down the tree, for if Mr. Abbott had fired off his piece, it was certain that the coon would have been badly hit. Anyway, time was saved by his coming down before the bombarding began, and Mr. Speaker was relieved from the task of making a rather unpleasant decision. Mr. Garrett has given his pet a few touches, so he says, but it is the same coon as ever to all intents and purposes; at all events he means Victory or Westminster Abbey with him, and the Government have said that they all mean the same. I think Mr. Garrett had cause of complaint in Mr. Abbott's treatment of the Land Bill. If he had "dissembled his love" for that lady in the first instance, nobody would have been surprised to find him afterwards "kicking her downstairs." But he did not dissemble; he fell violently in love at first sight, and made an offer of his hand and heart; and then he jilted her, on a point of law, "after notice to the other side."

A few months ago we were in a dreadful state of trouble. We had a deficit, and we didn't know what to do with it. We got very much excited; we were very uncomfortable; we talked of our national credit—or rather discredit; we said we must get rid of that deficit at any cost; and so we brought in a Government under which the deficit was certain to disappear. And we were right. The deficit has disappeared; but where has it gone to? Why, into the limbo of forgetfulness—into the convenient dusthole into which people empty all their troubles. Let us absorb the moral and cover up the unpleasant illustration. Let us forget the deficit, and—retrench. And how shall we retrench? Why, surely, by following the example of individuals. Let us continue to spend what we ought to save, and see if we cannot contrive to save what we ought to spend.

Rumour has it that a considerable reduction is to be made in the salaries of some of the principal officers of the Civil Service—of those, at least, who receive promotion. That is to say, we are to dangle a decent salary before the eyes of the expectant Civil servant, and when, after long years, he has got within reach of it, we are to snatch it away from him. I can hardly believe that any policy of retrenchment so despicably mean as this is contemplated, and yet people tell me that it is so. Mean! One feels ashamed to think that even in the fractional capacity of a voter he is to some extent answerable for such a proceeding. People sometimes forget that the Civil servant stands in a somewhat different position from those who get payment for their services from other sources than the Government. He is in this position: the Government by employing him has gradually deprived him of such business faculties as would enable him to struggle with the world outside. It has taken his best years from him and has forced him to acquire skill in a direction which is of little value except in a Government office. And then feeling that he is safe—that he cannot protest—will the Government dare turn round and say that the special aptitude which fits the man for his work, and which unfits him for employment elsewhere, is to lower the market value of his services? That because in their service he has grown grey-headed and unfitted to commence life afresh it is safe to grind him down and drive a hard bargain with him? Rumour is said to be generally wrong; but rumour, nevertheless, is very often right. I sincerely hope it is not so in this case.

• • • • •

I have said thus far a few words from the point of common honesty only. But when we turn to policy, there is something more to be said. To tell the truth we pay our principal Civil servants worse than any of that unfortunate class which has to eat "the bitter bread of the Government." They have to work for many years at a very moderate stipend before they reach the munificent £900 a-year or so which we offer to the ultimately successful. And that £900 a year is one of the great prizes—given to but few to attain. Will anyone say that it compares even decently with the lesser prices in any other profession? And now—by way of retrenchment—that is to be cut down, and with what result? Are the Government fatuous enough to believe that if they should take such a step as this they will continue to get in the future the same class of men that they have had in the past? Hitherto the one thing that has attracted superior men into the Public service has been a sense of perfect security. The position has been regarded as certain as long as the duties were properly performed; and the salary, if moderate, has ever had the reputation of being variable in the downward direction. But now-a-days we have changed all that, and with it, I greatly fear, we shall change the quality of our Civil Service, too. However, what does it matter? If we were to keep the salaries of our principal Civil servants at the present rate, we should lose several hundreds a-year; and then where should we get a couple of thousand a-week to spend upon the unemployed? Though the heavens should fall we must look after the voter.

In the matter of the designs for new postage-stamps the Government has evidently taken a wrinkle from Mr. Garvan. Mr. Garvan wanted to get an allegorical picture of seven colonies during a period of one hundred years for £300. The Postmaster-General is even more economical. £10 10s. is the noble offer for the best design for each denomination, and the disappointed proxime accessit will receive £3 3s. And for ten guineas you have to do a good deal. Mr. Garvan sets no limit of space, and presumably intending competitors will have a few acres on the side of the Kurrajong Mountains properly cleared and prepared for the reception of the competing frescoes. But those who aspire to design Centennial postage-stamps will have to express the value—I suppose add a representation of her Majesty the Queen—put in the name "New South Wales," and complete everything by the words "One hundred years;" and all this in about the space of half a square inch. I confess I am somewhat at a loss to know why the words "One hundred years" are to be added. Are they for ever to remain as part of the postage-stamp motto? Or are they merely inserted by way of advertisement, and in order that all the kingdoms of the earth may learn through the medium of the post office that we have attained our centenary? If this latter be the reason for the insertion of them, would it not be simpler to take the bull by the horns at once, and put our centenary into the hands of a big advertisement contractor? There are plenty of vacant hoardings in most of the chief cities of Europe.

Several friends of mind, not endowed with that most melancholy of inheritances—common sense—have been complaining about the insufficiency of the criminal law. Say they, "Is it not obviously a crime to advertise soap, baking-powder, starch, schnapps, hop-bitters, and ever so many patent quack medicines by ghastly appeals done in washwash or tar, in letters from a foot to six feet high, on cliffs, rocks, trees, and other out-outraged natural forms?" I admit at once that this thing ought to be made a misdemeanour after about two or three score of much viler malpractices have been made felonies. I won't say what they are now. But with one among them most of us must be only too familiar. Which of my readers has not wended his way through a half-column dissertation on some subject of profound and present interest—perhaps Gordon, or Stanley, or the Crown Prince of Germany, the New Hebrides, Fusel Oil, Dress and Complexion Improvers, the favourite for the Cup, aye, and even that sacred topic free trade—and just as he was approaching what appeared to be the point, or moral which the writer would surely soon begin to unfold, the entire structure fell down like a palace of cards, leaving not a wrack behind but the letters "Adv."?

IN THE HOUSE.

As after a thunder-storm in the heavy and fervid summer weather the sun comes out and freshens up the air, so did the good humour of the House yesterday stand out in polar contrast from the storm of Thursday. "'Tis pity, 'tis true; 'tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true"; but it must be confessed that, for pitiful childishness, about one-third of our Assembly have a reputation that is worthy of the last sad rites that the First Immortal might direct. They fight like cats, snarl like coyotes, exhaust their bellows of catastrophic innocuousness, and then, when they have come back to a state of partial sanity, they bring forth butter in a lordly dish and smear each other over. No pencil-brush is used; but it is put on with a mop, patted on with a ladle, rubbed on with a trowel. A dozen cranky legislators with more bile than judgment, and more blood than reasonableness of spirit, think they have a grievance, and desiring to air it for the benefit of party, spring scenes of larrikinism upon the House which only has its parallel in the precedents set by themselves and their predecessors. Some are oracular and badly balanced, some selfish and bitter, some stubborn and narrow-minded, and some piled full of an aggressive egotism, and so these rows occur. It would almost be a comfort to see these fractious people have a decent set-to outside the House to see what it would come to. But the very repression that they rebel against they are glad enough to have, as it saves them from being obliged to prove their bravery by a quieter and more effective process. That is not their way.

"They argue high, they argue low,
They also argue round about them"——

but there is neither wisdom nor manliness in their methods. Not that all are alike, not that all who do take part in these affairs are bloodthirsty, but they are eminently foolish and are handicapped by a narrowness which is only pardonable because the people have seen fit to send them into Parliament. The people's choice! The pillars of State, the guardians of the public weal, the captains at the wheels of State, the leaders of the nation's mind! These good gentlemen who yesterday could say nothing too scornful, too insulting to each other and their presiding officer, now smile in sickly fashion on their adversaries; and, as for their Parliamentary master whom they threw mud at yesterday, now "they pinck his gown to share the good man's smile." The nation ought to set apart a day for prayer, and fasting too, in the interest of their Parliament.

The early part of yesterday was spent in discussing, in a haphazard manner, Mr. Henson's resolution for suppression of the present system of private bars. Mr. Henson is very much in earnest, but he has not that clear logical conclusiveness that one hopes to find in politicians of the elderly persuasion. Not that Mr. H. is in the least hot-headed, not that he is in the least irritating in language or manner, but he is dreary, and innocent of any power to drive home an argument or to base his assertions upon what might be called reliable evidence. He, like the back-countryman, has "hear'n tell," but he "haint never been thar." He has a way of drawing upon his imagination—and it is not an acute one—for possible scenes and incidents that are only conspicuous for their inanity. Mr. Henson confessed that he knew nothing about private bars, but his mastery over detail upon that assumption was quite after the fashion of a skilled novelist. The drop of water was beaten into a bushel of bubbles with a vengeance. Mr. Toohey threatened during Mr. Henson's speech that he would a tale unfold in due time. Mr. H.'s sluggish emotion got stirred up a little towards the end, but a prevailing sadness filled his oration, and its tone was of a dull grey colour. He acknowledged that the private bars were not all bad, but he was very fearful. He read extracts from the Times, and aimed some few heavy shots at the gentlemen who interrupted him. Altogether the discussion was a farce. It was treated as a good joke by most of the members; but it was chiefly owing to the manner in which the supporters of the resolution stated their case. Mr. Alfred Allen was violent and illogical. Some men never will learn that earnestness is not the chief thing in the advocacy of a cause before a judicial tribunal. Mr. Toohey rose on his rhetorical stilts, and strutted up and down, full of wordy flatulence, while he assaulted Mr. Allen and Mr. Henson. When Mr. Toohey, by chance, makes a joke, it is like an icicle in the tropics—the result of artificial, not natural means. Mr. Frank Farnell is not a success as a debater, but he sticks manfully to his task, and angels can do no more. After some further discharge of inconsequences, Sir Henry Parkes said he would have the matter inquired into at once, and so the motion lapsed. After dinner the Legislative Council's amendments to the Insolvency Bill were dealt with, and the Royalty on Oysters Bill passed the second reading. Everybody was tired after a severe week's work, and so, at 10.15, the House adjourned.

SEALS AND SHARKS: A RAMBLING PAPER.

By Vaurien.

Fish, as an article of food, has long been considered a brain stimulant. Why it has been so considered is not quite clear, for certainly the creatures that feed exclusively on fish are not remarkable for abnormal intelligence. The birds which cover the ocean in high latitudes, and whose sustenance is drawn entirely from the sea, have, so far, shown no keener capacity than those which live far inland, and always avoid the water. It is the same with mammals. The seal, whose ichthyophagous habits can be observed at the Manly Aquarium, is palpably inferior to the elephant, who would probably not recognise a fish if he saw one. Even the highest mammal—man—does not show to such advantage under this so-called stimulating regimen as recent scientists would lead us to suppose. It is true that the fisher folk to be seen along the Kent and Sussex coasts from Dover to Brighton, and on the opposite French littoral from Calais to Dieppe, are sturdy and clean-limbed; but they are not perceptibly brighter than the ploughmen of Warwickshire or the peasants of the Vosges. Thus, when the matter is subjected to the best of all tests, the test of experience, it is not easy to escape the conclusion that a dunce will remain dull whatever he eats; a smart man smart whatever his fare. It will be remembered that Mark Twain, on being appealed to by one whose head was full of the new theory concerning the intellectually stimulating properties of a fish diet, suggested with characteristic delicacy that his correspondent was on the right track, and should begin at once on a young whale. This brings me to my subject.

One day this week a curious case was decided in a Sydney Police Court. The keeper of the Manly Aquarium was summoned for permitting a seal to eat a shark coram populo. Before dwelling on this singular trial, it might be as well to say a few words about sharks and their ways. For some reason or another, the shark has a decided preference for the Southern hemisphere over the Northern. This fact of itself is hard to account for, when it is remembered that the brute loves heat. Owing to many causes—the yearly eight days' longer stay of the sun north of the equator, the great northern land masses, the comparatively narrow channels offered for the southern flow of cold Arctic waters, among others — the temperature of Northern seas is probably much higher than that of Southern in similar latitudes. Yet the swimmer at Gibraltar or Cyprus under the 36th parallel can float without fear on the Mediterranean or Ægean breakers; while under the 42nd in Tasmania or 44th in New Zealand he risks being snapped up without ceremony. In Wellington (N. Z.) some years ago a soldier of the 65th Regiment secured his discharge from the service and from the world through one of these omnivorous pirates. But in Malta, Corfu (when the Union Jack floated there), Cyprus, and Alexandria even marines tumbled into the tepid waves and played spluttering leap-frog without fear of interruption. The very thought of such a thing in Sydney harbour sends a shudder through one. How it comes that during all these ages, while empires rose, flourished, and decayed beside Mediterranean waters, the man-eating shark never discovered the Straits of Gibraltar, has not been explained. The entrance was certainly wide enough. A person might be found sufficiently ingenious to suggest that the creature was merely waiting for the cutting of the Suez Canal; but it is not necessary to examine such a flippant hypothesis. One thing is clear, if the voracious creatures that now make a plunge into Port Jackson as hazardous as a forlorn hope could only be brought to understand what provision they might lay up for their old age by simply making a call upon the millions of succulent Spaniards, Frenchmen, Italians, Greeks, and Jews, besides Turks and Heathens, who daily dip in the Mediterranean, the vexed question of providing adequate bathing accommodation for the citizens of Sydney would be in a fair way to satisfactory settlement.

The other day, a light-hearted young friend of mine engaged a Rob Roy canoe for a mild outing among the romantic reaches at the head of Middle Harbour. During his return, and when about half-way across a slender arm of this inlet, he heard an uncanny noise, and, turning half round, saw a huge shark alongside. The brute seemed to be in doubt as to the best way to broach the cargo, whether by upsetting the fragile skiff (a very easy task), and dining at his leisure, or by a comprehensive bite, which would secure boat and man without delay. The situation was precarious at the best. Once in the water, the case was hopeless. With that instinct which comes of the desire to get in the first blow and leave the rest to fortune, the lad gave the ugly creature an unneighbourly dig with the paddle, and then dashed for the shore. But the thing was not to be put off so easily, and a few seconds afterwards the swish of the angry tail was heard on the other side. However, shallow water was reached, and, ultimately, the welcome beach. A few yards more of fathom soundings before grating on the pebbly bottom, and all would have been over, but in a manner to cause inconvenience to at least one of the parties. I mention the circumstance merely to show the aggressive character of some of the things to be found at our doors. It is as well to add that the young man was singing when the attack was made. Whether there is any connection between this circumstance and the outrage is not quite apparent. At all events, there are three things which he can be trusted to avoid, however far his useful life may be prolonged into the 20th century. They are—Middle Harbour, Rob Roy canoes, and water music.

Let us now return to the shark and seal incident. During the week following what was called the "fight," the papers were full of letters by humane people, condemning in burning words the merciless brutality of those who hounded on the inoffensive things to attack each other, and of those who stood unpityingly by. It was really pleasant to notice the amount of active benevolence the incident called forth. Fortunately, the affair was not nearly so bad as had been made out. The fish was a small one, and, in plain language, was simply thrown into the seals' tank for food. There was no fight, any more than there would be between a lion and a lamb. The seal dived, caught his prey and ate it—that was all. Still, the commotion caused was creditable. It showed that nothing in the form of cruelty to dumb creatures would be tolerated, however repulsive they were by nature. It showed too that, in many respects, British communities have more thoroughly grasped the idea of humanity than other nations. It would be absurd, for instance, to suppose that the affair at Manly would have caused the slightest ripple on society's surface in Paris, or Petersburg, or Berlin. The inhabitants of the cities named would be startled to find that it was wrong for seals to eat live sharks. Before the Sydney correspondence came to a close one writer assured the public that he knew of a case where a person now high in the Civil service of New South Wales caught a large shark, and without any provocation struck the inoffensive creature a hard knock with an iron bar. This opens up the subject of how sharks should be treated when captured. There is not time to examine this problem with the care it deserves. Perhaps, on the whole, it would be better to return them to the water, having, of course, obtained a guarantee that they will reform. What I am anxious to bring into prominence is that in Australian communities, at any rate, every care is taken to reduce within the narrowest limits the sum of suffering to which all God's creatures are, for some inscrutable purpose, more or less exposed.

For what follows I make no apology. The subject is no doubt an unpleasant one, but men and women who live in the world must be prepared to meet unpleasant things on the journey through life. The other day the Herald drew attention to the fact that without the intervention of a jury, and without the professional cross-examination that so frequently puts an entirely different complexion on the evidence of witnesses, two Sydney magistrates ordered that a human being—not a shark, mind you—should be subjected to that most terrible of punishments, bodily torture. Into the question of corporal punishment and its necessity it is not my intention to enter, beyond inviting consideration to the anomalous circumstance that while this method of correction is moribund or dead in most countries claiming a high civilisation, it appears to be gaining in popularity among British communities, especially in those like Australia, far removed from the parent land. This is remarkable. The French, German, or Italian statesman who proposed to return to the methods of the Fredericks or the Bourbons would find the door of public life closed in his face, while writers vied with each other in rendering his name infamous. In England, too, the power of awarding this form of punishment is jealously guarded, while the offences for which it can be awarded are few. To begin with, it cannot be administered without the finding of a jury. But in Victoria I have seen a single magistrate order two floggings on the unsifted evidence of babies. If you would become acquainted with all sorts and conditions of men you must frequently stand among the unsavoury audiences of a police court, and observe some of the methods by means of which society is held together. It was while acquiring this rather gruesome experience in Sydney during the past four years that I have frequently seen men sentenced to torture whom no jury in the wide British dominions would convict on the evidence. What do I mean—that the magistrates were biassed? Certainly not. Still, they are but men, after all; and, considering the influences by means of which they attain or retain their positions, they are not necessarily the astutest men to be found in the community. Be this, however, as it may, it is dangerous and wrong to entrust with such powers any man or couple of men whatever. On the face of it, it is anomalous to delegate to an inferior powers withheld from a superior—to allow an official with the salary of a confidential clerk to award, on his own finding, a punishment which a Supreme Court Judge cannot award without a jury.

To this question of torture there is one side which is invariably ignored, and which is yet the most important of all. It is the effect produced not on the sufferers but on those who witness the punishment and on those who subsequently read the details. That effect is always bad, always brutalising. You may come to the conclusion that a scoundrel deserves a sound drubbing, that it is the only means of reaching his feelings and forcing him to behave. Let curiosity or necessity, however, induce you to witness the exhibition, or read the matter-of-fact description, and if you do not come away with a bad taste in your mouth, it is because your palate has already lost a good deal of its delicacy. I claim to be an authority, for much to my regret I've been obliged to witness scores of men whipped. Throw a stone into a calm stream, and observe how from the centre where the surface was touched the areas of the wave-circles increase till they reach the banks. It is the same with the whipping-post. The wretch bound to it is the stone, and although he lives, is, in the vast majority of cases, completely lost after the punishment, whatever he was before. Yet, it is the first duty of society to protect itself, and, so, it cannot afford to turn aside from its proper office in order to indulge in sentimental speculation concerning the offender. The worst of it is that every stroke of the rod is a little wavelet of mischief—of callousness to human suffering—that extends to the assembled officials, then outside the prison walls, and ultimately through the entire social structure. Thus the reclamation of the culprit, even if it could be secured by the whip, is secured at the fearful cost of debasing the public. The philosophic reasoner is not carried away by the flabby sympathy for the obscene animal yonder. He thinks of the indurating effect that such methods have on the public heart and conscience. Within the last week I have seen foreigners resident in Sydney laugh till the tears came on reading the letters concerning the poor Manly shark, and remembering that some days before, a British citizen, without a jury to try him or a counsel to defend, was sentenced to be skinned on the evidence of infants. Granting that the interests of society demand the retention of this method of punishment, the time has surely arrived for providing that no one shall be subject to it without the intervention of a jury. I have had my say. To what a morbid train of thought does a seal and shark fight give rise!

ROUND AND ABOUT SYDNEY.

AT A CHILDREN'S PICNIC.

By Viator.

One of the most useful characteristics of our harbour is its capacity for entertaining picnic parties. The number of lovely bays and beaches suitable for picnic grounds about Sydney is great, and it is, doubtless, the natural facility for indulgence in open-air excursions which has made the population of Sydney such an essentially picnicking one. In the balmy days of spring and early summer scarcely a day passes—certainly not a week—without a picnic at one or other of the popular bays in the harbour. Sometimes these are for adults but more frequently for children. People early discovered the convenience of the harbour in this respect, and for a long time the principal event in the year's programme of many of the Sydney schools has been the annual picnic to Chowder, Cremorne, Balmoral, Athol Gardens, or some other of the favourite grounds. The break in the dull monotony of school life is delightful to the little people, who throw themselves with a complete abandon into a riot of enjoyment among the innocent glories of nature. Children enjoy nature more completely than adults—perhaps not so consciously, but greatly more sympathetically. They are nearer to Nature's God than we, who have travelled a greater distance from our cradles. The "trailing clouds of glory" are with them still,

"Apparelled in celestial light,
The glory and freshness of a dream."

With us they have faded into the light of common day. In these picnics, no doubt, impressions are made on the plastic heart of childhood which are to control the life of maturity. Could there be a better impression than that left by a day of innocent enjoyment in the midst of kindly congenial companionship, spent in some bay, say Chowder, for instance, where always the blue waves wash up in silver foam to kiss the golden sands of the long curving beach, and where there is a playground of many acres in extent as level as a lawn, enclosed by a chorus of noble hills hundreds of feet in height, feathered up to the last summit with foliage, where nestle a thousand ferns and shy wild flowers? To paddle with bare feet in the pure sea waves, to play the hundred and one games of childhood on the plain, to clamber over boulders and ruts through the thick scrub gathering wild flowers, till at last the heights are reached, and the astonishing loveliness of the harbour bursts upon the view,—how pleasant all this is to childhood! Who is there who does not recollect some such day of enjoyment spent ever so long ago, when the creaking of the locust had not lost its strange charm, and "five corners" were still a power in the land?

Upon a certain day recently the air was clangorous with the joyous notes of bells. The noise awoke the writer. First only into that semi-conscious state, when the sluggish spirit, half within the domination of lethean sleep, opposes a species of passive resistance to the impressions of awakened life. Through the leaves of the vines trellising the balcony outside, the new-risen sun was sending his golden lances by way of various interstices right athwart the room, and the matin chirp of the sparrows filled the morning air with keen and pleasant sound. It was before the usual time of rising; but there was an almost imperative summons on the part of the bells which it would have been hard-hearted to defy. Glancing at the paper, I saw an advertisement stating that there was to be a school picnic down the harbour. This, then, accounted for all the calling and clanging from the bell-towers. It was a lovely day, one that it would be cruel to spend indoors, so the resolve was formed of attending the picnic and seeing whether children still enjoyed themselves as in the days of—well, never mind how long ago. The previous evening had been wet and dismal, and the writer had been an unsuspected listener to an animated discussion among a group of young girls, just outside the door, as to the possibilities of the weather clearing before the morning. One little maiden asserted that the weather would clear if the wind ceased to blow from the south, but none of the group appeared to entertain very clear notions as to the points of the compass, the general opinion apparently indicating the west as the south. The question was finally referred to the arbitration of a juvenile tyrant in knickerbockers, who, from the terrible loftiness of his sex, looked upon the group of eager girls with an air of the most absolute scorn. Upon being appealed to there was not the slightest hesitation in his decision. "That's south," he replied, pointing his finger due north. The little incident amused the writer at the time, though the reason for all this anxiety about a change in the weather was not then apparent. The cause now became evident in the picnic. The children had their wish at any rate, for the day was fine and dry. The Circular Quay was the place of starting, and the boats were already filled when the writer reached the jetty at which they were lying. The children had marched to the quay in procession, with bands playing and banners flying. They all looked supremely happy, the girls in spotless white frocks, big summer hats, and blue or scarlet sashes; the boys in clothes unpicturesque, but clean and new-looking. Amidst a perfect hubbub of chatter and laugh the steamers moved off.

It was amusing, and just a little touching, to watch the whole-hearted eagerness with which the youthful company threw themselves into anticipations of the day's pleasure. When grown people go out there is generally some carking care which bestrides the spirit like an old man of the sea, and refuses to be shaken off. If there is no actual care, the self-consciousness of maturity itself is a bar to complete enjoyment. The poet may sing carpe diem to the world as long as he likes, but, after all, who excepting the children can do it in reality? Here and there, apart from the bright knots of talking, planning, laughing girls and boys, a child might be observed sitting alone, apparently finding enough enjoyment in watching her companions, or in gazing into the bright blue sea. You find these shy, refined children in every juvenile company. If you look at them closely, a certain peculiar suggestion of pensiveness rather than actual melancholy becomes apparent. They are much too young to have known real sorrow. It is as though the sadness of existence came to them by instinct rather than by experience. They are, perhaps, happy enough in their own way, but that is not the boisterous, merry way of ordinary children. Meanwhile, a gleeful shout, such as might have arisen from the decks of the Pinto and her companions when the Spicy Islands of the West lay revealed to the Genoese and his followers in the lovely morning light, hailed our arrival at the picnic grounds. In almost the twinkling of an eye the children were in possession of the grounds, and the carnival began. The sources of amusement were almost endless. There was a "merry-go-round," on the backs of whose stolid-looking steeds the boys clambered with shrieks of delight, while the demurer sex sat more placidly in its mimic carriages. How they enjoyed it so much passes comprehension, for merely to look at its constant revolution made the writer's head ache heartily. Occasionally some youngster lost his head, and punctuated his ride with a fall, but under the protection of that special Providence which is supposed to watch over small boys, was up again, in a moment, riding round as gaily as ever. Of course there were swings upon which venturesome lasses performed giddy journeys into the air with the greatest possible calmness. There were cricket and football, and "rounders," and races, with a number of other games played upon mysterious and intricate principles, which are not apparent to the uninitiated. Perhaps the most attractive of all the amusements was a Punch representation, wherein Mr. Punch came forward periodically, and, in the presence of a highly-interested crowd of children, proceeded to commit the most cold-blooded atrocities with an utter contempt of the law, winding up his nefarious doings by hanging the hangman himself, which barbarous act met with the full commendation of the audience.

In the midst of all the enjoyment a bell rang, and a simultaneous rush was made in the direction of the pavilion. Here an immense pile of bags, containing confectionery and fruit, was stored, flanked by casks of ginger beer. These bags were distributed to the children, with pannikins of the sweet but somewhat flat liquid. The demolition was awful, and only to be suffered by the perfect digestion of the young. The mere thought of being forced to consume a moiety of what each child swallowed with the utmost light-heartedness was sufficient to give the coldest of shivers. There was one blessing about it. The mothers of the children were fortunately absent, and this spared the dreadful spectacle, with its awful suggestions of what might reasonably be expected to follow. But even the lunch ended without accident, and the merry rout dispersed again to play. The parents of some of the children had come down in later boats, and were engaged in some shady spot in negotiating substantial lunches on their own account, and in watching their youth renewed in the games and pleasure of their happy children. One fat man, reclined on a green bank, engaged in discussing a wonderful pile of sandwiches and a bottle of Guiness's stout, was particularly interested in a game played near, and wore upon his jovial face a broad and beaming smile, as though the genius of the past were tickling his heart with the most jocund of memories, of a time, mayhap, when he too could skip and play. Every now and then a band of children arrived with hot faces and large bunches of flowers, which they had culled in the bush. So the long bright day wore on to its close. The white dresses were all soiled now, and the hair somewhat rough and tangled. The faces, too, so fresh in the morning, were flushed and tired, looking, and, it must be confessed, not altogether clean, and yet, withal, they were happy faces. But at last the time arrives for returning to Sydney, and the children are all marshalled up by their teachers and gathered on the steamers, which move off just as the sun is sinking with all his gay equipage behind the western hills. Over the quiet waters they move, with the children sitting side by side, some of the younger openly manifesting their weariness by laying their heads upon the shoulders of their neighbours. The childish voices rise in a sweet strain of song, which continues till the Quay is reached. The day's enjoyment is over, but will doubtless be acted many a time in dreams again, and serve in youthful circles as food for conversation till the varying year brings the annual picnic around once more.

THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE BREWARRINA DISTRICT.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

BREWARRINA, Friday.

A public meeting was held here last night in the School of Arts, and was largely attended. Mr. R. R. Machattie was in the chair, and in opening the proceedings stated that the object of the meeting was to consider what steps it was advisable to take in reference to the Back Creek bridges and the Byrock-Brewarrina railway. Mr. G. D. Millen proposed the first resolution,—"That in view of the Minister's promise to place an amount upon the Estimates for the Back Creek bridges, this meeting desires to urge upon Mr. Sutherland the advisability of at once having the necessary preliminary steps taken towards the early construction of the bridges." Mr. H. Burton briefly seconded the motion, and Messrs. M'Mahon, Roper, and M'Elligott having spoken, the motion was carried. Mr. W. N. Willis moved the second resolution as follows:—"That this meeting desires to remind the Minister for Works of the conditional promises given by his predecessors in reference to the construction of the Brewarrina railway, and respectfully requests that he will be pleased to give the matter his earnest consideration in formulating his railway policy." He said that every man in Brewarrina was alive to the fact that the railway was their due. Brewarrina had been too apathetic, and in consequence had lost a good deal which other towns had gained. If they studied the map they would see at a glance the highly favourable position occupied by Brewarrina, if only the proper facilities were offered for the full development of the natural resources. The easiest way out of the difficulty was to get the Sydney merchants to interest themselves in the matter. It was to their interest to help the proposed line, as without it the Queensland and other trade would be lost to Sydney. If a good case were put before the Minister, he felt sure they would get the line. This, he thought, could best be done by a deputation. Mr. R. Kelly seconded the motion. The motion was carried. A further motion was passed appointing Messrs. Millen, Willis, and Burton a deputation to lay the foregoing resolutions before the Minister, in company with the members for the district. In replying to a vote of thanks, the chairman reminded the deputation of the very powerful argument placed in their hands by the rapid settlement going on around Brewarrina. That very day the land board had recommended nine additional homestead leases to men who had come from all parts to settle in the district, which was held in high repute for small settlement. No other district in the Western division could show anything like the settlement which had taken place in Brewarrina during the past two years.

The deputation is now placing itself in communication with Messrs. Waddell and Wilson, Ms.L.A., with the view of arranging the necessary details.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE AMY SHERWIN CONCERTS.

Miss Amy Sherwin's concert season was brought to a close last evening, the Y.M.C.A. Hall being crowded in every part by an immense and most enthusiastic audience. There is no more crucial test of the appreciation of an artist than a return visit, and the success of this farewell series of concerts is, therefore, the best possible proof that Miss Sherwin and Herr Rhodes have thoroughly won the sympathy of the Sydney public.

The prima donna sang last night the grand scena from Weber's "Der Freischutz," known as "Softly sighs," to the original German text. True pathos, purity of style, and genuine passion were its strongest characteristics, while the execution was most brilliant. It was evident that the vocalist had her whole soul in the piece, for perfect expression was given to every phase of sentiment which it contains. Miss Sherwin was loudly recalled, and loaded with floral decorations; and she sang as an encore a most charming song by Lassen, entitled "Whither?" The recitative and polonaise from Thomas's "Mignon" was the next item, and it was delivered with fine effect, despite its great difficulties. Another encore being demanded, the favourite "Old Folks at Home" was given, and evidently keenly enjoyed. The Scotch ballad, "Robin Adair," was the last song, and the enthusiastic applause at the conclusion showed that the audience was by no means anxious to see and hear the last of Miss Amy Sherwin, so that the vocalist once more had to appear, singing "Home, Sweet Home," by way of farewell.

An apology had to be made early in evening for the unaccountable absence of Herr Rhodes, who was unfortunately detained for some time by unforeseen causes. When, however, he appeared, he did his best to make ample amends, for he surpassed himself in the fine "Ballade and Polonaise" of Vieuxtemps, tone and bowing being wonderfully perfect. Special praise must here be accorded to Mr. Huenerbein for his artistic accompaniments. By way of encore, Ole Bull's "Mother's Prayer" was played with skill and real tenderness of expression. Raff's exquisite "Cavatina" was followed by one of the best of Sarasake's "Spanish Dances," both being excellently played, but the best effort of all was again the two last movements of Mendelssohn's E minor concerto for violin, which was repeated by request. It is unreasonable to compare Herr Rhodes with veteran virtuosi, such as Wilhelmj, or even Remenyi, and their rendering can hardly be viewed as a fair standard by which to judge others. Herr Rhodes, however, has at least shown that he can give a rendering of the concerto of which none need be ashamed. That the "Irish Airs" played at the end of the concert gave pleasure need hardly be recorded.

Mons. Kowalski had a large share of work and honour, too, last evening, for beside his announced solos he was requested to play during Herr Rhodes' absence, and he performed with effect two of his own compositions, viz., "Solitude," a Nocturne, and "Tambour Battant." In L. de Meyer's paraphrase on "Martha," his fingers found plenty to do and his execution was most brilliant, especially that of the left hand, to which was allotted double work in the "Last Rose." Wieniawski's "Valse de Concert" was also a fine performance, and if the talented performer did not play again, it was not because the audience failed to express a strong wish to hear him.

We understand that Miss Sherwin goes overland to Victoria next week, appearing in Melbourne on the 3rd proximo, after giving sundry concerts in the provinces. After Melbourne Adelaide will be visited, Miss Sherwin being under engagement for a week to the Exhibition Commissions. Doubtless all will cordially wish her bon voyage and continued success.

The Shakespearian season at the Criterion Theatre is being continued with remarkable success. The plays of the great master are here well presented, and the public are showing their appreciation by according large patronage. The present production, "Cymbeline," is beautifully represented, Miss Essie Jenyns making a charming Imogen. "Cymbeline" will be repeated this evening.

There was a good house to witness the fifth performance of the "Red Lamp" at the Theatre Royal last evening, and the play was well received. The intrigues of Nihilism and the terrorism created by its presence in Russia are well shown in this drama, which will be played again this evening.

Her Majesty's Theatre is retaining the attention of a large proportion of theatre-goers just now with the drama "Held by the Enemy," with Mr. Nelson Decker, Mr. G. Rignold, Miss Kate Bishop, and Miss Decker in the principal characters. There was a large audience at the theatre last evening, and the play was much enjoyed. "Held by the Enemy" will be repeated this evening.

"Night Life in London" is the attraction at the Gaiety Theatre, and a popular play it has proved. There being no wane in this popularity, the same play will be given this evening.

The characteristic entertainment of the Alhambra Music Hall was given again last evening, and as usual the hall was crammed. A good programme will be rendered this evening, and on Monday evening there will be a change.

Messrs. Walsh and King's Standard Minstrel and Burlesque Company is now appearing at the Victoria Theatre, Parramatta, and, we are informed, with very great success.

The third grand display of Pain's fireworks and illuminations will take place this evening in the Domain in aid of the Queen's Fund.

There will be a matinee performance at the Bondi Aquarium, commencing at 3 p.m., to-day. Professor Feider, a great magician, will give an entertainment.

The excellent and highly-popular actor, Mr. G. W. Anson, will be tendered a benefit (his first in Australia) on Friday evening next at the Theatre Royal. The programme will consist of two comedies—"A Clerical Error" and "Courtship"—in both of which Mr. Anson will appear in his original characters.

Next Thursday night at the Gaiety Theatre Miss Lily Dampier will appear in the character of Rosalind in "As You Like It." The occasion will be a benefit to Miss Dampier, and Lord Carrington and suite will be present. Mr. Dampier is so good and consistent a Shakesperian actor and scholar that his interpretations have come to be looked upon as masterly performances. Miss Dampier has only within the last two years essayed Shakesperian characters, but young as she is she has exhibited a dramatic power and a clearness of conception that show her worthy of her training. No doubt the Gaiety Theatre will be crowded next Thursday night.

M. Henri Kowalski will give his first sacred concert at Her Majesty's Theatre to-morrow evening. As will be seen by our advertising columns, the programme is of a high-class character, and the performers announced are—Miss Amy Sherwin, Mr. W. Walshe, Herr Johann Rhodes, Signor Vittorini, M. Henri Kowalski, and a large orchestra.

THE COMPARATIVE MERITS OF VICTORIA AND NEW SOUTH WALES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On again reading my letter in your issue of this morning it seems to me that I have been perhaps less lucid than the subject requires, and, therefore, crave sufficient space from you to remove any false impression which may have arisen amongst our Victorian friends from my statement that at one period the entire white population of that part of Australia was convict.

This statement is undoubtedly true, for on Colonel Collins abandoning the settlement which he was sent to form in Port Phillip in 1802, three prisoners who had escaped were left behind; two of these soon perished, but the third, Buckley, remained the sole white inhabitant of the country which now constitutes Victoria until the Hentys settled at Portland Bay, a period of upwards of 30 years.

I am, &c., JNO. M. CREED.

The manager of the Rookwood Road Metal Quarry Company, Limited, reports having sold 850 shares at par—20s.

Mr. Benjamin James has been appointed manager of the Anglo-Australian Investment, Finance, and Land Company, Limited.

A full prospectus of the Union Terminating Building Society is published in our advertising columns. It will be seen that the society is to confine its operations to purely building society business. Application for shares is to be made to Mr. A. E. Bubb, the secretary.

Our English cable news shows that the bank reserve continues to increase, the total amounting to £12,400,000, being £100,000 in excess of last week's figures, and the proportion of reserves to liabilities being 48 per cent., as against 47 per cent. last week. Consols have advanced 2s. 6d., being quoted at 103¼. Colonial securities, however, appear to be rather weaker; South Australian 4 per cents. are quoted at 102, against 103, the price 10 days back; New Zealand 4 per cents. at 97, also being 20s. lower than they were a fortnight ago. Copper and tin continue to increase in value, the former having risen to £142 per ton. Since the beginning of the month copper has advanced 20s. per ton, Wallaroo being quoted at £51 per ton.

The Hon. J. F. Burns has been appointed to fill the vacant seat on the board of the Pacific Fire and Marine Insurance Company, caused by the death of the late Mr. H. E. A. Allan.

In the Import markets a moderately good trade is reported. The influence of the Christmas requirements is manifest in the demand for seasonable goods; but for other merchandise the inquiry is rather slack. In breadstuffs there is not much doing, with a total absence of speculative movement. Bakers' lines are moving off as follows:—South Australian town, £9 10s.; country, £8 15s. to £9; Victorian, £8 15s. to £9; New South Wales, £8 10s. to £9 15s.; roller flour, £9 5s. to £10. Wheat worth 3s. 9d. In tea a rather better inquiry noticed, and several hundred half-chests have been placed at from 40s. to 45s. Coffee is steady at 12d. to 12½d. for No. 1 Ceylon Plantation. Barry's chicory, 2½d. Epps's cocoa is still scarce and worth 1s. 8d.; to arrive, 1s. 7½d. accepted. Considerable sales of Fry's cocoa reported at 1s. 6d. with but light stocks. The trade in dried fruits continues fairly active, Eleme raisins and figs all going off freely. New currants are firm at 5½d., at which 200 boxes were placed. Elemes, 4½d. to 4¾d. for old fruit, 6d. for new; some holders asking up to 6½d. Sultanas dono at 6d. For figs 7s. to 7s. 3d. was paid Dates held for 3d. The sugar market is firm, with an upward tendency consequent on the stronger tone of the Queensland markets, and the smaller shipments coming to hand. For China white, £25 asked; Queensland white, £23 to £24; yellows, £18 to £21; ration sorts, from £15. The best qualities of rice are rather dearer, up to £13 10s. being quoted; good table rice, in inferior condition, selling from £12 5s.; lower grades from £11 15s. to £12 5s.; sago and tapioca in bond, 2½d. Black pepper, 8d. to 8½d.; white, 1s. 2d. Fair inquiry for milk from Queensland; Dairymaid worth 6s. 4d. to 6s. 7½d. Rock salt red is moving off at 92s. 6d.; coarse salt, 70s.; fine, 80s. to 90s. In fish there is not much doing; tinned salmon, 8s. 9d. to 8s. 10½d. Sardines moving off slowly at 3s. 9d. to 4s. in quarters, and 7s. to 7s. 3d. in halves. Fresh herrings dull of sale, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 9d. may be quoted. Kippered herrings, 8s. to 9s. A fairly good trade reported in English malt at 6s. 6d. to 7s. Hops are moving off rather more freely, the market being steady at 9d. to 11d. for Tasmanian, and at from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. for English. In liquids the day's trade was comparatively limited, business throughout the week, in fact, having been unusually dull. Although there is some improvement in the demand for bottled ale, the trade is not so large as usual for the time of the year. Up to 10s. 6d. quoted for quarts and to 7s. 3d. for pints. All known shipments of Dagger stout placed to arrive at agents' quotations. Hennessy's single-star brandy done at 35s.; three-star, 45s. 6d. A quantity of Sazerac brandy placed at agents' prices. Rum, very dull of sale at 2s. 9d. to 3s., the latter being the quotation for Lowndes'. Geneva, 11s. 3d., market firm. Burnett's old tom, 10s. 3d. In the metal trade prices generally are firm, with a fairly good demand. Galvanised iron ranges from £18 for low second brands to £19, which is asked for Gospel Oak. Sheet lead £16, with but limited inquiry. Fencing wire in 5 to 10 ton lots done at £10 10s., and £11 10s. to £11 12s. 6d. for Nos. 8 and 10 respectively. I. C. Coke tin plates are worth 17s. 3d. Wire nails rather lower, owing to the receipt of shipments 12s. 6d. quoted. Muntz metal, after selling at 5½d., is dearer, 6d. being asked. In oils, kerosene is moving off fairly well at from 1s. 8d. for low test, to 2s. for high. Light of the Age sold at 1s. 11d. to 2s. 0½d., according to parcel. Castor oil is worth 2s. 8d.; China, 2s. 10d. For raw and boiled, 2s. 10d. to 3s. 2d. asked, in drum. In jute goods, cornsacks inquired for, and quoted at 6s. 6d. to 6s. 9d., with business at the lower figure for a considerable quantity. Bran bags in demand at 3s. 9d.

R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, brought forward in Sydney to-day a catalogue comprising 1990 bales of wool, the bulk consisting of greasy, from ordinary to average quality. There was a full attendance of buyers, and brisk competition, the market being strong for the better qualities of greasy. Inferior greasy and scoured wools generally showed no improvement. At auction and privately 1675 bales were disposed of, inferior to good greasy realising from 5½d. to 9½d., and inferior to good scoured 10½d. to 16d. The principal sales in greasy were:—W. The Australasian Mortgage and Agency Company offered at auction in Melbourne to-day about 3900 bales of wool, and sold 3200 bales. There was good competition. The top price of the season in greasy was realised for Walla Walla super. lambs, viz., 14½d.; first lambs, 13d.; and second lambs, 10¾d.; fleece wool of same clip, 11½d.; 370 bales J. M. C. C., Deep Creek, brought 11d.; G. P. Green, Shields, 9½d.; No. S. S., 9½d.; W. H. W., crossbred, 9½d. No scoured or washed lots of importance were offered.

BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

HALF-YEARLY REPORT of the DIRECTORS of THE BANK OF AUSTRALASIA, with the ACCOUNTS FOR THE HALF-YEAR to 11th APRIL, 1887.

THURSDAY, 6th OCTOBER, 1887.

REPORT.

"The directors place before the proprietors the balance-sheet of the bank as at 11th April last, with profit account for the half-year ended on that date.

"After providing for rebate on bills current, for income tax, for colonial taxes on note circulation, and for all bad and doubtful debts, the net profit for the half-year amounted to £108,148 18s. The addition of £12,753 17s 4d, brought forward from the previous half-year, gives a disposable balance of £120,902 15s 4d, of which the dividend and bonus just declared will absorb £108,000, leaving £12,902 15s 4d to be carried forward to the next half-year.

"The directors regret the diminution of profit, which is mainly due to the fact that business was conducted on less remunerative terms, although its volume was well maintained.

"The directors have made their usual examination of the colonial accounts, and are able to report that they show evidence of further recovery from the depression so long existing. This recovery may naturally be expected to lead ere long to a revival of enterprise.

"So far as a general opinion can be hazarded respecting an area so extended as that of the Australian colonies and New Zealand, it may be said that the current season is generally favourable to production.

"The directors have with much regret to announce the death of their lamented colleague, Mr. Edward Wyld, and for the vacancy thus occasioned on the board the only candidate Mr. George Dunbar Whatman, whom the directors have with much pleasure recommended to the support of the proprietors.

"The directors deplore the death, from the results of a railway accident, of Mr. E. S. Parkes, the superintendent since 1876 of the colonial establishments of the bank. The proprietors are aware of the high value always placed by the directors on the services of Mr. Parkes, who held a leading position among the bankers of Australasia. His death in the maturity of his powers is a loss not to be easily measured.

"Mr. John Sawers, who has been appointed to the vacant office, has had ample experience in the service of the bank, and the directors have much confidence that he will prove himself no unworthy successor of Mr. Parkes.

"The dividend declared is at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, with a bonus of 4s per share, or in all £2 14s per share for the half year (being at the rate of 13½ per cent. per annum), and it will be payable, free of income tax, in London and in the colonies, on the 7th October.

A FINE ART PRODUCTION.
The forthcoming Christmas Number of the Sydney Mail will be one of the finest, if not the finest, Christmas publications ever issued in Australia. The proprietors have secured for publication in it
A SPLENDID NOVEL, entitled "THEY WERE MARRIED," written by that brilliant and popular author, WALTER BESANT.
EQUAL in LENGTH to a THREE-VOLUME NOVEL.
It is a beautiful and charming production, and will be welcomed and read with positive delight by all who can appreciate a good story. It is in the author's happiest vein, and affords ample evidence of his inimitable skill in the creation of exciting situations and interesting incidents. Walter Besant pourtrays character with a delightful charm, and in "They Were Married" he depicts, in infinite variety, the changeful phases of real life.
The story will be rendered additionally fascinating by a VERY LARGE NUMBER of ILLUSTRATIONS, drawn and engraved by some of the first artists of the day. Nothing finer in the way of pictures ever appeared in the Australian press. They were drawn by
R. CATON WOODVILLE — The Late S. READ
A. FORESTIER — HAL. LUDLOW
MONTBARD — HARRY FURNESS
DAVIDSON KNOWLES — W. H. OVEREND.
F. S. WALKER
These names are a guarantee of the superlative character of the illustrations which will accompany "They Were Married."
Although the story and illustrations have been procured only at a very large outlay, the proprietors have resolved not to make any extra charge for the Mail with which this Art Supplement will be presented. The price will therefore be, as usual, SIXPENCE PER COPY.
THE COLOURED SUPPLEMENT which will be given away with the number is one of the most effective coloured pictures ever issued. The subject is exceedingly appropriate, of great artistic finish, rich in colour, and would adorn the drawing-room of any home in the colony.
Single copies will be posted to any country or intercolonial address by remitting 6d in stamps, or to Europe by adding 1d as postage.
Agents for the different country districts are now receiving orders.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1887.

After all the discreditable waste of time on Thursday, the preliminary motion for the introduction of the Australasian Naval Force Bill was taken yesterday as a formal motion, and the bill was read a first time. Similar proceedings have commenced in the other colonies for the passing of a corresponding bill, and the same stage has been reached in two of them. The bill is to be regarded primarily as the outcome of the Imperial Conference, but it is indirectly the result of a prolonged discussion and consideration of the question both there and in the mother-country, and there is little doubt that the exertions and influence of Admiral TRYON, who thoroughly appreciated the importance of the matter, helped materially to bring the movement to the point which it had reached when the Conference took it up. Opinion in relation to this business has undergone a process of education within the last few years. Not long ago the question of a contribution by the colonies to the cost of their naval defence was raised at an Intercolonial Conference and dismissed by the majority, who were only prepared to take a narrow and partial view of the matter. Opinion has made progress in England also. When negotiations were opened here by Admiral TRYON, he had not authority to entertain the proposition that the additional naval force to be maintained jointly in Australasian waters by Great Britain and the colonies should be provided at the Imperial cost. Upon that point, however, the practicability of any attempt to set up a joint arrangement hinged. Since then the Imperial authorities have arrived at a better understanding of the situation, and the concession has been made.

The agreement, as settled at the Imperial Conference in May last, is set forth in a schedule to the bill just introduced. The bill is required to ratify and approve the agreement, and make definite provision for carrying it into effect; but should it be passed here it will not have force unless the agreement be also ratified and approved by the Parliaments of the other Australasian colonies whose Governments are parties to it. The Imperial authorities stand in relation to the matter on a similar footing: the agreement must be ratified and approved by the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

The terms of the agreement have already been published, but it may be convenient to recapitulate them here. It is proposed that, without reducing the normal strength of the naval force on the Australian station, an additional force of five fast cruisers and two torpedo gunboats of specified classes shall be maintained in these waters; three cruisers and one gunboat to be kept always in commission, the remainder to be held in reserve. These vessels are to be paid for out of Imperial funds, but the colonies will pay interest on their prime cost at the rate of 5 per cent., such payment not to exceed the annual sum of £35,000. The colonies will also bear in time of peace the actual charges for maintenance of the whole force, provided that the amount shall not exceed £91,000 per annum. But in time of emergency or actual war the Imperial Government will bear the cost of commissioning and maintaining the three vessels which during peace are kept in reserve. The agreement is to last for ten years, and at its termination the vessels will remain the property of the Imperial Government. Under the agreement these vessels will hold the same status as HER MAJESTY'S ships of war; the officers and men of those in commission will be changed triennially, and the sole control will be vested in the naval Commander-in-Chief on the Australian station; but they will be retained within the limits of the Australian station, and will be employed beyond those limits only with the consent of the colonial Governments. If any of them should be lost, the Imperial Government will replace them. During peace, two ships, either of the normal Imperial squadron or of the additional force, will be stationed in New Zealand waters, subject, however, to removal in any emergency which should render it necessary in the opinion of the naval Commander-in-Chief. These are the chief points in the agreement; but it may be added that whilst that document specifies the maximum aggregate payments to be made by the colonies, the bill provides an appropriation of the annual contribution, which is to be in each colony a sum bearing the same proportion to the total amount payable as the population of the colony bears to the total population of the Australasian colonies whose Governments are parties to the agreement.

An agreement has recently been made between the Imperial Government and the Governments of New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, for the establishment and maintenance at their joint expense of a mail service between England and Australia. All the parties to this agreement recognise the beneficial character of the service. They all see clearly that it cannot be maintained unless it is paid for. They perceive with equal clearness that in fairness those who participate in the benefit should divide the cost. There is nothing very remarkable in this transaction; any plain man can understand it. But the agreement which the Bill now before Parliament is intended to ratify is equally intelligible, because it rests on an equally simple basis. The foundation for it is set forth in the preamble to the agreement, and the preamble to the Bill which covers it. The agreement has been made (subject to Parliamentary ratification) because the parties to it "recognised the necessity for increasing the naval force for the protection of the floating trade in Australasian waters at their joint charge." In the case of the mail arrangement it was recognised in like manner, first, that there was a necessity for the establishment and maintenance of a regular service; next, that this was a matter of common interest; and last, that it should therefore be procured at their joint charge. If these things had not been recognised, the arrangement would not have been made. As they were recognised, the joint arrangement explains and justifies itself. For all practical purposes the analogy between the two cases is complete.

If we refuse to recognise the relations between the mother country and the colonies in connection with what has been aptly termed the floating trade in Australasian waters, we may decline to enter into any agreement of this sort. We may decline if we are unwilling to admit that, being part of the British Empire, we must face the risks as well as enjoy the advantages which the connection involves, or if, thinking little of the advantages and much of the risks, we prefer to seek the position of an independent State. We may also decline if, whilst acknowledging that we are part of the Empire, we hold that this trade is not worth defending, or that we have no interest in it, and that its defence is a matter of purely Imperial concern. But unless we are blind, we must admit that we are largely interested in this trade. Admitting that, we are not in a position to deny that in proportion to our interest we are under obligation to provide for its defence. The question then arises, how can that provision be best made? Which is likely to be the cheaper method and the more effective? To act by ourselves, and provide and maintain a naval force of our own, or co-operate with the Imperial Government? The question is hardly open to argument. A glance at the terms of the agreement is enough to show that England undertakes to provide what we could not possibly provide at any cost. We could not, for instance, command that triennial change of officers and men which is one of the best guarantees for the sustained efficiency of the force. Nothing could be more unworthy of the colonies than to shirk their fair share of the burden. The interest to be protected is a joint interest. The British Government recognises this, and we have a right to recognise it. If we refused to participate in the expense, the British Government would have an equal right to say that it would content itself with the normal Imperial squadron now maintained at its own cost, and to refuse to pay a shilling towards providing a supplementary force. We cannot doubt that our Legislature will see what is its duty in this matter, and do it.

In the letter of our American correspondent, which we published on Thursday, allusion is made to a law which was passed two years ago for the purpose of prohibiting contracts with aliens abroad for the performance of work, labour, or service in the United States. Any such contract was made a misdemeanour, and the penalty provided was a fine not exceeding 1000 dollars. The only exceptions allowed were made in favour of actors, singers, and artists. This law has now been found to operate in an unexpected and curious way. It seems that a few weeks ago some Scotch masons were sent back to Glasgow for a violation of the law, and their employers very narrowly escaped the infliction of the fine. A Mr. KENNEDY appears to have felt aggrieved at the treatment received by his countrymen, and he has taken advantage of an event which occurred about the same time to illustrate the absurdity of the existing law. An English clergyman—the Rev. Dr. WARREN—was called to take charge of the Uptown Church of the Holy Trinity. His call, our correspondent tells us, provoked some opposition, because the Rev. Dr. TYNG, who had originally built the church, but who had left it in order to undertake an insurance agency in London and Paris, had expressed a willingness to return to his old post, but had been set aside in favour of Dr. WARREN by a bare majority. Mr. KENNEDY has now written to the DISTRICT ATTORNEY requiring him to bring a suit against the trustees of the church for violating the law against the employment of alien contract labour; and the DISTRICT ATTORNEY, after a careful consideration of the question, has written an opinion in which he declares that he can see no way in which he can avoid the performance of this duty. It is, of course, obvious that the law was never intended to apply to cases of this kind; but it is equally certain that a clergyman cannot seriously be regarded as falling within the class of actor, singer, or artist, and it is believed that it will be difficult to meet the case except by a special Act of Congress. At first sight the matter appears to be merely ludicrous; but further consideration leads us to think that it is only one of many troubles which may reasonably be expected to arise, and that a law of the kind described is likely, if enforced, to be productive not only of hardship to the individual, but of serious disadvantage to the country. If the case of Dr. WARREN should lead to a reconsideration of the effect of legislation of this kind, the benefit involuntarily conferred upon the country at large by the rev. gentleman will be at least equal to any particular advantage which his congregation might be expected to derive from his services.

The law has, of course, been passed, as our correspondent puts it, as a sop to the Cerberus of Labour. The American working-man of to-day seems to desire not only the protection which he believes is afforded him by the Custom House, but, as far as possible, he desires to be protected against possible competitors also. Carried to its logical extreme, legislation such as that which has been conceded would mean the adoption of the system which China is still only beginning to abandon—a system under which trade would be discouraged by methods different, it is true, from those of China, but having the same tendency, and immigration would be wholly prevented. Of course, it is not possible for a civilised nation at the present day to carry out such a system in its entirety; but the American law with regard to alien labour is not the less a step in that direction, and unless the unwisdom of it be plainly demonstrated it may be made a precedent for legislation of a still harsher kind. The effect of such a law, if it should be consistently enforced, could hardly fail to be alike unfortunate to the country and unjust to large numbers of persons both within and without it. To the immigrant its operation must be specially disastrous, since it would appear that those who have the forethought to make provision for employment immediately upon their arrival are by their very prudence disqualified from residence in the country; and the country must bear its proportion of the loss which must otherwise result if a large number of those who are landed upon its shores should be compelled to go through a period of enforced idleness. We do not know how the Courts may have construed the words of the Act; but it is obvious that the word "contract" may be held to have a widely inclusive meaning. And beyond the hardship entailed upon the workman there is a manifest injustice to the employer. Employers do not seek the assistance of foreign operatives only because their services may be bought more cheaply. In different countries different aptitudes prevail, and contracts of the kind affected by the Act are generally entered into for the purpose rather of obtaining specially skilled labour than for the sake of obtaining it at a lower rate of wages. It is not too much to say that a law of the kind spoken of would, if passed at an early date of the history of the country, have rendered impossible the establishment of some of its now most thriving industries.

But the United States are, unfortunately, by no means solitary in this exhibition of a desire for isolation. More and more every day it would seem that country is arming itself against country. We do not here speak only of physical force, but of a certain obvious return to suspicion of the alien, and a belief that his presence in the country is fraught with danger or productive of loss. Russia will not allow non-resident Germans to hold landed property in her territories, and it has been said that the recent desire of the German EMPEROR for an interview with the CZAR was due to a wish to obtain a concession in this respect. Germany, on the other hand, has sent the Poles across the border; and beyond these political examples we have everywhere a host of economical illustrations. Nation is, as the advocates of the policy express it, protecting itself against nation; and if we descend from nations to classes we find that class is more and more protecting itself against class. Our own position with regard to the Chinese will probably be quoted against us by those who are not acquainted with our conditions; but the case is not in point. Its failure, indeed, as an instance may possibly be found to indicate the true policy; and that policy has found a happy illustration in the case of the United Kingdom. Great Britain has probably received and absorbed a larger number of immigrant foreigners than any other European country, but there has been no diminution of the national sentiment, and a steady increase has followed, alike of individual and national prosperity. She has prospered by allowing a large amount of liberty and ample rights to aliens, and as a consequence nationalities in most cases become identical with individual interests. Under the system which the rest of the world seems bent upon pursuing at present no such fusion is to be expected. An alien sentiment is kept alive by the nation which places aliens under heavy disabilities, while under liberal treatment the identity of the foreigner is quickly lost in the nationality of the people amongst whom he resides.

It appears that the PREMIER has arrived at the conclusion that the existing system of tramways must be abolished, and that an entire change should be made by substituting cable for locomotive traction, and running cars along all the principal streets. We believe his idea is not only that cable lines should be laid along the streets running north and south, namely, Elizabeth-street, Pitt-street, George-street, and Sussex-street, but also that these lines should be crossed at right angles by others passing from east to west along Park-street, King-street, Market-street, &c. We imagine that when the PREMIER has communicated his idea to his colleagues, and they have seriously considered the subject, the practicability of the scheme will appear somewhat doubtful. Before tearing up the streets of the city, and removing the lines now laid down, and introducing the cable system at an enormous cost, this question should be considered—"Have the possibilities of the existing tramways been exhausted?" It would be foolish to say that the tramways must be condemned before it has been clearly established that the causes of failure and complaint are not traceable to bad management. Few things are more certain than that they are. Change after change has been made in the arrangements, but the general result has been not for the better, but for the worse. It is difficult to understand how any department governed by common sense could try such an experiment as establishing an interval of 30 or 40 minutes between one tram and another, and that on a line yielding satisfactory returns. The tramways were made for the accommodation of the public, and as long as they are managed upon the theory that the public must learn to accommodate itself to the erratic arrangements of the tramway authorities, success cannot be reasonably expected. If there were an independent cable line in each of our principal streets with cars running at intervals of a few minutes, people travelling up and down those streets would find it a convenience, but each line would require its separate cable and its separate engines. When we come to the question of substituting cable lines for the present lines which connect the city with all the suburbs, a far more complicated problem presents itself. The outlay would be prodigious. It is possible that if we had no tramways and were now only about to enter upon their construction, we should not adopt the system which has grown up out of the first experiment made in 1879. We began then with laying down one line from the railway terminus to Hunter-street, and whilst that line has been extended from Hunter-street to a terminus at Bridge-street, every other line that has since been constructed has been made to branch off from it. As the result we have what may be called a trunk line from the Bridge-street terminus to Liverpool-street, upon which the traffic from all the suburbs converges; and between those points, or from that one terminus, a passenger may obtain a car for any of the suburbs. Could a convergent system like this be worked by cable lines? Before rejecting the advantages which the present system offers we have to consider what would be put in its place. The question for Sydney cannot be settled upon the basis of favourable impressions obtained without much thought during a flying visit to Melbourne.

After all, the name of the colony is to be changed. The PREMIER has proclaimed that fact. What it is to be is not to be made known lightly. It is a Cabinet matter, and State secrets are not to be unveiled for the world to see without due ceremony and incantation. In proper time in his place in Parliament the PREMIER will rise and to the breathless Assembly announce the choice of the Ministry. And what will that choice be? Those who know the PREMIER'S power of invention and genius for sudden inspirations will not doubt that the name that transfixed his imagination will be the one to which the rest of the Cabinet cheerfully consented. Its announcement will be the occasion for an oration, and will give an opportunity for the philologists in Parliament to display their taste and erudition. Men who would follow the PREMIER to the death on the Customs duties, or the State House, or the tram question, will be in distinct and separate rebellion where this is concerned. No two members will think alike. If the Cabinet have decided upon the matter without threat of political decapitation, it is because they knew that the thing was inevitable, and that they might as well accept the PREMIER as godfather first as last. But we fear there will be many uneasy minds in New South Wales until the announcement is made. Those who have perilled their reputation, and spent restless and brain-racking days in search of a name for their colony that might make them, with it, blessed of posterity, will wait with feverish anxiety for the PREMIER to speak. Those who have expressed no opinion as yet, will coolly wait for their opportunity for criticism, and all will be ready to say what they think. There is no one but will insist on the possession of tact and judgment enough to do duty at a christening. Sir HENRY PARKES, knowing well the art of stimulating curiosity, has dropped a hint regarding the word, which would do credit to a sex of which he is not. He has mysteriously said that the name is of three syllables. The opportunity for speculation has come. We hope the name will be a more felicitous one than the ill-fated "State House." It is a matter on which even Sir HENRY PARKES will not be permitted to give his ipse dixit unchallenged. There is much in a name, and even so small a thing might overthrow a Government. We have hopes, however, that some blessed inspiration has fallen upon the Cabinet, and that the country will not be disappointed. Inspirations do not seek Cabinets often, but when they do they ought to be good ones. Appropriate names are not easily manufactured. There are so many qualities required in a word to make it pleasant and fitting that it is only some lucky hit that produces a happy effect. A full-sounding resonant word, with an element of softness in it, is necessary. There are some fine examples which have these characteristics in part or in the whole, notably, Austria, Arabia, Italy, Australia, Oregon, Ontario, Syria, Armenia, Siberia, Colorado, Algeria, Persia, Alabama, and Alaska. The ear is quick to detect the strong yet mellow sounds that charm the ear in these names, and it is to be hoped that the PREMIER and the Cabinet have manufactured no worse one.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE Legislative Assembly sat for about six hours yesterday. More than half the sitting was occupied with a discussion as to the desirableness of abolishing private bars. The Premier announced that it was the intention of the Government shortly to introduce a bill for the amendment of the Licensing Act, in which the question of private bars would be dealt with; and the House avoided coming to any decision upon the subject by carrying the previous question. Sir Henry Parkes introduced a bill providing that this colony should pay a proportional part of the cost of the establishment and maintenance of an additional naval force to be employed for the protection of the floating trade in Australasian waters, and it was read the first time; and the House affirmed the desirableness of having brought in a bill, to make better provision for mining on church and school lands. The House next considered in committee the amendments made by the Legislative Council in the Bankruptcy Bill. Some of the amendments were disagreed from, and the Assembly insisted upon the restoration in the 18th clause, relating to "public examination of debtor," of the word "representative," the effect being that any creditor who has proved, or his representative authorised in writing, may question a bankrupt concerning his transactions and the causes of his failure. The bill for the abolition of the royalty on oysters was read the second time and passed through committee, and the House then, shortly after 10, adjourned until 3 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday next.

THE Premier announced in the Legislative Assembly last evening that he would take an early opportunity of expressing his opinion that the time had come when the existing system of tramways should be abolished, with a view to the introduction of a complete system of wire tramways all over the city—especially in view of the excellent system of passenger accommodation in Melbourne, which he thought was equal, if not superior, to anything of the kind in the world. He had seen trams running in San Francisco, Chicago, and several parts of the world, and he did not hesitate to say that the system now in force in Melbourne was superior to any of them. The matter, we understand, has been under the notice of the Government, and it is probable that the House will be asked to sanction this important alteration. The Premier's idea is that there should be a complete network of tramways all through the city; that the cars should run along Elizabeth-street, Castlereagh-street, Pitt-street, George-street, and Sussex-street in one direction, and Park-street, Market-street, King-street, and other cross streets where the traffic is great in another. Trams would also be run from Darling Harbour to Hyde Park, from William-street to Potts Point, and from various centres to all the more populous suburbs. The trams, it is thought, should be run from given places every five minutes. The Premier favours the idea of placing the tramway system in the hands of a private company.

A BILL was introduced into the Legislative Assembly last evening, and read the first time, providing for the payment by the colony of New South Wales of a proportional part of the establishment and maintenance of an additional naval force to be employed for the protection of the floating trade in Australian waters. The debate on the second reading of the measure, the provisions of which are described in another column, will take place on Wednesday next.

THE Government has decided, we are informed, to ask Parliament, to sanction the changing of the name of the colony. The Ministers have agreed upon the name they intend to recommend, but it is not yet to be made public.

Two deputations waited upon the Hon. John Sutherland, Minister for Works, yesterday. The first deputation, which was from Waterloo, asked for an extension of the twopenny section of the tram line to the tollbar, the former terminus of the first section. The second deputation, which was from Granville, asked that an alteration might be made in the running of the trains between Granville and Sydney. Reports of the interviews appear in another portion of the paper.

A NUMBER of gentlemen representing the Anniversary Regatta Committee waited on the Premier yesterday, in reference to the Centennial Regatta. They requested the Premier's opinion as to the day on which the regatta should be held, and after some conversation proposed the 27th January next, a date which Sir Henry Parkes on behalf of the Government concurred in. The deputation then asked some information concerning the £800 which was voted by Parliament for the purposes of the regatta and handed to the committee, and Sir Henry Parkes stated that the £500 would have to be devoted to one race, and that the remainder could be disposed for other races, according as the committee decided. The suggestion of the deputation that a sum of money should be granted them to give some suitable entertainment on the occasion of the regatta will be considered. A full report is given elsewhere.

Mr. W. J. TRICKETT, M.L.A., has received a letter from the Under-Secretary of Works (Mr. John Rae), informing him that in respect to his question in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st instant, in reference to the sea-wall, Coogee Bay, the sum of £1500 for the work has been placed on the draft estimates for next year for the consideration of the Cabinet.

Mr. A. ALLEN, M.L.A., has received an intimation from the Public Works Department that a tender for the erection of the courthouse at Paddington was accepted on the 10th instant, and the work will be commenced at once.

FROM a return which was yesterday laid on the table of the Legislative Assembly, it appears that from July 1, 1886, to June 30, 1887, 547 boys under the age of 16 were brought before the police courts in Sydney. Of these, 189 were charged under the Industrial Schools Act, 124 with breaches of the Police Acts and other minor offences, 11 with indecent and common assaults, wounding, &c., 6 with false pretences and forgery, 190 with breaking and entering, larceny, and stealing in a dwelling, 9 with drunkenness, and 18 with breaches of the Vagrancy Act. These juveniles were thus dealt with:—120 were sent on board the Vernon; 178 were discharged; 144 were imprisoned with option of fine, and 100 without; and 5 were sent to the Benevolent Asylum. The number of persons under 16 years of age charged with offences against the criminal law convicted or committed for trial in Sydney during the same period was:—Males, 167; females, 10. In several cases not included in the return the charge of larceny was withdrawn and the offenders proceeded against under the Industrial Schools Act.

A TELEGRAM was received by the Minister for Mines yesterday from the members of the Prospecting Board, who are now at Gulgong inquiring into applications made in that district for aid out of the prospecting vote for the development of the mines there, stating that Messrs. Wilkinson and Slee had examined the newly-discovered lodes near Denison Town, 30 miles north of Gulgong. There are seven lodes, varying in width up to 65ft., and 450ft. in length. Only two of them—those of Robinson and party—have yet been opened up, the deepest to 10ft. This lode is 45ft. wide, and well defined. The ore consists of ironstone, or gossan, and porous quartz, with quartzite and a little galena. It appears to be of a promising character for gold and silver, but its value cannot be stated until the average samples taken have been assayed.

A RETURN showing the total number and value of all tickets issued to and from all stations between Eveleigh and Hurstville inclusive, for the six months ended 30th September last was laid on the table of the Legislative Assembly last evening. The number of passenger tickets issued from was 321,210, the value being £8112 19s. 7d., and the number issued to Eveleigh was 213,784, valued at £4604 7s. 8d.; the number of season tickets from was 1620, valued at £1647 0s. 10d., and the number to 209 valued at £139 1s. 5d.; the weekly tickets from numbered 18,750 valued at £1776 0s. 8d.; and those to Eveleigh were 5589, valued at £535 9s. 4d. The total of all tickets from Eveleigh was 341,580, the return being £11,536 1s. 1d., and the total to Eveleigh numbered 219,582, of a value of £5278 18s. 5d. Of the season tickets the largest number was issued from Rockdale, viz., 320; and of those issued to any station, St. Peters is highest on the list with 58, Eveleigh being next with 54. Of the weekly tickets the highest number, viz. 3088, was issued from Marrickville, and of those stations issued to Rockdale has the highest number, 998. The ordinary passenger ticket return shows that Eveleigh has the highest number, 75,216, valued at £1521 1s. 10d., issued from, and that of the stations issued to Rockdale is first with 34,416 tickets, valued at £969 15s. 3d.

COMPLAINTS have been made from time to time by those connected with the Mines Department with regard to the disagreeable odours arising from the laboratory of the Assay branch, situated in the basement of the building. Representations having been made to that effect to the Health Department, Dr. Ashburton-Thompson, Chief Medical Inspector, has made an inspection of the premises referred to, and it is not improbable that his report will point out the proper course to be taken in the matter.

SINCE the 3rd of December, 1885, correspondence has been passing between the Governments of New South Wales and Queensland in reference to a reduction of telegraph rates between the two colonies. As early as November, 1885, the Postmaster-General of this colony was asked in the Legislative Assembly if it was his intention to reduce the charge for the transmission of telegraphic messages between the two colonies to the same scale as that existing between this colony and Victoria. The colonial Secretary (Sir P. A. Jennings), thereupon, at the instance of the Postmaster-General, communicated with the Colonial Secretary of Queensland asking for the views of his Government on the matter, and pointing out that the charges between this colony and Victoria were at the rate of 1s. for 10 words or under, with 2d. for every additional word. The reply received from the Colonial Secretary of Queensland (Sir Samuel Griffith) stated that his Government were not disposed to make any reduction in the charges, and a similar reply was made to a letter sent by Sir Henry Parkes recently. The reason given by the Government of Queensland for not falling in with the wish of our Government is that the long distances over which telegrams pass in that colony render it impracticable to regard the services of the two colonies as susceptible of analagous treatment in the matter of charges. All the correspondence was laid on the table of the Legislative Assembly last evening.

WE have been requested to notify an alteration in the arrangements at the General Post Office, which will be found a great convenience. On and after Monday next, the 21st instant, registered letters addressed to box holders and "Post Office," will be delivered at the counter in the new registry room, towards the Pitt-street end of the colonnade, instead of at the window in the George-street entrance, where they have been delivered hitherto.

AN election of eight aldermen and two auditors under the provisions of the Sydney Corporation Act, will be held on the 1st proximo. Nominations will be received from to-day until noon on Friday next. The election of Mayor for the centennial year will take place on the 9th of December, and already two candidates have announced themselves, viz., Alderman J. Harris and Alderman Burdekin, M.L.A. The former has been elected Mayor three times already, and, according to good authorities, has a very good chance of being Mayor next year; but the votes are expected to be very close, as Alderman Burdekin is much respected by his fellow aldermen.

WE learn that Mr. Johnson, Under-Secretary for Public Instruction, who, as we stated the other day, has returned from a visit to Europe and America, made inquiry while abroad into the management of the educational institutions and training colleges of the several countries which he visited. The information he has gathered will, it is thought, be found most valuable. At the present juncture, when comparisons are being made between our system of primary instruction and that adopted in Victoria, the knowledge gained by Mr. Johnson should, it is considered, be of service to the Government in arriving at a correct estimate of the absolute and relative value of the means adopted in this colony for the education of our youth.

YESTERDAY afternoon the Mayoress of Sydney (Mrs. A. J. Riley) opened a bazaar and sale of work in the grounds of Mr. J. Hubert Newman's residence, Llandaff, Waverley. The proceeds are to go in aid of the Zenana Mission. An extremely varied and attractive collection of articles are displayed, and, as the attendance was large, the receipts were encouraging. A concert was given during the evening at which several ladies and gentlemen contributed songs and recitations. The spacious grounds were also brilliantly illuminated by Chinese lanterns. The entertainment is to be repeated to-day; and the Military Band will assist in the afternoon and evening programmes.

THE statue of her Majesty the Queen, ordered by the late Government from the studio of Mr. J. E. Boehm, to be placed on the pedestal at the top of King-street, is a very handsome work. The height of the bronze figure from the plinth to the crown is 11ft. 4in. The statue, which is a majestic and faithful likeness, represents the Queen in a regal dress, handsomely draped, with a long train embroidered with emblems of the rose, shamrock, and thistle. On the breast are the ribbon and star of the garter, in the right hand is the sceptre pointing downwards, and in the left the orb. On the head is placed an Imperial crown. The statue, as has been already announced by cablegram, has been shipped on one of the Orient Company's steamers, and will be here next month. The ceremony of unveiling it will form part of the Centennial celebrations.

HIS HONOR the Chief Justice sat in Equity yesterday, and heard the suit of Lyons versus Sharland, in which the plaintiff, as official assignee in the estate of Patrick Rogers, sought to recover from the defendant, Alfred William Sharland, the value of 1040 acres of land, with improvements thereon, situated near Wagga Wagga, and known as the Forest Estate, which he alleged had been improperly transferred to defendant without valuable consideration. The case was not concluded when the Court rose. In the Jury Court, before Mr. Justice Innes, in the action Stephen v. Kethel, the jury found in favour of the plaintiff, with damages, £244 5s. 7d. In the next action, M'Arthur versus Carpenter, in which the plaintiff sought to recover damages for personal injury sustained owing, as alleged, to the negligence of defendant's servants, the plaintiff obtained a verdict of £350. Two small undefended cases were also disposed of. His Honor Mr. Justice Innes sat in Chambers at 9.30 a.m., and settled a few formal matters. One application was on behalf of Charles Lord, "captain" of the Goulburn Salvation Army, who had been fined at the local police court under the 142nd by-law of the borough council for parading Auburn-street with banners flying and drums beating, contrary to the stipulation contained in the permission given to him by the Mayor. A rule nisi was now asked for to set the conviction aside, on the ground mainly that the by-law was ultra vires. The rule was granted, returnable next Friday. Several issues and short causes were dealt with by the Primary Judge. In that of Hayward v. Smith, an important point was argued under the Land Act of 1880, affecting the right of holder of conditionally purchased land to mortgage the same within five years. In the present case the right, title, and interest of the original holder was sold by the Sheriff, and the purchaser claimed that the title he thus obtained enabled him to take possession of the land irrespective of a mortgagee's interest, who he contended had no estate in the land. His Honor reserved his judgment. We understand that a number of a similar transactions have occurred, and that the decision in the case is looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

THE divorce case of Corner v. Corner and others which has occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Stephen and a jury of 12 during the whole of the week at the Darlinghurst Court, was brought to a conclusion yesterday afternoon. The jury after a lengthened deliberation, found that the respondent had been guilty of adultery with the co-respondent Howell, but not with the two other co-respondents, and they also found that the petitioner had been guilty of cruelty towards the respondent, and that this cruelty had been conducive to the adultery. An application was made to his Honor for a decree nisi, but the application was postponed until after the time for moving for a new trial had elapsed.

AT the Darlinghurst Court of Appeals yesterday, in the case of the Queen against William Hayes, licensee of the Warwick Arms, Riley-street, which was an appeal to set aside the decision of Mr. T. K. Abbott, for inflicting a fine of £10 for Sunday selling, the judgment of the Court below was sustained, with costs.

WE are requested to state that the jurors summoned to attend the Darlinghurst Court (civil cases) on Monday will not be required at all.

THE sittings of the Central Criminal Court will be commenced on Monday, before his Honor Mr. Justice Stephen. The prosecutions will be conducted by Mr. Armstrong. The following cases are down for trial:—Joseph Vining, arson; David Henry, shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm; Mary Young and Elizabeth Moralles, procuring abortion; Abrahum Goldberg, fraudulent insolvency; William Delaforce, perjury.

THE committee of the Queen's Fund (Town Hall) met on the 18th instant; Mrs. A. J. Riley (Mayoress) in the chair. The committee were greatly pleased at the success of the Mayoress's fête, the result of which has far exceeded their expectation, for, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, and the many counter-attractions, the attendance was fairly good. The sale was most satisfactory. The success was in a great measure owing to the extreme liberality of several of the leading firms in Sydney. At a final effort of the Mayoress's committee it was decided to hold a doll and cake fair at the Town Hall.

THE Parkes Fund Committee met yesterday at the Town Hall. There were present—The Mayor (Mr. A. J. Riley, M.L.A.) in the chair, the Hons. J. B. Watt and J. Watson, and Messrs. Garrard, M.L.A., F. Senior, J. M. Dunn, G. Munro, J. S. Jamieson, and J. Robertson. The treasurer (Mr. G. Munro) submitted his statement, showing that the total amount received up to date was £1728 2s., £555 having been received, and all locally, since the last meeting. Mr. Burdekin, who was unable to attend the meeting owing to ill-health, sent a message to the committee, conveying the information that the correspondence from the country was most satisfactory. It was decided to place a sum not exceeding £3000 as a fixed deposit in a Sydney bank for 12 months on the best terms obtainable. Some discussion took place with regard to the sending of circulars to Government departments and Public schools, in which the members of the committee expressed themselves entirely opposed to it, and referred to a resolution which was passed at the second meeting of the committee, to the effect that no circulars should be sent to any department of the public service. Some accounts were passed, and the meeting adjourned.

THE monthly meeting of the ladies' committee of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday last. In the absence of the Mayoress, Mr. Simpson presided. The hon. treasurer, Miss Allwood, reported the balance at the bank, which was barely sufficient to meet the expenses until the end of the financial year, December 31. It was hoped that further subscriptions would be received to enable the committee to widen their field of operation. A letter was read from Miss Levy, reporting progress of the Crown-street Public School Band of Mercy, which now numbered 143 members. Mrs. Ellis, of Newcastle, also sent reports of bands formed—at the Superior Public School, Wickham, 124 members; at Olive Bank College, 37 members; and at Newcomen House Private School, 34 members. Mrs. Ellis also forwarded copy of a new humane journal she intended to publish and circulate among the schools, to be called the Band of Mercy Advocate. The hon. secretary reported that 100 copies of the Band of Mercy Magazine had been distributed among the children at the charitable institutions of the city, and would be continued monthly.

AT the monthly meeting of the Drummoyne Park Progress Committee, held on Thursday evening, the chair was occupied by Mr. W. G. Cameron. The business was the consideration of a reply received by the deputation appointed to interview the Mayor of Five Dock in regard to certain works on Drummoyne Park, and to obtain information in regard to what funds were available for works in the North Ward. A lively discussion followed the announcement of the reply. The question of the advisability of a division of the electorate of Canterbury, so as to obtain a better representation of its varied interests, was postponed, as was also the question of the steam service on the Parramatta River to another special meeting, to be held on Wednesday next.

A MEETING of the ladies who held stalls at the Church of England bazaar, Katoomba, was held at Mrs. F. C. Goyder's house on Tuesday, the 15th instant. The gross amount of money in hand was found to be nearly £120, and with outstanding payments the net result will be at least 100 guineas. The amount realised greatly exceeded expectation, so that several much-needed church improvements can be made.

ON Thursday evening the members of the Williams-street Mutual Improvement Association held their weekly meeting, Mr. J. Wilson (vice-president) being in the chair. The business consisted of an essay on the "Right Honorable William Ewart Gladstone," by Mr. H. Bush, which was followed by one on "Lord Beaconsfield," by Mr. A. Arnold. After both papers had been read the character of the two men was reviewed, and their political opinions much discussed, particularly the Irish policy of the G. O. M. The further consideration of the subject was reserved for next week.

THE weekly meeting of the Joseph Livesay Lodge, No. 425, I. O. G. T., was held in the Masonic Hall, Randwick, on Thursday evening, the 17th instant. The D.D., Bro. Charleston, visited the lodge by special request to instal the officers, which, owing to the inability of the W.L.D. to attend, had been postponed till then. The following officers were unanimously elected, and will act for the ensuing quarter:—P.W.C.T., Bro. Parry; W.C.T., Bro. Austin; W.V.T., Sister E. Parry; W.L.D., Bro. Pitt; W. Sec., Bro. H. G. Howe; W. Treas., Bro. A. Lewis; W.F.S., Bro. Ranger; W.M., Bro. Cornelius; W.C., Sister Williams; W.I.S., Bro. Brennan; W.O.G., Bro. Percival; W.A.S., Bro. A. Napper; W.D.M., Bro. Tullock; L.A.R., Bro. Percival.

A TENT of the Independent Order of Rechabites, to be known as the General Havelock Tent, No. 27, was opened in the Auburn Hall, Auburn, on Thursday evening. Brothers R. M'Adams, D.C.R.; R. A. Withers, D.D.R.; G. Ennever, P.D.C.R.; and F. A. Morgan, D.S., took part in the ceremony. The following officers were chosen: C. R., Bro. H. Constantine; D.R., Bro. G. Baxter; P.C.R., Bro. F. Shea; secretary, Bro. H. Bennett; treasurer, Bro. G. Bennett; W.S., Bro. Burns; M.S., Bro. Morton, L., Bro. Creighton; I.G., Bro. T. Ward.

ON Wednesday last a social tea and public meeting was held in the Primitive Methodist Church, Annandale. Mr. A. Hutchison, M.L.A., presided at the after meeting. Addresses on Church work and various social questions were given by the chairman and the Revs. J. W. Holden and G. W. Smailes. On the motion of the Rev. J. W. Leadley, votes of thanks were heartily accorded to the ladies for presiding at the tea, the chairman, the speakers, and the choir, which under the leadership of Mr. W. Davidson rendered some anthems during the evening. The proceeds were devoted to the circuit funds.

TO-MORROW has, we understand, been fixed as a day of intercession for missions in all congregations of the Church of England in this diocese. It has been generally agreed by all branches of the Anglican communion throughout the world that a day in the week before, or the week after, the beginning of Advent (November 27) should be observed for this purpose, and this agreement was accepted by the General Synod of the Church of England in Australia and Tasmania in 1886. The Primate has, we are informed, begged the clergy to bring the subject of missionary duty before the people at one or more of the services.

ON Sunday last, in connection with the 31st anniversary of the Newtown Congregational Church, special services were held, when sermons appropriate to the occasion were preached by the Rev. Warlow Davies, M.A., A. J. Griffith, of Balmain, and E. T. Miles, of Wollongong. The church was decorated with festoons and mottos in a most artistic manner, and this added to the large number of bouquets brought by the scholars and friends to the flower service in the afternoon had a very beautiful effect. On Thursday evening, in continuation of the anniversary services, a concert was given in the church, when the choir, assisted by several friends, under the able direction of Mr. A. Burnaud, the organist, gave a number of selections from the oratorio of "Judas Maccabeus" with excellent effect. The spacious building was crowded, there being fully 800 persons present, who appeared to fully appreciate the various items rendered. The soloists were Mrs. Pring, Mrs. Patison, Miss Whitehead, Messrs. A. Parkinson and A. Edward, each of whom rendered in a most effective and pleasing manner the solos allotted them.

AT All Souls, Leichhardt, on Thursday, the 17th instant, the Mayoress of Leichhardt (Mrs. Moore) performed the ceremony of opening the new parsonage. There were present—The Archdeacon of Cumberland, the Revs. Chas. Baber, Stiles, Childs, Smith, and

National Library of Australia http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-page1392948

Wright, the incumbent of the parish, the Rev. Thomas Holme, and about 200 parishioners. After service in the church, during which the Archdeacon delivered the address, an adjournment was made to the new building, and the blessing of the Almighty was asked on the Parsonage and its future occupants, by the Rev. C. Baber. Refreshments were then partaken of in the adjacent parochial school-house, and appropriate hymns sung, after which a statement of the financial position was read by the treasurer, and sundry speeches made in reference to the large and useful work which was being carried on in this parish. The new building is a substantial structure, in keeping with the architecture of the church, from the designs of Messrs. Coward and Bell, and the cost of the building is £1500, and the land £1000; but the present value of the property as a whole is £3500, whilst the liabilities are only £2200. The parish has chiefly to thank the incumbent for this substantial asset, that gentleman having held the land at the disposal of the church at its cost price until it could be utilised for the object to which it is now devoted.

Through the kindness of the tramway authorities, the inmates of the institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind enjoyed a great treat to Bondi yesterday. When they arrived at the beautiful grounds of the Aquarium, Mr. Anderson, on behalf of the proprietors, very kindly invited the party to enter and see their collection of fish, &c., a treat which the deaf children had been eagerly anticipating. After admiring the fish, some of which are both rare and choice, they were invited to walk round the grounds. The camera obscura, the feeding of the seals, riding on the merry-go-round, and other modes of enjoyment provided for the pupils in the Aquarium grounds, were all thoroughly appreciated. All returned safely to the institution about 6 o'clock, much the better for the sea breeze and the day's outing.

A boarded-out boy named James Sivret, aged 12 years, met his death in a singular manner at Mittagong on Wednesday. He was apparently in perfect health at school at 12 o'clock, and while racing with another lad their heads came in violent collision. Half an hour afterwards Sivret complained of headache, and the teacher placed him on a form to rest, thinking he was suffering from biliousness. In a few minutes he fell off the form and was taken to a neighbour's house, where he was seized with violent fits. Medical aid was at once sent for, but when the doctor arrived the boy was dead. Dr. Newmarch made a post-mortem examination of the body, and found that the violent shock of the encounter with the other boy had ruptured the meningeal artery, and that death had resulted from blood pressure on the brain. He said the lad was particularly well nourished, but he had found the stomach to be on the border of inflammation, and presenting a most peculiar appearance. A large coloured lolly was exhibited at the inquest, a number similar to which it was stated the deceased had eaten on the day of his death. In reply to a question from Mr. Maxted, who attended the inquest on behalf of the State Children's Relief Board, Dr. Newmarch said that it was quite probable the irritated and inflamed state of the stomach (which had possibly aggravated the injury to the brain) might have been caused by eating these lollies; and at the request of the jury the inquest was adjourned for a week, in order that the contents of the stomach, and also the lolly produced at the inquest, might be sent to Sydney for analysis.

A married woman named Priscilla Padden, who some days ago was admitted to the Sydney Hospital suffering from the effects of a drug alleged to have been administered to her for an illegal purpose, died in that institution yesterday afternoon. The City Coroner has been apprised of the occurrence, and an inquest will probably be held.

At the Sydney Hospital yesterday, the following cases were admitted for treatment:—James Moloney, aged 41 years, a labourer, suffering from a scalp wound and various small contusions, caused by being thrown from a trolly to the ground, near Tooth's Brewery; William Taylor, 30 years of age, suffering from a severe laceration of the left hand, which was nearly severed in two. He was working at Brown's sawmills, Pyrmont, when his hand was caught by a circular saw, which crushed the bones and divided the arteries.

At about 11 o'clock on Thursday evening, a small fire broke out in premises occupied by Mr. J. S. Terrott, Regent-street, Camperdown. A bed and a quantity of bedding were burned, and the interior of the room was considerably damaged by fire and water. The building and its contents were insured, the former in the office of the Australian Mutual Insurance Company, and the latter in the Commercial Union Insurance Office.

The following is the order of musical service at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday next:—Morning, 11: Te Deum, Smart, in F; anthem, "In Jewry is God known," Whitfeld. Afternoon, 3.15: Tours, in F; anthem, "Ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers, and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God," Stainer. Litany, Tallis.

We are asked to announce that Dr. Dale has recovered from his recent indisposition, and will be able to conduct his services on Sunday next, and take part in the farewell meetings on Tuesday and Thursday.

We are asked to say that a supplement to the Australian Independent contains the address delivered by the Rev. Dr. Jefferis, as chairman of the Congregational Union, which appeared a few days ago in the Herald.

The Primate desires us to announce that the preliminary meeting of the general committee for the Centennial Fund will be held at the Chapter-house at 4.30 on Monday afternoon. Gentlemen willing to serve on the committee, or those who have been accidentally overlooked, are invited to attend, as the presence of a name upon the list of the general committee will be taken to imply sanction and sympathy, rather than the promise of undertaking active work. A small executive sub-committee will be formed to take charge of the details of the organisation and promotion of the fund. Between £5000 and £6000 have already been subscribed without solicitation.

Anniversary services in connection with the Bathurst-street Baptist Sunday-school will be held to-morrow. On Monday there will be a tea and public meeting, the latter taking the form also of a valedictory meeting to Mr. William Page, who is leaving for London to become a student for the ministry in the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's College.

The annual tea meeting of the Sydney City Mission will be held in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, on Tuesday evening next.

Through the interest of some friends, a semi-grand piano has been presented to the Goodenough Royal Naval Home. It is hoped that ladies who are interested in the institution will now avail themselves of the opportunity that now presents itself for assisting in the evening entertainment of the sailors. An opening concert is to be given at Trafalgar House on Thursday next by the Misses Houstoun Hall, who will be assisted by a number of gentlemen who have kindly volunteered their services.

Messrs. Freeman and Co., of George-street, have shown us some photographs that have recently been taken by them of the Hon. Lady Carrington and her daughters. The photographs, which include both single figures and groups, are excellent likenesses and beautifully finished. One especially, representing one of the daughters and a pet collie makes a very pretty picture. We believe that his Excellency the Governor has expressed himself very much pleased with them.

In reference to our report of the meeting of the Trades and Labour Council, Mr. T. E. Colebrook informs us that the reason Mr. John Norton was ineligible as a delegate was not because he was not a bona fide miner, but because he was not a financial member of the union of his own particular trade or calling—there being, in fact, no reporters' union.

From Messrs. Kerry and Jones, of George-street, we have received some well-executed photographs of his Excellency the Governor in full court uniform and hunting dress. They are well finished and faithful portraits. From the same studio come some groups taken at Government House of the residents and their guests.

The following is the report of the Benevolent Asylum for the week ending November 16th, 1887:—Admitted, 3 women, 4 children: births, 5; deaths, 4; discharged, 5 women, 6 children; remaining in the house, 89 women, 121 children; total, 210. Fresh applications for relief, 9; cases reported by the inspector, 45. In 12 cases the relief was discontinued; in 2 cases the rent money was disallowed. Total number of cases relieved, 446.

The following is the report of the Sydney Hospital for the week ended 5th November, 1887:—Admitted, 38 males, 26 females: total, 64. Discharged, 35 males, 21 females: total, 56. The colonies applied for shares to a very large extent, and this had the effect of causing a sensation. The confidence of colonial applicants in the resources of the mine has created a favourable impression. Extensive dealings have taken place in the shares, which are now at a premium of 15s.

LATER NEWS FROM NEW GUINEA.

MR. FORBES'S EXPEDITION INTO THE INTERIOR.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own Correspondent.)

BRISBANE, Friday.

Mr. John Douglas, Special Commissioner for New Guinea, has received news from Port Moresby to the effect that Mr. H. O. Forbes had returned to that place from an inland expedition. Mr. Forbes left Port Moresby on the 1st October in company with Denis Glasson and Geo. Belford, and two South Sea Islanders. The party having with them eight pack-horses, and provisions for eight weeks. They formed the main camp 50 or 60 miles north-west of Port Moresby on the eastern slope of Mount Owen Stanley. The islanders were left in charge of the camp, while Messrs. Forbes, Gleeson, and Belford extended their observations in the direction of Mount Owen Stanley. They reached the base of the mountain at about 24 miles from the main camp; but found it impossible to proceed further in consequence of the superstitious fear and hostility of the natives. After a difficult and dangerous march, they returned to the main camp, on the 31st October, and found it had been looted, there being, moreover, no signs of the South Sea Islanders who were left in charge. The horses, however, were found. The party returned safely to Port Moresby, the islanders having previously reached there after great difficulty. According to their representations they had been attacked by a formidable body of natives, and had to make the best retreat they could. Mr. Forbes, unfortunately, lost some of his instruments which were amongst the camp equipage. He was able during the trip to make some valuable additions to the geographical knowledge of the country.

AUSTRALASIAN PARLIAMENTS.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own Correspondents.)

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The Legislative Assembly last night went into committee to consider the advisableness of introducing the Australian Naval Force Bill. The Premier gave the whole history of the events leading up to the agreement of the Imperial Conference, and narrated how, on his return to Queensland, he drafted a bill to give effect to the agreement in an alternative form, which was sent to the other colonies, all of whom had acknowledged the receipt of the bill except New South Wales. He urged the passing of the bill, and said the honour of the colony was pledged to the agreement. It was also more necessary to pass the measure because the Imperial Government were waiting to prepare the estimates for next year. Mr. Morehead, on behalf of the Opposition, declined to discuss the bill, because the House was incapable of doing it, being moribund, and the question should be remitted to the constituencies. This objection was also taken up by Mr. Dickson, on behalf of the Ministerial cross benches, and also by several Ministerial supporters. Mr. Macrossan also declined to discuss the bill, and mentioned that the agreement was disgraceful to the Imperial Government. It was also urged by the opponents that the Premier had discharged all the obligations of honour imposed on him by having submitted the bill, and was advised to withdraw it. Sir Samuel Griffith said the Government would not proceed with any other business whatever until the bill had been read a first time. The House sat till 1 a.m., when the debate was adjourned till the following evening.

In the Assembly this evening, the Naval Defence Bill was introduced and read a first time, after further discussion, in which the Ministerial supporters promised that it should not pass. With this understanding the Opposition allowed it to go. The Premier said it was proposed to take the second reading on Tuesday. The House rose shortly after 9 p.m.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The Legislative Council has finally passed the Tariff Revision Bill, and, by the suspension of the Standing Orders, passed the Intercolonial Debtors' Bill through all its stages.

In the Assembly last night, the Attorney-General obtained leave to introduce a bill providing for the payment by the South Australian Parliament of the cost of an establishment for the maintenance of an additional naval force in Australasian waters. Opposition was raised to the introduction of the bill, some members contending that, if the colony contributed, as was suggested, £12,000 per annum as a proportion of £35,000 to be contributed by all the colonies, we should reduce our own defence force proportionately. Others contended that probably if we did that, and agreed to subsidise a general fleet for the protection of Australia, the ships would be probably in Melbourne or Sydney as the head-quarters, and we should not get an equivalent for our expenditure. The Attorney-General said the Government would go thoroughly into the matter on the second reading on Tuesday. The discussion on the Land Bill was long. The House struck out the reference to particular district in the clause approving of the sale of lands to meet the deficit. After a warm debate the remaining clauses dealing with that matter were postponed, to allow the Government to bring in a new land schedule. The House simply affirms, in relation to this matter, that all purchase money arising from the sale of lands shall be primarily applied to the payment of such portion of the public liabilities as shall be specially charged thereon.

TASMANIA.

HOBART, Friday.

In the Legislative Council to-night the Premier congratulated the House upon the fact that there was every reason to believe that the outbreak of smallpox was at an end. Fifteen days had elapsed since the last case. The outbreak has cost the colony between £3000 and £4000. The Premier moved the second reading of the Appropriation Bill. His statement added nothing to that made in the Assembly by the Treasurer. The House adjourned till Tuesday in order to give members time to fully consider the statement.

In the Assembly the discussion was continued on the Police Centralisation Bill, which is being very strongly opposed by the country and Launceston members.

NEW ZEALAND.

AUCKLAND, Friday.

A motion has been carried in the Legislative Council affirming the desirableness of levying a tax on the proceeds derived from totalisators at race meetings. The debate on the financial statement is being proceeded with in the House of Representatives. Sir Julius Vogel challenged the Premier to resign his seat and contest it with him.

THE NEW GUINEA PROTECTORATE.

VISIT OF MR. JOHN DOUGLAS TO THE SOUTHERN COLONIES.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own Correspondent.)

BRISBANE, Friday.

Mr. Douglas arrived in Brisbane yesterday in the Warrego from Cooktown. The object of his visit South is to wind up the accounts of the New Guinea Protectorate. He has been advised by the Colonial Office that he will be required to proclaim sovereignty over certain points on the coast line of New Guinea, but he has not yet been advised as to the forms to be adopted. He is in daily expectation of receiving further instructions in the matter. Meanwhile, he will proceed to the southern colonies to receive payment from them and close the accounts in connection with the protectorate. So soon as the sovereignty has been proclaimed letters patent to the Administrator will be issued, and all matters in connection with the protectorate will come under the operation of the Queensland New Guinea account. There appears to have been some misapprehension as to Mr. Douglas's position as Special Commissioner. He was originally recommended as Acting Special Commissioner, and he felt considerable reluctance in accepting the office in consequence of the undefined position of affairs at the time, but Sir Samuel Griffith expressed the opinion that he ought to accept the office as recommended, and he did so accordingly on the understanding that he should return to Thursday Island after discharging the duties which devolved upon him in New Guinea. His commission, however, was not that of "Acting," but "Special" Commissioner. Mr. Douglas expresses himself glad at the prospect of reverting to his old position as Resident at Thursday Island. He regards the New Guinea bill just passed by the Queensland Parliament as admirable, inasmuch as it will secure the stability and continuity of the Administration in New Guinea. Mr. Douglas considers that great patience is required in dealing with the native question involved in the assumption of supremacy in New Guinea. He considers that the colonies, from all he can hear, are to be congratulated in being likely to secure the services of such a man as Dr. M'Gregor, who has a larger experience of native affairs, and who, it is understood, has been nominated for the position of Administrator under the Act, on the recommendation of the delegates who attended the Imperial Conference in London, acting in concert with her Majesty's Government.

THE AGONIES OF LUMBAGO.

"East River National Bank, New York, March 10, 1886.—It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony in favour of your very valuable Plasters. Last October I had a very severe attack of Lumbago, and suffered untold agony; could not turn in bed or get in any position without assistance, and with pains almost unbearable; the folks suggested Allcock's Porous Plasters. As soon as possible I had one applied to the small of my back, and to my great surprise I experienced almost instant relief; I continued wearing it until entirely cured, and am happy to say that I have not had the slightest symptoms of Lumbago since. They are a wonderful and valuable Plaster for Lumbago, and I take much pleasure in recommending them. W. S. Phillips."—[Advt.]

With reference to the telegram in another column relating to ship Nancy Holt having been sighted waterlogged and abandoned (says the Fiji Times of the 9th instant) it has a special interest to Anglo-Fijians, inasmuch as the Captain's wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, of Levuka. The Nancy Holt is a barquentine of 319 tons register (MNGV) and sailed from Eureka, California, on the 12th May, with a cargo of timber, for Melbourne. While life on a waterlogged timber vessel may not be all that is desirable in this world, the mere fact that the ship is reported as being abandoned would suggest that the crew have been rescued by some passing ship. The track of the ship would be nearly that of Honolulu—the depot of the whaling fleet—and the chances are that some whaler from the latter port has the crew on board. We shall probably, at no distant date, hear of Captain and Mrs. Crosbie.

The Polynesian Gazette, of the 1st instant, says:—"The schooner Mary Ogilvie, 68 tons, Captain Garth, arrived in harbour on Monday morning, 31st ultimo, from Sydney, via Norfolk Island. She has been chartered by the Wesleyan Board of Missions to convey 15 native missionaries and their families to New Britain, and bring back to Fiji others, and has on board a cargo of supplies for New Britain. Captain W. G. Garth reports leaving Sydney on the 9th ultimo, calling at Lord Howe's Island on the 14th, landing passengers and mails; sailed 15th, arriving at Norfolk Island on the 19th, remained there five days landing cargo and mails. Left for Levuka on 24th, and arrived as above. First part of voyage experienced head winds and unsettled weather, during which lost jibboom; latter part fine weather.

In an article headed "The Measured Mile a Delusion," Broad Arrow says:—"The contractor's run upon a measured mile in smooth water is a delusion and a snare. For strongly-built ships and engines, the weights of which have not been studiously minimised, the run will afford a fair idea of what the machinery and ship can do under the most favourable conditions. It is well understood that these conditions will not ordinarily recur, and so nobody is deceived, nor are any interests jeopardised. But when the framework and plating of a ship have been pared down to save weight until the whole structure approximates to the condition of the historical horse that died when his owner's experiments upon small diet were nearly concluded; in such a case—when combined, too, with engines and boilers of light scantling, and working under forced conditions—a measured mile run is of no value whatever, and nothing short of the 96 hours' trial now determined upon can furnish trustworthy evidence of efficiency."

ARRIVAL OF THE R.M.S. GARONNE.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Garonne, from London, via Adelaide and Melbourne, entered the Heads, at 4 p.m. yesterday, and came up to the Company's moorings, in Neutral Bay. Launches were in attendance, and those of the passengers who wished to leave the ship were taken ashore and landed at the Circular Quay. The Garonne has on this occasion made one of her most successful passages. She left London with a full cargo of general merchandise, besides 353 passengers, the large majority of the latter as usual, being for this port. The health rate was good throughout, but three deaths occurred, two from phthisis and one from drowning, the latter being a case of suicide, Mrs. A. H. Devin, a second saloon passenger for this port, died on the 1st ultimo, a Mr. R. D. Wood, a saloon passenger for Adelaide, on the 4th instant. The suicide was that of James Silver, a steerage passenger, who jumped overboard on the 1st instant, when the vessel was in the Indian Ocean. Everything was done to save him, boats being lowered, and lifebuoys thrown to him, but without avail; and after two hours' searching the ship continued on her course. Socially, the voyage was a marked success, and nothing in the shape of a complaint was heard from start to finish. Indeed, the passengers were so satisfied that before they separated they presented an address to Captain White, in which they spoke of the voyage as a prosperous and most successful one, and of "their entire satisfaction with every arrangement for their comfort and safety which had been made by the Orient Company, and more especially their sense of the obligation to Captain White, for his unfailing courtesy and ceaseless personal exertions to promote their enjoyment," in which he was ably supported by his staff. Mr. H. W. Livett is chief officer, Mr. Lawrie chief engineer, and Dr. Browne surgeon, Mr. T. F. Dinnis is purser, and Mr. Doyle chief steward. The Garonne left Tilbury Docks at 7.30 a.m. on September 30, and arrived at Plymouth on October 1 at 8.23 a.m. After embarking passengers she sailed at noon, and had fine weather to Naples, which was reached on October 8. The Garonne left again at 3 p.m., arriving at Port Said on the 12th at noon, when the ship coaled and embarked 180 tons fruit. Proceeded through the canal, and arrived at Suez at 4.30 p.m. on the 14th. After taking in mails (389 bags and 3 packages), she again left at 6.15 p.m., passed Perim at 10.15 p.m. on the 18th, and experienced fine weather to Diego Garcia, which was reached on the 26th. Landed cargo and coaled, leaving the following day for Adelaide. Strong trades and head winds were experienced to Breaksea Island, which was passed at midnight on 7th November; strong easterly gale thence to within 24 hours of Adelaide. Passed Cape Borda at 6.30 a.m., and arrived off the Semaphore at 3 p.m. on the 11th November. Discharged cargo and passengers, leaving at 4.30 a.m. on the 12th. Passed Cape Willoughby at noon, with fresh south-easterly wind and fine weather. Cape Northumberland was abeam at 4.51 a.m. on the 13th, Cape Otway at 4.51 p.m. on the 14th and Port Phillip Heads were entered at 11 p.m. same day. After landing mails, passengers, and cargo, the Garonne sailed for Sydney at 3.20 p.m. on the 16th, cleared Port Phillip Heads at 6.50 p.m., and had a strong southerly wind and clear weather to Cape Schanck, and moderate winds and fine weather thence to port. The Garonne arrives in capital order throughout.

THE BALCARRES BROOK.

The steamship Balcarres Brook, which arrived yesterday, is the second representative of the colonial line to pay this port a visit. She is an iron screw steamer, of the cargo-carrying type, built by Oswald Mordaunt and Co., of Southampton, in 1884, and is of 1306 tons net register and 2001 tons gross. Her engines, which are on the compound principle, surface condensing and direct-acting, are of 170-horse power nominal and 750 indicated, the cylinders being of 30in. and 58in. in diameter respectively, and the stroke 42in. There are two steel boilers, which carry a working pressure of 90lb. to the square inch, and are fitted with Fox's patent corrugated furnaces. The vessel, like most of her class, is not remarkable for symmetry, but her machinery is considered something superior to that of most engines of the kind. The vessel has made a long passage, viz., 70 days; but when it is remembered that she was only built to go from seven to eight knots, it will be allowed that she has done very well, especially as her consumption of coal has not exceeded an average of 14 tons daily. The Balcarres Brook is an emergency steamer, having been suddenly called upon to take the place of the Ashleigh Brook, which was laid up to have refrigerating machinery fitted into her, and which is described as a fine vessel in every respect. The Balcarres Brook is divided by six bulkheads into water-tight compartments, and is double-bottomed, so that she can carry 540 tons of water ballast. She is fitted with all the appliances for cargo haulage, and in all respects seems to be a creditable specimen of her class, and is kept in very neat order. She belongs to the Balcarres Brook Steamship Company, and is commanded by Captain William Burgess. After filling up with a general cargo and embarking 16 steerage passengers, the Balcarres Brook left London on September 8, and had fine weather down to Teneriffe, where a call was made to coal on the 17th September. From there the steamer has come straight on to Sydney, and a testimony to the excellence of her machinery is to be found in the fact that the engines have been kept going continuously, with the exception of a break of about 10 minutes, ever since. After crossing the Equator, on September 27, in 8·40 W., the vessel had strong breezes and heavy seas in the S.E. trade belt, and at times rolled very heavily and shipped large bodies of water, but she came through without damage. She passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope at 5 p.m. on October 14, and came along the Southern Ocean between the parallels of 41° and 42°, with principally light winds and calms. For four days, however, she had to contend against a tremendous gale, veering from S.W. to N.W., attended with a very high confused sea. She signalled at Cape Otway at 4 p.m. on the 15th, and had moderate and fine weather thence to port. The Heads were entered at 3.50 p.m., and after being passed by the health officer, the vessel came up to a berth at Dalton's Wharf. It is expected that the Sydney portion of her cargo will be out by Monday, when she will resume her voyage to New Zealand ports, via Newcastle.

THE WEATHER.

The weather was fine, but cloudy, in the metropolitan district yesterday, and there was a pleasant breeze from N.E. In the country districts, at 9 a.m., the weather was generally fine and cool, with clouds in scattered places, and dull and unsettled in the eastern parts. It was showery at Clarence and Richmond Heads. The winds were generally light to fresh from E. to N.E., and the sea was smooth. Light rain fell during the previous 24 hours in the coast and mountain districts from Sydney, Camden, Picton, and Mount Victoria, northwards. The temperature is gradually rising, being higher yesterday in most parts of the colony than for several days previously.

VISIT OF DR. DALE TO BATHURST.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own Correspondent.)

BATHURST, Friday.

Dr. Dale, who preached last night to a great audience in the Presbyterian Church, and who also made a profound impression, left on his return to Katoomba, in company with the Rev. Dr. Jefferis, this morning. In an interview with a representative of the Bathurst Daily Times, he said that he had not yet matured his views as to the Australian people and institutions, and should not do so till on his way home. It is his intention, on his return, to communicate his opinions of the colonies to the Nineteenth Century or Contemporary, if his clerical duties and his work on the Royal Commission of Education will permit. Dr. Dale is obviously still in indifferent health, though he has improved by his stay in the mountain region.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

PENRITH, FRIDAY.

The arrival of Edward Hanlan at Penrith has caused no little stir in this usually quiet and sleepy township, and ever since the renowned Canadian oarsman set foot in the place he has been, so to speak, the centre of attraction in the eyes of many of the residents. The ex-champion is very popular at Penrith. Whether resting at his quarters at the Commercial, or journeying along the dusty road leading out of the town to the broad and silent river, he is constantly the recipient of friendly greetings, and it is considered "quite the thing, you know," to shake hands with the man who brought the championship to the colonies. Hanlan's popularity may be accounted for in various ways; but it can be asserted without fear of contradiction that it is chiefly owing to the fact that he has been the means of bringing Penrith into considerable importance, because he elected to row on the waters of the Nepean when the match between him and Laycock was decided in 1884, and also that he intends to pull Beach on the same river. People are beginning to arrive in the town already, and before the end of next week Penrith will receive a large addition to its present population. The race and the chances of the scullers are the leading topics of the hour, and numbers of people assemble on the banks of the Nepean daily in order to catch a glimpse of the men at their work—nay, more, even the passengers by the trains that cross the railway bridge in the daytime may be seen popping their heads out of the windows of the cars in the endeavour to have a peep at one or other of the famous oarsmen.

The champion and Peter Kemp, his trainer, went for their usual walking tour soon after sunrise this morning, and as the weather was fine the exercise proved very enjoyable. After breakfast Beach and Kemp spent a little time in their shed attending to the boats. The champion took his Spencer slide out of the "Jack Smith" and placed it in his new boat, the "Amy Punch," the clogs in which craft were raised a little higher. At 11 o'clock the scullers went out for their morning row. Before leaving the "wharf" they were photographed whilst sitting in their boats. The Amy Punch, although a good boat in many respects, did not appear to suit the champion, who seemed a little uneasy in her, and certainly did not get all his weight on during the spin over the course. Beach and Kemp started away from their quarters at 28 to the minute, the water being perfectly calm and smooth. The pair then quickened up to 30 for 100 yards, after which they slackened down a little, and rowed up as far as the start. At Glenbrook they turned, and came down to the last mile-post at about 26 to the minute, doing good solid work all the way. After passing the mile, the champion put on a spurt, rowing 36 to the minute. Kemp kept with him for a time, but the Dapto man increased the rate to 38 and then to 40, pulling at a tremendous pace, and with splendid action, as he swept onward right under the bridge. Kemp finished at the wharf.

This practice was witnessed by a number of visitors from Sydney and the Penrith district, including several ladies. Amongst those who watched Beach and his trainer at work from the eastern bank of the river were Messrs. J. G. Deeble, J. Allison (of Her Majesty's Theatre), Jack Burke (a noted boxer recently arrived from the States),—Kahlo, and a number of others, all of whom were delighted with the splendid exhibition of rowing given by the champion. The appearance of Beach's boat—the Amy Punch—as the Illawarra man sat in her, evoked much criticism, some of those present expressing the opinion that she did not suit him as well as the Tom Muir does. On stepping out of their boats Beach and Kemp were heartily greeted by their friends and supporters. The champion looked well and hearty, and he feels well—in fact, he told Mr. Deeble that he wished the race was coming off "to-morrow." On being questioned with regard to his chances of winning, Beach said quietly, "I feel more confident that I can win this race than I did about any race in my life." The champion also stated that he believed he could row over the Nepean course as fast or faster than Hanlan.

It was remarked that Peter Kemp looked tired and haggard at the end of the spin, and one well-known rowing man plainly stated that Kemp should have some assistance. At the present time, Peter (who, despite his appearance, asserts that he is well enough) has to accompany Beach on the water, in addition to the attentions he bestows upon him on the land. It is thought that the Hawkesbury man is rather over-worked, and not a few of his friends would be glad to see someone—say, a man like Chris. Nelson—sent to his assistance. In justice to Kemp it should be stated that he sticks to his work like a man, and makes no complaints whatever.

Hanlan and Perkins got afloat soon after Beach had gone up the river. The Toronto man used his new boat, the Nepean. Perkins was in the James Yates. Both men were in good fettle, and after submitting to the attentions of the "inevitable" photographer, they went up stream at about 28 to the minute. After going over the course they turned and rowed homewards at a rather slow pace, Perkins having a good lead. About a mile from the bridge Hanlan was striking 28 to the minute. Quickening up soon afterwards, he struck 30 to the minute, and drew ahead of Perkins, who finished well. The Canadian kept right on to the bridge, his beautiful action being favourably commented upon by the onlookers. Hanlan finished at about 28 to the minute after a good long row over the course.

At an informal gathering held in Beach's sitting-room the other evening the conversation turned upon the race. Hanlan, who was present in the champion's cosy quarters, expressed the opinion that the contest ought to prove the most exciting of its kind ever seen in or out of the colonies. Said he, "It will be a fair and an honest struggle, and I hope the best man will win." These sentiments were heartily endorsed by all present, including Messrs. Kemp, Perkins, Brett, and T. R. Smith. Beach also coincided with what had been said by his rival, and stated that he thought "It would be a downright hard battle for supremacy." If all goes well, and the scullers are as fit for the contest as they are at present, the race should be a grand one, and exciting in the extreme. It will be a contest between two of the greatest rowing men of the century, and the struggle will be more than ordinarily interesting owing to the fact that the competitors are straining every nerve and preparing every muscle for the great race. Hanlan says he never trained for a race in which the movements of the scullers were so accurately and successfully chronicled by the press as they have been on this occasion.

With reference to the matter of providing steamer accommodation to follow the race, Mr. J. G. Deeble has been informed that unless application is made at the Marine Board Office not later than Tuesday next for the necessary permission, no steamer or steamers will be allowed to follow the race on the 26th.

At the special request of Mr. T. Allison, William Beach and Edward Hanlan will be present at Her Majesty's Theatre to witness the performance on the evening of the 26th. Peter Kemp, George Brett, and George Perkins are also invited to attend. Special accommodation will be provided for the oarsmen.

Beach received a telegram from his backer, Joe Thompson, this morning, inquiring as to the state of his health, and having reference to some other matters. Mr. Thompson will be at Penrith early in next week. Beach is of opinion that he can row over the Nepean championship course in about 21 minutes.

Some of the leading citizens are about to take the initiative in forming a rowing club at Penrith. A meeting has been called for next Wednesday evening, and a large attendance is expected. With such a magnificent river as the Nepean, and with a number of likely young men in the district, the town of Penrith ought to be able to boast of two or three rowing clubs, and canoe associations into the bargain.

PENRITH, FRIDAY NIGHT.

All the scullers were out on the river this afternoon. Beach did about two miles at three-quarter speed. The Canadian went for a three-mile spin at about 28 to the minute, spurting at intervals, and finishing in very fine style. The weather is heavy and threatening.

A meeting of the Beach-Hanlan Committee was held at Tattersall's yesterday evening, under the presidency of Mr. J. H. Want, M.L.A. There were present Messrs. Lee, Dargon, Hill, and M'Laughlin. It was reported that all the necessary arrangements with regard to the race had been satisfactorily made. It was resolved that the committee should take no part in the arrangements made in connection with the gate money or the general public. The names of the men proposed to work the semaphores will be submitted to the committee. A message was received from Mr. G. R. Dibbs, M.L.A., stating that he wished to entertain his Excellency the Governor on the day of the race, and that he would like the committee to take luncheon at his place. The committee agreed to accept the invitation. It was resolved that the steam launch should be conveyed to Penrith a few days before the date for the contest.

THE NEPEAN CHAMPIONSHIP COURSE.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

In view of the interest manifested in the approaching contest between two of the greatest oarsmen of the century, which is to be rowed over the Nepean championship course on the 26th instant, a description of that portion of the river and its surroundings may prove acceptable at the present juncture to those—and they are by no means few in number—who are unacquainted with this, one of the noblest of the many streams to be found in Australia. Looked at from an aquatic, or, rather, a rowing point of view, the Nepean is an admirable sheet of water, being almost perfect in every respect, and eminently suitable for the holding of champion or other boat races. William Beach, who has won laurels on the Parramatta and on the bosom of old Father Thames, thinks the Nepean course is "the finest he has ever seen;" and Hanlan, the Toronto sculler, who is no mean authority upon such matters, considers that "the Nepean championship course is the finest and the fairest in the world." And yet very few of the residents in this colony have caught more than a hurried glimpse of this superb stretch of water—that view being obtained in the majority of cases as they crossed the railway bridge in the train on their way to one or other of the Blue Mountain sanatoriums. The Nepean is less than 36 miles from the metropolis, and it is within a mile and a half of the centre of a township—Penrith—but it might as well be thousands of miles away, as except on such occasions as the present, when a great race is about to take place, it is not frequented or used by many people. Possibly there may come a time when on the river banks there will be found the sheds of three or four good rowing and canoeing associations, and numerous fast steam launches will ply to and fro between the points of interest; but at present the formation of the aforesaid rowing clubs appears to be a good way off, in the dim and distant future, and the people of Penrith and the district will have to rouse themselves from the apathetic condition into which they seem to have relapsed before a proper use is made of this splendid waterway, which lies, so to speak, at their very doors, and is apparently neglected and forgotten during the greater portion of the year. A more perfect course could scarcely be imagined. The Nepean is tideless, or nearly so, and as a rule its waters are clear and calm in fact, in this latter respect it closely resembles a land-locked lake. The course itself is a magnificent one. From the starting-point it runs in a north-easterly direction, about two miles and a-half of the entire distance—the exact length of the course is three miles and a-quarter—being perfectly straight. When there is plenty of water in the river no better place could be found in any part of the world on which to row a race in wager boats. At the starting-point the Nepean is about 300 yards wide, but lower down towards the railway bridge it is more than 350 yards in width. Grand views of this river are to be obtained from many of the elevated hillocks on its banks; but the finest view of all will be gained by taking up a position on the piece of land between Squire's Hotel and the railway bridge, or on the main road where it joins the bridge. From this elevation the spectator has the magnificent reach of the Nepean immediately in front of him, and those who view the broad and silent river from this point will be compelled to admire its beauty, and also to admit that the sight is scarcely to be equalled in any other part of the world. The picture spread out before the eye is one of singular loveliness. Looking in a south-westerly direction towards the seemingly impenetrable mountain range, the silvery waters of the Nepean are perceived stretching away for two miles and a half in nearly a straight line, while at the point where the bend takes place the river it suddenly assumes a wedgelike shape, as though it were desirous of forcing a passage right through the giant cliffs which suddenly rise up, as if determined to hem it in altogether. On either side of the stream drooping willows, acacias, and dark-foliaged native trees grow right down to the water's edge, and these, together with a few pretty residences which have sprung up on its banks, lend an additional charm to the beautiful picture, a portion of which is set, as it were, in the centre of a vast plain of meadow and pasture land. Looking away over the flats which stretch to the eastward, the visitor will see the quaint and old-time looking township of Penrith, while on the western side of the river the eye rests with pleasure on the far-famed Emu Plains, the noble viaduct across Knapsack Gully, and the grand mountain range in the distance. But to return to the course proper. Near a beautiful little streamlet called Glenbrook, which flows into the Nepean, end on the opposite or eastern side of the river, two huge boulders of peculiar shape are to be seen resting close down to the water's edge. About 15 or 20 yards below these rocks a small wooden post has been driven into the ground. This particular post indicates the exact locality at which the championship course commences. From this place to a point near the railway bridge the distance has been ascertained by measurement to be three miles and a quarter. The river scenery at the starting point is exceedingly grand and picturesque. The stream is apparently hemmed in, and altogether surrounded by noble cliffs towering to a height of between 200ft. or 300ft., and clothed with the rich foliage of many native trees, prominent amongst which are various species of eucalypti, &c. A little higher up, the banks of the river are covered with luxuriant vegetation and creepers, ferns and grass trees flourish in wild profusion, and in all their natural beauty. Proceeding down the Nepean, the stream commences to open out. The character of the country on either side of the river now appears to alter quite suddenly, until at a distance of about a quarter of a mile from the starting point, the tall, overhanging cliffs are succeeded by vast stretches of level country, broken at intervals by little rivulets. On rounding the bend in the stream the scene is an enchanting one. The broad river stretches right away to the railway-bridge, the noble proportions of which are perceived in the distance. If the sun has crossed the meridian, a refreshing north-easter is almost certain to be blowing up the course. This wind, although grateful in the extreme on a hot afternoon, occasionally blows pretty hard, and raises a good deal of lumpy water, which renders sculling in wager-boats rather trying work. In this respect the oarsman who possesses the greatest amount of strength will have the best of the battle from the mile mark; but in nine cases out of ten the race would be practically decided before the men reached the more exposed portion of the stream. At a distance of a little more than a quarter of a mile down the river, on the eastern bank, there is a fine residence—the abode of Mr. Ewan, of Messrs. Fraser and Co.—standing on a gently-rising hill. There is a boatshed at this place, and in all probability the Canadian will make use of this structure immediately before the race begins, as he has received permission to do so. Continuing downwards, one passes the half-mile and three-quarter-mile marks, all of which are on the eastern side of the river. After leaving the mile point behind, Cow's Creek—a charming little stream hidden beneath masses of drooping foliage—is reached. This rivulet enters the Nepean on its eastern side. Between this spot and Rock Creek there are a number of boulders lying near the western bank of the stream, and beds of tall rushes and masses of weeds are encountered at intervals. The boulders formerly extended a good way out into the river, but the obstruction was removed prior to the Hanlan-Laycock race. Before reaching Rock Creek a disused factory will be seen standing on the eastern bank of the river. This old building forms an excellent landmark, and can easily be seen from the course. From this point one glides down to the two-mile post, and a little further away on the western bank the snug and compact-looking residence of Mr. G. R. Dibbs may be seen. Continuing down the stream, a small homestead will be perceived on its eastern side. Another dwelling-place stands on the opposite bank of the river, and nearly opposite this latter place the two and a-half mile mark is fixed. Another good pull, and we have covered three miles of the course. A quarter of a mile further on the winning post is reached. The finishing point will be about 50 or 60 yards from the railway bridge, and, doubtless, a large number of spectators will assemble on the high banks of the river at this place on the 26th to witness the termination of the great struggle. At the present time there is a good depth of water all over the course, and a slight "fresh" is still coming down from the uplands and the affluents of the river. After rowing over about seven miles of the stream, and judging for oneself, it may be asserted, without any fear of contradiction, that the Nepean championship course is unquestionably one of the fairest and most perfect to be found in the Old Land or the New.

At some points the appearance of the river is very beautiful, and a walk along its banks is by no means the least interesting way to spend an idle afternoon. The lover of Nature will admire the placid stream, and the drooping willows, whose long feathery branches bend to and fro under the influence of every passing breeze; and as he endeavours to fathom the history of this strange tideless river, which partly encircles the base of the grand purple-hued mountains that stand out against the distant horizon like mighty sentinels, his thoughts will, in all probability, revert to the days—now long past and well-nigh forgotten—when his dark-skinned brother roamed these solitudes, and sought his prey all unconscious of the fact that in far-off lands the men of a stronger race were preparing themselves for the work of colonisation, and making ready to supplant him and his dusky warriors. Yes; the aborigines are gone—having been literally swept off the face of this part of Australia by the onward march of "civilisation"—and in place of their rude dwelling-places comfortable-looking houses are scattered all over the plains—peaceful-looking homes with pleasant-looking gardens surrounding them, in which English flowers are unfolding their beauties under alien skies, gladdening the heart of many a tired wayfarer, and directing his thoughts to the Home! and that is so dear to him. In this district the "bush" proper—the bush known to the early explorers—has long since vanished. The Australian forests and streams no longer contain monstrous animal or bird forms of fabulous dimensions, and the glamour surrounding the wooded groves has long since disappeared before the axe of the hardy pioneer settler, and the rush and whirl of the "iron horse." One may well ask,—

> "Where now the warrior of the forest race,
> His glaring war-paint and his fearless face?"

He and his fellows have vanished, or nearly so, and this before the colony has been in existence 100 years.

The Nepean and the country adjacent to it were tolerably well known in the early or "old" colonial days. Flanagan states that "the infant colony of New South Wales suffered a severe loss through the straying away of the horned cattle, viz., four cows and two bulls." Governor Hunter, in the year 1795, having crossed the Nepean in one of his explorations, discovered some 40 head of wild cattle, which proved to be the progeny of the cattle lost by the early settlers. There are several fine residences on the banks of the river, in the immediate neighbourhood of the township of Camden. The Nepean is said to have been first discovered by Governor Phillip in the month of July, 1788, and the river was named by him after the then Secretary to the British Admiralty, Sir Evan Nepean.

From an aquatic point of view, the Nepean River is celebrated as being the scene of Hanlan's first victory in Australia, the then champion of the world, and finest oarsman of the age, having vanquished Elias Laycock rather easily in the year 1884.

TRADES MOVEMENTS.

A meeting of the Trades Hall Executive Committee was held last night. Proposals were drawn up, and recommendations were made, for submission to the general committee on Monday next, in connection with the laying of the foundation-stone during the Centennial celebrations.

The committee of the Sydney Industrial Co-operative Society met in the Temperance Hall, Mr. J. V. Wiley presiding. A code of rules was adopted, and arrangements were made for their registration under the Friendly Societies Act. Members of the provisional committee were appointed to wait upon the different trades organisations with a view to the taking up of shares, and also with the object of spreading the principles of distributive co-operation.

THE CLARENCE HARBOUR IMPROVEMENTS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

A private letter, dated October, was received by a gentleman in this district last mail from Mr. J. M. Purves, now in England. Mr. Purves states that he saw Sir John Coode, who has his plans almost ready for the Clarence harbour. Sir John said that he could not show the plans or give any definite information until he had first handed them to the Government, but then added, "However, I am permitted to say that a first-class harbour can be made at the Clarence at a moderate cost."

The Primate preached a special sermon at St. Mary's to-night.

BALRANALD QUARTER SESSIONS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BALRANALD, FRIDAY.

The first Court of Quarter Sessions in this town was opened on the 14th by Judge Backhouse, Mr. Merewether being the Crown Prosecutor. The court was crowded. Five cases were dealt with, and resulted in two convictions and three acquittals. The most important case was that of three men charged with intent to defraud the Government by substituting rat skins for rabbit skins. Sufficient evidence was not brought forward to prove intentional fraud, and the prisoners were acquitted.

BOURKE LAND COURT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BOURKE, FRIDAY.

A large amount of business was done at the Land Court during the week. Mr. Malcolm Robertson, manager of Wapweelah, and Mr. William Scott, manager of Balolie, applied for permission to effect improvements by fencing in the boundaries of their runs with rabbit-proof fence. The board recommended that permission be granted. These are the first applications of the sort in this district. The following applications for homestead leases were postponed:—Thomas Kelly, Wyuna Downs; C. Warmoll, Jandra and Mooculta stations; Wakefield Barton, Wanaaring run. The following application was refused:—John Macgregor, Jandra Station. The following were recommended:—William Waldron, Tarcoon, at 1 7-9d. per acre; J. M. Brown, ditto, ditto. W. Deignan's application for a special lease at the Trucking Yards was refused. A special lease was granted to H. Jobson for 150 acres North of Bourke at £15 a-year. Some applications, for an extension of the time allowed for fencing boundaries were granted.

PROHIBITION IN KANSAS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your American letter of to-day's issue contains some remarkable facts regarding the working of the prohibition laws in Kansas, and the penalties enforced for a breach of those laws. One case is mentioned in which a druggist of Wichita, Kansas, was fined on an indictment with 2080 counts in it, 20,800dol. and costs, and sentenced to 17 years and four months in gaol for violation of the liquor statute. The sentence represents 10 dollars fine and ten days in gaol for every offence. This is a peculiar way of lumping justice; but however unreasonable the sentence may appear I do not desire to comment upon it. But I want to say something about the general effect of the liquor laws in Kansas. I know Witchita, Kansas, as I know the whole State, and while it would appear from the statements in your letter that the good people of the State were steadily and morally set against the liquor traffic, the real condition of affairs is apparent to one who keeps his eyes open. Your correspondent in New York had reliable information as to excessive taxation and vigorous prosecution; but he might have added a few remarks upon the general effect of the stringent regulations had he known what prohibition in the State of Kansas means. I had seen the working of prohibition in Maine, and had seen it with prohibition eyes. But I was thoroughly undeceived as to two things that the real will of the people was for the abolition of liquor, and that the effect of the prohibition laws was to better the moral condition of the people. These are bold things to say, but they are said after a careful scrutiny into the working of prohibition in two States and in several countries. I may say something of Maine in the future; but at present I will confine myself to a few remarks about Kansas. I spent two months in the heart of the State, and had every facility placed at my disposal to pursue what was then to me a most interesting subject. Of three places I made a special study—Kansas City, Topeka, and Leavenworth; and I saw enough of Wichita, which is a small place, to satisfy me. I was assisted by two prominent prohibitionists, one a Judge, and the other a chaplain in the United States Army, and some things that I discovered were sorrowful surprises to them. As a test, in Topeka, Kansas, in company with an officer in plain clothes, I bought with no difficulty whatever, a bottle of whisky at each of five drug stores, and at four hotels passed my nickel through the ingenious "hole in the wall," and got what I wanted in return. In one night, according to the notes which I have by me signed by the detective and a Major A——, a prohibitionist, we found 22 drunken people within a radius of a quarter of a mile. No man in the place that desired liquor had any difficulty in getting it, and young men, provoked by the temptation that there always is in "stolen waters," made drinking excursions, and set the law at defiance. These sudden and extraordinary sentences may be a vindication of the law, but there can be no doubt that the general feeling of the people is against prohibition. The ballot-box is not a test. Prohibitionists vote to a man, but against them are set as a rule only the liquor-sellers and their friends. The voting on the Scott Act in Canada, and on the prohibition law in Kansas did not represent a majority of the voters. But if it were so, the effect is one which represents a people dissatisfied with restrictions that they have themselves, through their laws, imposed. Leavenworth and Kansas city were each more remarkable for drunkenness than Topeka, and I am confident that prohibition in Kansas is and will be a failure.

I am, &c., KANSAS.

RAILWAY TO CIRCULAR QUAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice through the medium of your valuable paper that a preliminary meeting re extension of railway to Circular Quay, was held in Sydney yesterday, and indeed it it surprising that agitation of any description is needed for what is to the most casual observer of the requirements of this city an absolute necessity, and must become through time, even should the present agitation meet with failure, a positive certainty. The people will have the railway extended to Circular Quay. In no other important city in the world is railway accommodation so bad. The question was asked yesterday, where is the present terminus? and the answer was what everyone with a knowledge of locality must answer, Redfern. Someone interjected, Shame! and shame it is. In the United Kingdom—in fact, all over the world, in cities where it is in any way necessary—there are termini almost at the water's edge. The advantages are apparent—easy access for suburbs and up country to town and harbour for man and materials. Then would there be less of the blocking up of our principal thoroughfares by wool lorries and drays of immense proportions, to the danger of life and limb, especially in Sydney, where the streets are too narrow and congested for our increasing traffic. I am, &c.,

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

Now that the weather has apparently settled fine, there should be a very numerous attendance at Canterbury Park this afternoon. Special trains will leave Redfern for Ashfield at convenient hours. The first race is to start at 1.30. The course is in splendid order, but those who drive from Sydney will have to be provided with good springs, unless the road be in much better condition than it was on the last occasion. Amongst the improvements recently effected by Mr. Rowe are the widening of the entrance gates and the erection of an additional number of seats under the trees in the saddling paddock. His Excellency Lord Carrington will honour the proceedings with his presence, and, judged by the excellence of the programme, the reunion should be one of the most enjoyable that have yet been held on this pretty little course. The sporting contingent at present at Wagga will reach town in ample time to attend. Racing will open with the Flying Handicap, for which Fraud heads the list, and Glen Elgin has been scratched. First Flaneur and Tilburn and Here's Luck, who come next on the list, have received more than their share; and at the weights, the prospects of Southerly Buster, Tuscacora, and Athlete, seem to be about the brightest. Faunus, who tops the tree in the Park Stakes, is heavily punished with 8st. 5lb., and as Southerly Buster will not be eligible to start on account of his win at Rose Hill on Saturday last, the places will probably be divided amongst Clarion, Hester, and Romany Rennie. Leumeah, Lifeboat, and Belvoirma may have most to say in the Prince of Wales' Stakes; but that event is very open. It is improbable that Melanion or Figtree will start for the Canterbury Handicap; and Leichhardt, Toorale, and Soldier's Wind appear likely to have most to say. It is difficult to tell what will start for the Disposal Stakes. Laurel, Tuscarora, and Rejoice look as well as most; and they may fill the places. The last event of the day (the Stewards' Mile) should bring about a good race between Tooraie, Faunus, and Aristocrat.

Those interested are once again reminded that the general entry for the Camden and Campbelltown meeting, to take place on Friday next, is to close with the secretary to-day.

The Newcastle meeting will commence to-day, and will be concluded on Monday. The nominations and weights for the different events have already appeared in our columns, and there is every probability of some first-class racing.

The Tasmanian Racing Club will hold an interesting day's racing on Monday; and on Monday and Tuesday the Bendigo spring meeting will be played out.

It should not be forgotten that the Glen Innes handicaps and the Broken Hill handicaps are to close on Wednesday next, the 23rd, and that on the following day the Barrier Ranges handicaps will need attention; while on Thursday the Brisbane Tattersall's general entry will close.

The thoroughbred mare Annie Firmin died at Fulham Park, Adelaide, a few days ago. As a two-year-old she was one of the fastest of the South Australians, and as she was particularly well bred, her death is greatly to be regretted. Annie Firmin was by the man-eating Winterlake from Instep (imp.), by Lord Clifden from Sandal, by Stockwell from Lady Evelyn, by Don John from Industry, by Priam. Instep was the dam of Footstep, the well-performed Lord Wilton, and the speedy Sandal, and she bade fair to be one of the best brood mares in South Australia.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that Pakeha has been struck out of the Standish and Bagot handicaps.

MURRUMBIDGEE TURF CLUB.

WAGGA WAGGA, FRIDAY.

The concluding day of the Murrumbidgee Turf Club Spring Meeting was similar to the preceding day as regarded the weather, but the attendance was very poor, numbering short of 1000. The fields were small, but some capital contests were brought about. The racing commenced with the Mile Handicap. The scratching-pen had been very busy, and only five out of 15 coloured on the card went to the post. The event opened inauspiciously, as Ambition, while doing a preliminary canter, stumbled when passing the judge's box, and the rider, Robertson, was thrown heavily, but he remounted, and played out his part in the race. Mr. Devlin lowered the flag to a good start, the colours of Ambition being first discernible, but Rhetorician took command at the seven furlong post, and was never headed, and won comfortably by a length from old Thakambau, who ran a good horse. A protest was entered against the winner for knocking down a post opposite the Nursery, and after a lengthy investigation the stewards dismissed it. Rhetorician gave a similar performance at the late Yerong Meeting, but the protest was upheld on that occasion. Only four were saddled up for the Prince of Wales Stakes, and for which Odd Stocking was elected favourite, with odds on. Rose of Australia made the running to the six-furlong post, where she ran off the course, and threw her rider. The favourite then made the pace and won easily. The winner was bought in for £32. Half a dozen carried silk in the Town Plate, and on the strength of his running on Wednesday Phaon had the call in the betting, while the winner went to the post at a 4 to 1 chance; the favourite, however, failed to show up prominently at any stage of the race, and Rhetorician, who went to the front after they were fairly going, was never headed, and won comfortably by a length. The Steeplechase was a very hollow affair, as Letitia and Momus would not face the timber, and Trickett cantered round. The largest field of the meeting competed in the Goonigal Handicap, in which 10 carried silk. Iona had the confidence of the public, but she failed to catch the judge's eye, while Society, on whom the betting opened at 3 to 1, and afterwards receded to 6 to 1, was ably piloted to victory by Hales. The meeting closed with the Final Flutter, for which a field of seven accepted, and Marksman, who carried most public money, won by a bare head after a grand contest with Elsie. Subjoined is an account of the racing:—

MILE HANDICAP, of 60 sovs. The second horse to receive 10 sovs. out of the stakes.

Mr. Steel's b g Rhetorician, by Lecturer—Beeswing, aged, 8st. (Curren)	1
Mr. J. M'Alister's b g Thakambau, aged, 8st. 7lb. (Gallagher)	2
Mr. J. Monaghan ns b m Honeycomb, 5 years, 8st. 5lb. (Williamson)	3
Mr. Payten's b g Spoilt Child, 6 years, 8st. 12lb. (Williams)	0
Mr. A. M'Donald's gr g Ambition, 3 years, 7st. 7lb. (Robertson)	0

Betting: 5 to 2 v. Thakambau, 4 to 1 v. Rhetorician, 5 to 1 v. Ambition and Spoilt Child.

The signal was given to an excellent start, from which Ambition was first to show, but ere a furlong was put past Rhetorician assumed command, followed by Thakambau, Honeycomb, Spoilt Child, and Ambition in that order, which was preserved along the back, where Rhetorician had established a lead of four lengths from Thakambau, who was followed at length intervals by Ambition, Honeycomb, and Spoilt Child. As they reached the 5-furlong post Rhetorician was still leading Thakambau and Ambition by three lengths, with the other pair on terms, a length away; but nearing the three-furlong post the field began to close up, and when entering the straight they were all together with Rhetorician showing slightly in advance. At the distance Rhetorician again drew away, attended by Spoilt Child, but the pace was too strong for the latter, who melted away. Thakambau put in a claim at the half distance, but the son of Lecturer shook him off, and won by a length, two lengths separating the second and third horses, who were followed by Ambition and Spoilt Child, half a length away. Time 1 minute 47½ seconds. A protest was entered against Rhetorician on the ground of running inside and knocking down a post; but the stewards after holding a lengthened investigation dismissed it.

PRINCE OF WALES' STAKES (SELLING), of 100 sovs. Weight for age. Once round.

Mr. Yeomans' ch g Odd Stockings, aged, nil, by Bellerophon—Coquette, 6st. 13lb. (Moncrieff)	1
Mr. W. C. Steel's br c Norman, 4 years, nil, 7st. 5½lb., including 5½lb. over (Curren)	2
Mr. P. W. M'Alister's g g Mercury, 5 years, nil, 6st. 13lb. (Stanmore)	3
Mr. C. B. Bruce ns. b f Rose of Australia, 3 years, £20, 6st. 7lb. (Williams)	0

Betting: 2 to 1 on Odd Stockings, 3 to 1 v. Norman, 4 to 1 v. Mercury and Rose of Australia.

Odd Stockings was first away, but was soon headed by Rose of Australia, who led to the 6 furlongs post, where she bolted off the course, and parted company with her rider, who was badly shaken. Mercury, who was left in command, led Norman and Odd Stockings by a half length along the back and to the five furlong post, where Odd Stocking cut down his opponents and led round the bend, and came home a winner by three lengths from Norman; who was six lengths in advance of Mercury. Time, 1 minute 33 seconds.

TOWN PLATE, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each for starters, with 150 added; second horse to receive 25 sovs. out of the stakes. 1¼ mile.

Mr. W. Steel's b g Rhetorician, by Lecturer—Beeswing, aged, 7st. 3lb. (Riley)	1
Mr. C. Wheeler, jun.'s, b h Marksman, aged, 6st. 7lb. (Argall)	2
Mr. P. Cox's b m Society, 6 years, 8st. (Hales)	3
Mr. H. Oxenham's ch h Phaon, 5 years, 9st. 7lb. (Harris)	0
Mr. J. Dobb's b g Genoe, aged, 7st. 10lb. (Milne)	0
Mr. P. Heffernan's b g Drumstick, 6 years, 7st. 5lb. (Curren)	0

Betting: 7 to 4 v. Phaon, 7 to 2 Society, 4 to 1 Rhetorician, 7 to 1 Genoe and Marksman, 8 to 1 Drumstick.

A pretty fair start sent the field on their mission, and Marksman, who was first on his legs, attended by Genoe, showed the way to the mile-post, where Rhetorician took charge of affairs, followed three lengths away by Marksman, Genoe, and Drumstick, at half-length intervals, two lengths in front of Society, who was a length and a-half in advance of Phaon. As they passed the six-furlong post Drumstick ran into second place, followed by Marksman and Genoe. On terms, four lengths clear of Society, whipped in by Phaon, who was three lengths away, Rhetorician showed the way round the bend, with Drumstick and Society as the nearest attendants; but as they entered the straight Marksman again made a bid for the premier position, but the former, who had plenty in hand, drew away, and won by a length and a-half from Marksman, who was a length in front of Drumstick; then followed Society and Phaon, with Genoe last. Time, 2 minutes 11 seconds.

STEEPLECHASE, a handicap steeplechase of 5 sovs. each for starters, with 100 sovs. added. Second horse to receive 20 sovs. out of the stakes. About 3 miles, over 15 leaps 3ft. 9in. to 4ft. high.

Mr. P. J. Cox's b g Trickett, aged, 10st. 8lb. (Miller)	1
Mr. J. M'Donald's b m Letitia, aged, 11st. 4lb. (Malone)	2
Mr. A. A. Devlin's b g Momus, 6 years, 9st. 3lb. (5lb. over) (Hart)	3

Betting: 5 to 2 on Trickett, 5 to 1 v. Letitia and Momus.

Letitia led to the first fence, which she refused to negotiate, and Trickett, who cleared his obstacles in grand style, was left in command, followed by Momus, who baulked at the fence opposite the stand. Though the latter, after repeated trials, managed to reach the back of the course, he was early out of the hunt, while Trickett, who was nicely ridden by Miller, cantered round. No time was taken.

GOONIGUL HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 1 sov. each for starters, with 50 added. Second horse to receive 10 sovs. out of the stakes. ¾ mile.

Mr. J. Cox's b m Society, 6 years, by Emerald—Pastime (Hales)	1
Mr. Payten's b g Spoilt Child, 6 years (Williams)	2
Mr. J. Cain's b g Iona, aged (Riley)	3
Mr. P. Heffernan's b g Drumstick, 6 years (Curren)	0
Mr. J. Purcell's b g Mistral, 6 years (Milne)	0
Mr. J. Gough's Brittanius, 3 years (Malone)	0
Mr. J. Murray's ch m Bella, aged (Stanmore)	0
Mr. M. Devlin's b g Sunflower, 2 years (Argall)	0
Mr. F. Paton's b m Nightlight, aged (Moncrieff)	0
Mr. W. Taylor's b f Blue Stocking, 2 years (Wheeler)	0

Betting: 5 to 2 against Iona, 4 to 1 Sunflower and Nightlight, 6 to 1 Society, 10 to 1 Drumstick and Mistral.

Considerable delay took place before the flag was lowered to a good start, and Mistral, who was first to move, led the field to the five-furlongs post, where Bella took temporary command, but was replaced at the Bend by Nightlight, who came through from the centre, closely followed by Iona on the rails and Society on the outside, while Spoilt Child was coming through very fast. As they turned into the straight Spoilt Child looked like a winner, but Society wore him down in the run home, and won a capital race by a length and a half. Iona was a length away third, Bella fourth, Nightlight fifth, and the rest spread-eagled, with Blue Stocking and Brittanus last. Time, 1 minute 17 seconds.

FINAL FLUTTER HANDICAP of 40 sovs.—Once round.

Mr. C. Wheeler, jun. s br h Marksman, by Tarragon—Glaucus, mare, aged, 7st. 3lb. (Argall)	1
Mr. W. Miller's ch m Elsie, 5 years, 7st. 9lb. (Stanmore)	2
Mr. W. Yeoman's ch g Odd Stockings, aged, 7st. 3lb. (Moncrieff)	3
Faugh-a-Ballagh, 8st. 10lb. (Harris)	0
Genoe, 7st. 8lb. (Smith)	0
Frenchman, 7st. 7lb. (Curren)	0
Rose of Australia, 6st. 7lb. (Riley)	0

Betting: 5 to 4 v. Marksman; 3 to 1 v. Elsie; 5 to 1 v. Frenchman and Odd Stockings.

Elsie, attended by Odd Stockings, Frenchman, and Marksman made the pace to the entrance of the straight, where Marksman challenged the gallant little mare, and a ding dong battle was fought out from the half distance, ending in a win for Marksman, who defeated his opponent by half a head, with Odd Stockings three lengths away third, followed by Genoe, Frenchman, Faugh-a-Ballagh. Time, 2 minutes 31 seconds.

The following are the winners and the amounts of the stakes won at the meeting:—H. Oxenham, £526 and the Gold Cup, value £100; T. Gough, £412 15s.; J. Cox, £380; Mrs. J. Cox, bracelet, value £100; W. SKITTLES.

A skittle match is to be played at O'Donnell's skittle alley, Crown and Arthur streets, this evening, starting at 7 o'clock, between two well-known Sydney players. Much interest is centred in this match by the lovers of the game, as both are really good players, and well matched.

AQUATICS.

The Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron open the racing season this afternoon with a race for third-class yachts. Four yachts have entered, viz., Sirocco, Carina, Sao, and Assegai. The latter will be handled by Mr. Walter Reeks, while the others will have their respective owners at the helm. The prize to be sailed for is £20, and the course: From line between starter's boat and H.M.S. Nelson's buoy down to and round a boat off Long Reef, back round Fort Denison, round Shark Island, and back to flagboat off Fort Macquarie. The steamer Genista will follow the race, leaving No. 4 Jetty, Circular Quay, at 1 p.m. sharp, admission to which will be by ticket only, to be had from the hon. secretary, Mr. H. Cornwell.

The Sydney Amateur Canvas Dingy Club will sail their first race of the season this afternoon with a handicap race for trophy presented by Mr. P. W. Creagh, one of the vice-presidents of the club. The entries and handicaps are—Thomas Punch, 14ft., J. Smith, scratch, working and leading; Xarifa, 14ft., G. Hellings, 4m. working and 2½m. leading; Bessie, 14ft., T. L. Mulhall, scratch, working and leading; Violet, 14ft., O. Taylor, scratch, working and leading; and Pearle, 14ft., J. Hayes, scratch, working and leading. Boats are to be manned and sailed by members of the club only. The start will take place at 3.15 p.m. from moorings in Farm Cove. Mr. W. Langford will officiate as starter and umpire.

The Balmain Sailing Club have a race for half-decked boats 20ft. and upwards, for which the following boats have entered:—Guinevere, scratch; Cynthia, 2¼m.; Triton, 1¼m.; Clytie, 2m.; Buttercup, 4¼m.; Nereus, 2m.; Genesta, 2m.; and Hermione, 2¼m. The course is from White Horse Point round Fort Denison, round boat off Iron Cove Bridge, round Goat Island, and back to White House. The conditions are any sails and any crews. The start will take place at 3.15 p.m. The programme of races to be sailed during the season under the auspices of this club is as follows:—December 3rd, open boats, postponed race resailed; 10th, regatta; 17th, 14ft. dingies, wood or canvas; 31st, 16ft. dingies. January 14th, Hurry Scurry for 20ft. and upwards, limited crews, jib and mainsail only. February 11th, Hurry Scurry under 20ft., limited crews, jib and mainsail only; 25th, open boats, jib and mainsail only, limited crews. March 10th, 20ft. and upwards, half-deckers; 24th, 16ft. dingies. April 7th, 14ft. dingies, wood or canvas; 21st, Consolation Race; 28th, closing.

The sculling handicap for prizes offered by the East Sydney Rowing Club will take place this (Saturday) afternoon over part of the champion course. A steamer will leave Circular Quay at 3 p.m., and the race will start about 4 p.m. The following are the handicaps and competitors:—J. F. Connolly, scratch; W. Matterson, scratch; G. J. Ruwald, 10 seconds start; C. Thomson, 30 seconds; J. Poole, 30 seconds; J. A. Smith, 35 seconds; J. M'Rae, 45 seconds; and E. Lament, 65 seconds.

Training for the Association regatta has been commenced by several crews. Balmain and Sydney are forming eights, the latter having had several rows in a clinker boat. The Glebe and Sydney have junior fours and maidens also. Mercantile has two maiden fours, but no other crews formed yet, and efforts to get an eight have so far failed.

PIGEON SHOOTING.

Fourteen members of the Hurlingham Gun Club met on Thursday last at the club's ground, Tempe, when a capital afternoon's sport was got through. The shooting was for the club trophy, to be won twice, and a 10s. optional sweep, in which four other members have a "leg in." As Mr. Bayley was the winner, the trophy does not yet leave the club. The shooting was very good, as were also most of the birds, which had the wind a little in their favour. At the end of the ninth round a tie was declared between Messrs. L. Gannon and G. Bayly, and in the shooting off both men killed their tenth bird. In the eleventh round Mr. Bayly was fortunate in gathering an easy bird just inside bounds, while Mr. Gannon let a fast bird escape him, allowing Mr. Bayly to win, he taking first money and Mr. Gannon second. Messrs. Ellis, Dent, and F. Gannon accounted for eight out of nine each. Two other sweeps were shot off, the first being divided between five, with six kills each; and the second between nine, with three kills each. During the afternoon Mr. L. Gannon killed 16 out of 17 birds, being very deadly with the first barrel. Appended are the scores for the trophy:—

G. Bayly, 27 yards	11111111111—11
L. Gannon, 26 yards	11111111110—10
R. Dent, 29 yards	111110111 — 9
F. Gannon, 30 yards	011111111 — 8
J. Gannon, 26 yards	01111111 — 7
J. Ellis, 30 yards	111111101 — 8

The following also competed:—Benfield (29), 5; W. Webster (24), 4; F. Smidmore (26), 4; W. Blake (28), 3; G. Smith (24), 3; A. Slocombe (26), 2; "Laing" (26), 0; T. Hyde (24), 0.

OLBER'S COMET OF 1815, AND TYCHO'S STAR OF 1572.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The comet referred to in my letters published in the Herald of the 18th ultimo and 5th instant as having been discovered by Mr. Brooks, of New York, on August 24, has proved to be, as was at first suspected, the comet discovered by Olbers in 1815. The question of identity was settled by observations made at the Roman College on August 27, at Besançon and Nice on August 30, and at Nice on September 2. The comet passed its perihelion on October 11, at a distance of 109 millions of miles from the sun, and since that date has been slowly receding from both the sun and the earth. This is the second comet which, within the past three years, has visited us in accordance with prediction, after an absence of over 70 years. I have just received the October number of the Observatory. It contains no notice of the recent outburst of Tycho's star, referred to by your Paris correspondent "Stella," so that in all probability, as I have before suggested, the re-appearance of the comet of 1815 has been mistaken for that of Tycho's star of 1572.

CHRIST CHURCH, ENMORE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The paragraph which appeared in your issue of the 16th instant respecting a presentation to the Rev. J. Lintott Taylor, of Christ Church, Enmore, contains a statement, which, to say the least of it, is decidedly debateable, viz., that the incumbent has "been subjected to uncharitable attacks by some persons in the parish." If an assertion of that kind had been made in a letter to your columns, it would naturally be received by the public for what it was worth, and might be allowed to pass unnoticed; but its appearance in a paragraph places the matter on an entirely different footing. Before inserting an ex parte statement of that kind, which was evidently communicated by one specially interested, I would have suggested Audi alteram partem, and it would have been then ascertained that a majority of the adult parishioners and seatholders do not consider that any attacks have been made upon the incumbent, and that the unhappy differences in the parish are rather to be attributed to a course of conduct which has tended to alienate the members of the Church, and has, during the last two years, been the cause of a sensible diminution in the numbers of the congregation.

TELEGRAPH MESSAGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Recently I have noticed several letters complaining of the Telegraph Department declining to accept messages for delivery where it is not necessary to transmit them to another office. The same experience has happened to me, and, for the information of the public, allow me to state that in Melbourne the authorities will accept messages for delivery next door to the Telegraph Office, if paid 6d., and, according to distance, so the charge. This plan is also adopted in Adelaide, Hobart, and Perth; but I am not sure of Wellington and Brisbane, though I am sanguine that the latter office follows the custom of Melbourne.

COMMERCIAL.

THE WOOL TRADE.

There have been no cable messages respecting this staple published during the week. Private cablegrams to hand, however, report trade as being very depressed on the Continent. It is probable that the more serious turn in the illness of the Crown Prince of Germany affecting the political aspect of affairs has proved a disturbing element.

The approaching London sales, to commence on the 22nd instant, are looked forward to with much interest, the general anticipation being that a decline will take place, though to what extent it is unsafe to hazard an opinion. About 150,000 bales in all are estimated to be the quantity available thereat. It is to be inferred from circulars lately received that the general expectations entertained abroad were that a much superior clip would be received from Australia this season; so far, however, as our own colony is concerned, the clip, though improved in some respects, has not for many years been found to contain so much seed and burr—a fact which, when fully realised, cannot tend to improve prices in the home market.

By mail per Garonne we have advices as to the closing of the fourth series of London sales. The total quantity catalogued was 273,340 bales, of which 35,000 bales were held over for future disposal. The Continental buyers took only about 45 per cent., which is considerably below their usual proportion. The offerings, apart from parcels held over from the earlier sales of the year, mainly consisted of scoured and remnants of clips. The series closed at about the lowest point, and according to Messrs. Jacomb, Son, and Co., prices as compared with July rates stood as follows:—"For all good combing merinos, washed and greasy, about on a par. Crossbred, washed and greasy, no change. Crossbred scoured, par to ½d. decline. All short, poor, faulty merino, especially scoured, 1d. to 2d. decline. Good, well-bodied scoured merino, par to ½d. decline. Crossbred and merino lambs, especially short and faulty, 1d. per lb. decline. The best crossbred lambs, scarce and wanted, no change. Cape and Natal scoured, washed and short greasy, 1d. to 1½d. decline. The deeper grown fleece and grease, par to ½d. decline."

Prices current in London on October 5 for New South Wales descriptions stood as under:—

	Superior.	Average to Good.	Inferior to Average.
Greasy	10d. to 12d.	8d. to 9½d.	5½d. to 7½d.
Washed fleece	17d. to 22d.	13½d. to 15½d.	10½d. to 13d.
Scoured	17½d. to 20½d.	14d. to 16½d.	11d. to 13d.

From advices brought by the Mariposa to 13th October, we learn that the Boston (U. S. A.) market was at that date in favour of buyers, though a stronger tone had recently been developed, and the general opinion was that prices had touched bottom. Respecting Australian wool we extract the following from the American Wool Reporter of 13th ultimo:—"In Australian wool, the principal request is for first combing and fine delaine, of which the supply in this country is limited. Manufacturers of fine worsteds are seeking these wools in preference to domestic delaine, as they can get it up for about the same price. Clean, fine Ohio delaine, shrinking 51 per cent. to 52 per cent., costs 70 to 72 cents, clean; and Australian at 37 cents, shrinking 50 per cent., will cost, scoured, 72 to 74 cents."

At the auctions held here during the week some large catalogues were submitted, the offerings to Wednesday totalling 16,325 bales, and the sales, including those made privately, amount to 9077 bales. Buyers have been in full force, and have bid freely, so far as their limit permits them, but beyond a certain value they will not advance. The Continental representatives are the largest buyers, and appear to have large orders, but to be tied strictly to price. The proportion of wools sold to that catalogued is not high, owing to the many parcels hampered with impossible reserves. Prices do not show any material change from last week, though at Wednesday's sale, when a number of really good wools were submitted, competition was very animated, and for these parcels an occasional extra bid imparted a tone of greater firmness to the market. For the inferior and seedy parcels the demand continues slack, and of such descriptions the withdrawals in a large measure consist. In consequence of the large quantity of grass-seeds in the fleeces the necessity of proper skirting is more apparent than usual this year. As the demand for skirts, &c., is now so active, and prices relatively high as compared with the fleece portion, there is no reason why deeper skirting should not have been resorted to. The H over MB Rosevale, 32 bales of superior wool in the grease from the Young district, topped the market this week, selling at 10½d.; a parcel of 16 bales marked Doona, from Yerong, bringing 10d. In washed fleece the S White over Clarendon clip, a sound deep-grown, bright-coloured wool, was the only parcel calling for special notice; it was bought in, the highest offer being 15d. Scoureds continue to be but poorly represented.

The following are the quantities of wool catalogued and sold to Wednesday:—

*At auction and privately.

Exports include only two vessels, taking 8620 bales as under:—

From Sydney:

November 11. Thames, s.s.	996
November 14. Derwent	7,624
	8,620
Brought forward	89,328
	97,948

From Newcastle there have been no clearances, so the exports remain at 14,776 bales.

The total shipments from the two ports since 1st July are as follow:—

1887-8.	1886-7.	1885-6.
112,724 bales	84,639 bales	118,246 bales

Receipts by rail and sea amount to 20,320 bales for the week.

Sheepskins.—The market is quiet, and buyers only purchase sparingly, so that a good many lots had to be withdrawn. It is now almost certain that prices, which have been too high in comparison with scoured and greasy wool, will have to give way, bringing about level more in accordance with actual values here and at home. We quote—Butchers' greenskins, full-woolled, 36d. to 42d.; three-quarter-woolled, 27d. to 30d.; half-wooled, 21d. to 24d.; quarter-woolled, 15d. to 18d.; pelts, to 9d.; lambs, to 15d.; dry station skins, full-woolled, 4½d. to 5d.; three-quarter-woolled, 4d. to 4½d.; half-woolled, 3d. to 3½d.; quarter-woolled, 2½d. to 2¾d.; pelts, 1d. to 2d.

Freights.—The rates for wool to London and Antwerp are still unaltered, but there is certainly an easier feeling in the freight market. We believe that ere long the rates will come down both for steamers and sailers, as there is now plenty of accommodation for that part of the clip which has still to come forward. To-day's quotations are:—Steamers, ⅝d. and ¾d.; sailers, 7-16d. and 9-16d. for greasy and washed respectively.

PRODUCE MARKET—Friday.

This morning a fair quantity of forage and a good supply of wood were submitted at Darling Harbour terminus. The sales were moderately attended by the trade. In forage, owing to the absence of prime lots, competition was weak at late values. Sales of wood were characterised by dulness. At the wharfs fairly good supplies were forward from northern rivers and southern ports and New Zealand. Business was entirely restricted to quantities for the day's requirements. Old onions and new potatoes were weaker, but other descriptions were unchanged. At Darling Harbour sales the following rates were realised:—

Wood.—Supplies coming forward more freely caused a weak demand. Billet, 8s to 10s per ton; bundle, 9s 6d to 13s 6d; foot, 9s 6d to 13s; bakers', 8s 6d to 11s.

Hay.—Moderate market. Prime lots scarce, and ruled firm for other classes; the inquiry was slack. Best oaten, in bundles, 4s 4d to 5s 2d per cwt; medium, 3s 3d to 3s 8d; indifferent from 1s 9d; bales, 4s 6d; new wheaten, in bundles, 2s 3d to 4s 8d.

Straw.—Very limited consignments. Steady competition. Oaten, in bundles, 3s 1d per cwt.; wheaten, 2s 11d; rye, in bundles, 4s 8d.

Chaff.—Smaller supplies than at yesterday's sale, and chiefly of indifferent quality; oaten, in bags, 2s 10d to 4s 11d per cwt.

At the wharfs the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—Additions to stocks from the Northern rivers this morning. Good river lines are worth 3s 11d to 4s per bushel; African white still quoted at 3s 6d.

Oats.—Bright, stout, heavy feed unaltered at 2s to 2s 3d per bushel; medium and dark lots inactive from 1s 10d; milling, 2s 3d; seed, not inquired for.

Barley.—Nominally worth 3s to 3s 3d per bushel for best Cape seed.

Bran.—Still weak at 7d to 7½d per bushel.

Pollard.—Slack at 7d to 7½d per bushel.

Hay.—Further shipments from the Hunter River this morning. Trade is entirely confined to prime dry green lucerne at £3 10s to £3 per ton. Other descriptions, from 20s.

Chaff.—Additional consignments from the neighbouring colonies last night. Best Adelaide and Victorian lots are quoted at £4 15s to £5 2s 6d per ton. Inferior almost unsaleable.

Onions.—Balances of late shipments supplemented by 280 bags last night from Victoria, which are weaker and now worth £6 to £7 per ton; new crop from the Hunter River, £8.

Potatoes.—Supplies received from Tasmania and Clarence River last night. The latter descriptions are easier at £4 per ton; Circular Head very slow of sale, 25s to 30s; New Zealand, 20s.

Butter.—Quiet. Best Illawarra dairy sorts, 5d to 6d per lb.; roll, 5d; factory-made, 6d to 7½d.

Cheese.—Ordinary colonial descriptions are unimproved at 2d to 4d per lb.; loaf cheese, 5d.

Bacon.—Hand-cured Southern still maintains a good inquiry, and is firmer at 7d to 7½d per lb., small lines to 8d; machine-cured, 6d to 6½d; heavy and rough pieces, 5d to 5d; colonial hams, 6d to 10d; New Zealand bacon, 6d; hams, 10d to 11d.

Lard.—Finely rendered, in bladders, in limited request, and quoted at 3d per lb.; in bulk, from 2d.

Honey.—Good and clear worth 4d to 5d per lb.; other sorts from 2½d.

Eggs.—Additional supplies, principally from the Northern rivers, this morning. Slack at 1s 2d per dozen. Those by rail realised: Hen eggs, 1s 1d to 1s 4d; duck, 1s 3d to 1s 4d.

Poultry.—A fairly good demand is maintained for all varieties at per pair—Fowls, 3s 6d to 4s 9d; ducks, 3s 6d to 5s; geese, 7s to 9s; turkeys, 7s to 12s. STOCK, STATION, AND PRODUCE REPORTS.

Tallow.—Messrs. Brunker and Wolfe, J. H. Geddes and Co., Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, Mort and Co., Limited, F. L. Barker, Hill, Clark, and Co., and J. Bridge report holding sales yesterday. 693 packages were offered, and 227 sold publicly. There was no change recorded. Although the home advices are encouraging, shippers are still prevented from operating with freedom, owing to no freights being available for London. Trade lots were in fair request. Quotations—Best beef, £17 5s to £17 10s per ton; medium, £16 5s to £17; mixed and station, from £16; inferior, from £10 10s; best mutton, none offering.

Hides.—5454 were offered, and 3325 sold at yesterday's sales. The market was inclined to be weaker for all descriptions, excepting for well-conditioned lots. Sloppy lines were very dull of sale. Quotations—Extra heavies, 3½d to 3¾d per lb.; exceptional lots to 4d; heavy, 3½d to 3¾d; medium, 3¼d to 3½d, light, 3½d to 3¾d; dry station, to 5½d. Horsehides, 3s to 7s; yearlings, 4s 6d to 9s; calfskins, 1s to 4s 6d.

Marsupial Skins.—The auction sale of Harrison, Jones and Devlin, Limited, yesterday was largely attended. Competition was brisk, and values of all large lots especially were very firm. Some extra large sizes showed an advance on previous rates. The following prices were obtained:—Extra large kangaroo, 16s to 120s per dozen; very large, 75s to 95s; large, 65s to 72s; fair, 43s to 55s; medium, 35s to 40s; small, 12s to 20s; very small, 2s to 7s. Opossum skins unaltered, extra good lots being again inquired for. Best, 6s to 8s; fair, 4s to 5s; medium, 3s to 3s 6d; rumped, 1s to 2s. Wallaby was in fair demand at 7s to 9s for large swamp; small, 3s to 4s; scrub, large, 5s to 6s; small, 2s to 3s; rock, 1s 6d to 2s.

Hair.—A fair inquiry is reported for best horsehair at 13d to 14½d per lb. Cow washed, 10d to 11½d; dirty and stumps, from 4d to 6d.

Horns and Bones.—The market remains weak, especially for the latter. Large and well cared for parcels of horns are worth 25s to 30s per 100; medium, 14s to 20s; small, 5s to 12s; tipsi from 3s. Best shank bones are quoted at £4 10s to £5 per ton; common, £2 10s to £3; hoofs, £2.

Leather.—At Tuesday's sales business transacted was confined to a few extra light creased lines of tweed and kip and harness descriptions. Heavy sorts and basils were extremely difficult of sale. Sole was only in request for local requirements. Quotations: Sole, extra heavy, 11d to 12d; medium, 8½d to 8¾d; kip; best, 15d to 16d; medium, 12½d to 14d; cow tweed, 16d to 21d, heavy, 14d to 15d; yearling tweed, 18d to 20d; calf tweed, 18d to 22d; waxed calf, 18d to 24d; harness, 12d to 13d; bag, 9s to 11s.

Horses.—The market during the week has been well supplied, but chiefly with ordinary classes. Good sorts are scarce. Light horses are still commanding the most attention. Extra heavy draught are also in demand, but medium draught are slack. There are no carriage pairs on hand. Quotations: Best saddle and harness horses, £20 to £28; ordinary, £10 to £16; active van and draught stock, £14 to £23; good quality heavy draughts, to £30.

Store Stock.—There is some slight abatement in the demand for store bullocks. On the Murray quotations are 90s to 107s 6d for three to five year olds; on the Queensland border 80s to 85s. For store wethers there is a better demand, at from 5s 3d to 5s 6d. There is more inquiry for ewes.

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b, standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours; M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt. Perth; Ay, Albany; Es, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Re, Robe; P. Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; C G, Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

The rainfall on Sundays or holidays, when this map is not published, is in all cases included in the quantities shown by the next following map.

FREE TRADE OR PROTECTION?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondents, Messrs. Joseph and Skeet, fall into the mistake so common to protectionist advocates. They suppose that a few sentences of attempted satire and false rhetoric are sufficient to dispose of arguments based on facts. In my letter I quote from Hayter, and show that but for one unprotected line of Victorian manufacture, the number of hands employed last year would actually be diminished in number. This is a fact, and is not answered by words of ridicule. No candid man would attempt to ignore it; none, save a partisan blinded either by prejudice or interest, would refuse to give it due weight. Mr. Joseph is not happy in his attempt at Scripture quotation. I am not aware that "Man, know thyself," is to be found in Scripture. Perhaps your correspondent will refer us to his authority. If he cannot, it may serve to illustrate the inaccuracy which distinguishes our opponents. Mr. Skeet states, "The present Ministry are paying £2100 weekly for unproductive work by thousands of employed." If this is a fact the wages paid must be low indeed, and the careless statement contains its own refutation. I did not state that the members of Lord Salisbury's Government were "fossils." I spoke of his notions on fiscal questions being "fossils of his brain," and stated only fact. There are not many members of his Cabinet who would follow him in any attempt to reverse the free-trade policy of Britain, and if Mr. Joseph has the least knowledge of English politics he would understand that Lord Salisbury is only maintained in power to sustain the Unionist policy of the country, and could not exist a day as Premier apart from the support of Mr. Goschen, Lord Hartington, and Mr. Chamberlain, all ardent freetraders.

Mr. Skeet draws a lamentable picture of the London unemployed. He evidently has not studied the question of English poverty. It is not in the country districts that that poverty is so acute. It is rather in the large centres of population, and notably in London. On the whole poverty has decreased throughout the kingdom. The Pall Mall Gazette, in an article under date September states: "Pauperism has not increased with our population, and we have less paupers now than at any time prior to 1873. Ten years before that, the number exceeded 1,000,000. Instead of 1 in 34 of the population, we had 1 in 16 in 1846. It will not be satisfactory to London ratepayers to find that while the cost per head of the outdoor paupers is but slightly in excess of the cost of the same class in the country, the cost per head in the mean number of paupers of all classes has in the metropolis been more than twice as much as it has been in the country as a whole." This is stated to be due to the larger proportion relieved in workhouses in London to those relieved in other parts of the country. There are many causes for the poverty of large masses in London, mainly of a moral character, on which I could not dilate in a letter. These are, however, entirely outside the scope of our contention on a fiscal question. But they are real and potent. One thing, however, is certain, that no more important social question awaits solution than that of the tendency in manufacturing countries of population to accumulate in large masses in few centres. Wherever this occurs poverty is a sure attendant. In crowded Britain this may be difficult to prevent. It were madness to attempt to force this condition on a new country whose wealth is in its natural resources, and whose vast stores of raw produce but await the gathering hand of man to make them available for national progress and national prosperity. Mr. Skeet would be a public benefactor if he would "point out productive work for 50,000 men to-morrow morning." If by this he means productive work in developing the rich natural resources of the country, I am at one with him. Not 50,000 only, but hundreds of thousands might be so employed and profitably employed. If he means by "productive work" the establishment of factories which, like those of our Victorian neighbours, can only be maintained by State aid and pauper grants through the Custom House, and by the employment of women at reduced rates, then he would be an enemy, not a friend, both to the community at large and the working man in particular.

I have not alluded to those parts of your correspondent's letters referring to Mr. Pulsford. He is well able to take care of himself, and the temper shown by his opponents when they refer to him and his arguments is the greatest tribute to his power and their own discomfiture.

I am, &c.,
November 14. NICHOLAS B. DOWNING.

ON THE ATTIC FLOOR are 3 spacious rooms.
Detached, in yard, are large kitchen, scullery, larder and 3 rooms.
An inspection of the house alone will convey an idea of the very large rooms it contains, which have lofty ceilings, and are well proportioned.
A comparatively small expenditure, and the display of taste in designing the extensive grounds, would make a most attractive and superior commodious family mansion.
ELSWICK HOUSE

The grounds have double the very wide frontages to two streets, viz.,
292 feet to RENWICK-STREET
292 feet to THORNLEY-STREET,

LAND is 80ft. by 60ft. depth, near to COWPER WHARF, Woolloomooloo Bay. DUKE-STREET, Nos. 40 and 42.
Two Houses, with land having double frontage, viz., 25ft. to each DUKE-STREET and BROUGHAM-STREET; depth through, 116ft.; the latter frontage still available for building on; near to Cowper Wharf; rental about £66 per annum.

Knox's residence, and it is close to Mrs. Mort's, Greenoaks, and other fashionable properties, giving it at least a highly conservative character, likely to improve in worth.

LOT 1.—CLEVELAND and BUCKINGHAM STREETS.
Splendid corner, 54 feet to former and 97 feet to latter; the front is enclosed with massive stone wall, other lines fenced.

LOT 2.—ELIZABETH and BELVOIR STREETS.
Exceptional double corner Block, 72 feet to former and 86½ feet to latter, extending back to LITTLE BUCKINGHAM-STREET, fenced in.

Magnificent Block of 163 feet frontage, between Belvoir and Cleveland streets, by average depth of about 105 feet back to LITTLE BUCKINGHAM-STREET; all the front line has a solid stone retaining wall, and the land is fenced in.
The Auctioneers might simply invite inspection of these various lands to claim the high opinion of the purchasing public for them all. A very few years at most will reveal an enormously enhanced value for frontages so well situated as these sites, capable of use for many profitable purposes. Both ELIZABETH and CLEVELAND STREETS are proved to be commanding vast larger patronage, and passing these lots. BANK INTEREST is at 4 PER CENT ONLY, and CAPITAL, THEREFORE, should be attracted to the favourable opportunity now presented to acquire exceptionally well situated and choice Blocks for the erection of buildings to pay handsome returns.
NO BETTER LANDS IN THE MARKET.

LOT 4.—PICK of RANDWICK.

DETACHED WEATHERBOARD RESIDENCE, shingle roof, with verandah in front, and containing hall, 4 rooms, 2 verandah rooms, attic room, BRICK KITCHEN, and laundry; stable and buggy shed at rear.

These properties were a just pride of the late owner, and all through the history of the BOROUGH they have ranked among the best of many good RESIDENCES. The site is one of the prettiest conceivable, commanding views of almost matchless beauty, and it is neighboured by high-class holdings, which circumstance gives an important conservative value to the Lots. The Grounds are charmingly laid out, and delightfully suited the onlooking of their owners. The drive by road or ride by tram to RANDWICK is the most attractive and pleasant of all our suburban routes, in large part through green parks and wooded plantations.

EXTENSIVE RIVERINA PROPERTY, to be sold
by PUBLIC AUCTION
at Messrs. Dalgety and Co.'s Sale Rooms, Bourke-street West, Melbourne, on THURSDAY, 1st DECEMBER next,
at 3 p.m.
TUBBO,
Situated on the south bank of the Murrumbidgee River, between Messrs. Clark and M'Leay's Kerarbury, and Mr. Angus Robertson's Yarrabee Park estates.

DOUGHARTY, SON, and PARKER (in conjunction with Dalgety, and Co.) have been favoured with instructions from the trustees in the estate of the late John Peter, Esq., to sell as above.

TUBBO
comprises about 170,000 acres of freehold, together with leasehold and other lands, in all about 164,000 acres,
well fenced, and subdivided into 50 paddocks, with every requisite improvement.
The home station is situated on the south bank of the Murrumbidgee River, the dwellinghouse being of weatherboard, and containing 14 rooms, also barracks, kitchen (detached), servant's room, store, office, blacksmith's and carpenter's shops, stables, and other outhouses, hay sheds, yards, &c. Within half a mile of the homestead is situated a new woolshed for 50 shearers, with two wool-presses (Wilding's), in thorough working order, wool tables, bins, and all other requisite fittings; large and commodious huts, for shearers, with sheep-drafting yards, and every convenience for carrying out efficiently shearing operations.
Sheep and cattle drafting yards have been erected near the home station, and there are also yards in other central and convenient parts of the run.
Ten boundary riders' huts have been built in various places on the run.
Besides the Murrumbidgee (to which the estate has a frontage of about 17 miles), numerous creeks and swamps, there are 13 wells, of which nine are fitted with horse whims and requisite fittings, all in good working order, and four are single and double shafts.
There are also on the run 50 tanks, varying in size from 1000 yards up to over 5000 yards, and the earth excavated has, wherever practicable, been used for dams.
There are other conveniences, too numerous to mention, for the efficient working of the property, which is in thorough going order.
From the above it will be readily seen that Tubbo forms one of the most complete pastoral properties anywhere, having a great future for agriculture, seeing that the land is so good and irrigation can be carried on largely and simply by gravitation.

GOULBURN.

TUESDAY, 6th DECEMBER.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT SALE
VALUABLE FREEHOLD PROPERTY in the CITY and SUBURBS.

AUBURN-STREET INVESTMENT.

MAGNIFICENT BLOCK of 330 ACRES off the YASS-ROAD, which would subdivide into THE FINEST SUBURBAN SITES
and
AGISTMENT HOLDINGS.

To Tradesmen, Speculators, Trustees, Syndicates, and others.

FINLAY and CO., Goulburn, have received instructions from Mr. John Slocombe, of Sydney, to sell by auction, at their Rooms, Belmore-square, on TUESDAY, 6th December, at 11 o'clock.
The following valuable properties, returning large rents, and of great prospective value:—
LOT 1.—That magnificent Auburn-street property, at present occupied by Mr. Beegling, as a butcher's shop and private residence, unequalled in the colony for every convenience and appointment necessary for carrying on a first class trade.
The shop and house is a massive, substantial, and ornamental building, occupying a large frontage in the centre of the city, built regardless of cost, and with a view to provide every convenience to LEAD the TRADE, and to render it, without exception, the best butchering establishment in any inland town in the colony.
The house contains 7 rooms for the family, with various other appointments, including laundry with copper, &c., and the shop has fixtures to hang 80 sheep, bodies of beef, salting machines, and every requisite for making small goods, and is now, with the slaughter-house and paddocks, let to Mr. Beegling at £425 per annum, his tenancy about expiring.

LOT 2.—Baker's shop adjoining, tenanted by Mr. M'Cann, doing a splendid family trade; an excellent building, and every requisite for the bakery business, including good front shop, oven, bakehouse, 3 rooms, shed, and stables, with good frontage to Auburn-street, and great depth 219 feet to lane at rear, let at £78 per annum.

LOT 3.—The Gorroragang paddocks and slaughter-house, with 330 acres of the best agricultural and grazing land in the district, most suitable for a subdivision of suburban sites, immediately adjoining the CITY BOUNDARY, and within one mile of the POST-OFFICE and RAILWAY STATION.
This property is entirely fenced in, and subdivided into four paddocks, and has been used in conjunction with the shop, having a large slaughter-house and yards, piggery, sheds, tallow-house, boiling-down plant with boilers, men's hut, sheep yard, and various outhouses, 70-acre cattle paddock, remainder sheep-proof paddocks; splendidly watered by creeks, also two tanks, and securely fenced in.
There is also a good stone cottage, covered with iron, and outhouses; about 3 acres orchard, choice fruit trees in full bearing, pailed in; and cultivation paddock of 25 acres, in crop.
The value of Lot 3 is "special," inasmuch as every inch of the land will sell subdivided; is of increasing value in the meantime; from the great conveniences of the slaughtering arrangements, a high rental can be obtained from those in the trade. The land adjoining the property was recently sold by the Government at from £20 to £30 AN ACRE.

LOT 4.—Small paddock, on the Yass-road, of 2 acres, pailed and fenced, nearly opposite Mr. M'Donald's cottage, part of Kennelly's subdivision.

LOT 5.—Allotment in Goldsmith-street, being lot 6 of section 48, 66 feet frontage, and 165 to lane at rear.

The above splendid investments are brought into the market for positive sale. As investments they cannot be surpassed. Mr. Slocombe acquired considerable wealth in the butchery business, and his successor has been equally successful. To the capitalist they are safe, certain, and sound, as the situation is unequalled.

Terms—25 per cent. cash, 25 per cent. in 12 months, balance in 5 years at 7 per cent.

GOULBURN.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 6.

BANGALORE,
BANGALORE FARM.

The Property of Mr. William Neely, comprising an area of 1549 ACRES of SPLENDID PASTORAL and AGRICULTURAL LAND,
1429 Acres of which are FREEHOLD,
8 MILES from BANGALORE RAILWAY PLATFORM, and 12 Miles from Goulburn, adjoining the Property of W. P. Faithfull, Esq.

The best Trading Depot or Dairy Farm in this district.

FINLAY and CO., GOULBURN, have received instructions from Mr. William Neely to sell by auction, at their Rooms, Belmore-square, on TUESDAY, December 6, at 11 o'clock
HIS BANGALORE FARM.

The Property is entirely fenced in with a sheep-proof fence, principally 5 wires and top rail, and subdivided into paddocks, giving three cultivation paddocks, 15 acres of which are under crop, the remainder used for dairying and holding stock for the market.

The improvements comprise cottage, garden, stockyards, stable, and outbuildings.

The farm is abundantly watered, and is really a valuable little holding in the hands of an enterprising farmer, dealer, or dairyman. A good competency may soon be made. Its proximity to market, and the great scarcity of such properties in this district (except at extreme rates) renders this a most attractive investment.

TERMS: ¼ cash, ¼ at four months, balance may remain secured upon the property for a term at 8 per cent., or cash.

UNION TERMINATING BUILDING SOCIETY.
No better investment procurable anywhere. See Prospectus, 83, Pitt-street.

Sir F. Napier Broome says:—"Keen men of business who are on the lookout to be first in at a good thing are turning their attention to Western Australia. Speculators have an idea there is money to be made on our side of the continent, and I believe they are right." CHAPMAN and LAMB, Agents, 127, King-street, for a PLAN of the BRIXTON ESTATE, PERTH, which is only 1½ mile from the city boundary, fronting the main road of the colony, which is subdivided in blocks of from half an acre to 2 acres each. The prices asked for the blocks are from £7 10s an acre, and are those fixed by Messrs. W. MALEY and CO., Auctioneers, Perth, who were requested by the vendors to value each lot.

LIBERAL TERMS.

A large number of the Brixton blocks have already been sold, and those desiring to secure two or three should at once apply to the Agents, who will be glad to supply all particulars and forward a descriptive circular which contains interesting and reliable information respecting the rapid progress made by the colony, and refers to its future prospects.

Since the RECENT very RICH DISCOVERIES
and
SPLENDID YIELDS
of
GOLD at KIMBERLEY, and at NEWCASTLE, only about 250 MILES from PERTH (the CAPITAL), WESTERN AUSTRALIA must at once come to the front as the GOLDFIELDS of AUSTRALIA, if NOT of the WORLD.

FANCY 1cwt. of QUARTZ yielding 8lb. of GOLD, being at the rate of 1920oz. to the TON, the KIMBERLEY YIELD being at the rate of 49oz. to the TON.

But this is not all; another RICH FIELD is DISCOVERED only 30 Miles from PERTH, on or near the MAIN ROAD to ALBANY, with the PROPOSED RAILWAY LINE running past it.

Read the latest WESTERN AUSTRALIAN PAPERS, to be obtained at Messrs. GORDON and GOTCH'S, GEORGE-STREET, and the contents of the same must convince you that there is a great future for that COLONY, and that her prospects already are really bright, and that great excitement now prevails in its METROPOLIS.

In consequence of these RICH GOLDFIELDS, the demand for LAND is INTENSE, and prices are running up fast, so that there is no time to delay.
